HUNDREDS OF GERMAN PLANES DRIVEN BACK IN WAR'S GREATEST ATTACK ON ENGLAND

Japanese Drive against British in East Asia Is Likely at an Early Date

May Be Timed To Take Place Soon after Germans Attack Great Britain, only Defender

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8—Japan, following her self-proclaimed destiny of dominance in "greater East Asia," was reported tonight to be hastening preparations for a lightning drive in the direction of French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies.

Trustworthy foreign sources, the sponsors of this report, predicted that Japan's big southward push would be geared to Germany's blitzkrieg machinery, now tuning up for the threatened invasion of The British Isles, and would begin within forty-eight hours after the Germans start.

The essence of such timing would be to take advantage of diversion of British attention to home defense. Britain stands as the only belligerent defender of the rich East Indies and Indo-China, territory of the German-vaanquished Netherlands and France.

Japanese Move Likely

If Adolf Hitler fails to move it was believed the Japanese would proceed more slowly and more cautiously, but further efforts to extend Japanese influence were regarded as inevitable.

Occasional premature reports of imminent Japanese action, on past weeks have been traced to movements of warships and transports between Formosa and Hainan, islands off the southeastern and Southern China coasts.

Formosa, long Japanese-ruled, and Hainan, occupied in the three-year-old war against China, are likely springboards for thrusts against Indo-China and the Welter of islands that make up the Dutch East Indies.

Foreign informants in Shanghai said both the Japanese army and navy were speeding preparations for the southward push.

The Japanese "southward" fleet consists of third ships, mostly cruisers and destroyers, but with one aircraft carrier and several seaplane tenders.

Naval and land forces of both Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, a thousand miles south of Formosa, are almost negligible.

More than 100,000 soldiers are believed concentrated now in Hainan and Formosa. Hainan lies less than 200 miles off the central coastline of Indo-China, a potential troop and plane base.

The French have only a few cruisers and destroyers and eighteen obsolete warplanes in Indo-China. The main infantry forces consist of Annamite soldiers who recently have been subjected to strong doses of anti-French propaganda by Japanese agents.

Back of all the Japanese negotiations with Indo-China is the Japanese wish for a right-of-way through that French territory for transport of empire troops and supplies into China's Yunnan province, which the Japanese believe would hasten the end of the war in China.

The precise attitude of the Tokyo government—as compared to the forthright expansionist clamor of

Britain Appeals To India for Aid In Fighting War

Holds Out Prospects of Independence if Axis Is Defeated

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—Britain appealed to India today to give her vast latent strength in the empire's fight for life against Axis forces striking both in west and east, and hold out to the 350,000,000 subject peoples of that fabulously wealthy possession the prospect of independence after the war.

In a statement announced simultaneously in the House of Commons by L. S. Amery, the British secretary of state for India, and in that far-off land by the Indian viceroy, the marquess of Linlithgow, the government proposed a "free and equal partnership" for India in the British commonwealth of nations for the future.

Cooperation Asked

But in the meantime, it was said, the government trusts "that for the period of the war all parties, communities and interests (in India) will combine and cooperate in making a notable Indian contribution to the world cause which is at stake."

The "partnership" thus offered was not outlined in detail, but it was interpreted authoritatively as going beyond even dominion status.

All this came while the British isles were awaiting the long-threatened German invasion from across the English channel and while the African troops of Italy were marching in British Somali-

Roosevelt Given Right To Call National Guard

Amendment To Limit Service to Home Defense Is Defeated

TROOPS AVAILABLE FOR LATIN AMERICAN SERVICE

President also Given Power To Call 116,000 Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—By the overwhelming vote of seventy-one to seven, the Senate today passed and sent to the House the administration bill empowering the president to call out the national guard and army reserves for a twelve months period of duty anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possessions or the Philippine islands.

(Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) was one of the four Democrats who voted against the measure. Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) was not listed as voting.)

First, however, the chamber adopted an amendment permitting guardsmen with wives or children dependent on their salaries or wages to resign.

Just before the bill passed, it escaped being drastically altered by the narrowest of margins. On a vote of thirty-nine to thirty-eight, the chamber rejected an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) limiting the service of the guard to continental United States, American possessions and the Philippine islands.

Amendment Rejected

This would mean that the president could not send guardsmen to Latin America. The administration leaders, who have made on secret of their fear of German penetration in that area, were quick to fight the amendment. Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) said it would be "jolly" to serve notice on the world that all "our pious resolutions" on "democracy and solidarity in the western hemisphere are of no more effect than if adopted by a quilting bee."

Adams told the Senate that he would be willing to give the president complete freedom in time of war, but in peace-time he wanted

Doctor's Body Is Found in Ocean; Suicide Probable

Dr. Alfonso Moufang Believed To Have Killed Self with Revolver

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—State Police Sergeant John J. Cassidy said today a body found floating off Hooper's island this morning had been identified by Johnstown, Pa., police ask Dr. Abraham Moufang of Johnstown, who disappeared July 30 from the Old Bay Line steamer Warfield.

The body, with a bullet wound in the head, was clad in brown and white striped pajamas.

Cassicy said identification was made by telephoned descriptions given by police in Cambridge, Md., and Johnstown. Johnstown officers said the pajamas were the only clothes reported missing from Dr. Moufang's effects.

Dr. Moufang's dessing gown and slippers were found on the deck near his stateroom window by a watchman on the Warfield. Seven letters in his stateroom, Cassidy said, indicated suicide. The Warfield was enroute from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va.

The body was discovered near the mouth of the Potomac river—at about the point where Moufang was reported missing—by two crabbers, Mulberry Wingate, and Eugene Wheatley, and taken to Cambridge.

Cassidy said Johnstown police were sending a funeral director to Cambridge to claim the body.

Dr. Joseph K. Shriver, Dorchester county medical examiner, said a bullet had entered the right side of the man's head, coming out on the left side.

Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief state medical examiner, was called from Ocean City, Md., where he was vacationing, to make an autopsy.

Government To Probe Alleged Use Of "Slush Funds" by Big Utilities

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The justice department announced today that it would undertake grand jury investigations of the alleged use of political "slush funds" by public utilities companies at St. Louis, Springfield, Ill., Des Moines, Iowa, and "perhaps in other federal judicial districts."

The companies to be investigated were listed by the department as Union Electric Company of Missouri, Illinois Iowa Power Company, Missouri Power and Light Company, all subsidiaries in the North American Company holding system.

Defer Other Probes

The Securities Commission announced at the same time that he had deferred for the present a proposed public investigation of the North American company and Union Electric pending the grand jury inquiry.

The justice department said the grand juries would investigate "information that Union Electric Company of Missouri and certain associated companies have violated provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Public Utility Holding Company Act, the maill fraud statute, the Federal Corrupt Practices Act and other federal criminal statutes by making and keeping false records for the purpose of cheating a so-called slush fund and using this fund to make contributions to candidates for election to federal and state offices.

Action Follows Inquiry

The department said that its action was based on information obtained during an SEC investigation of Union Electric and also on testomony at the trial in St. Louis on Frank J. Boehm, former vice president of the company, who was convicted of perjury and sentenced to five years in prison because of false testimony during the commission's inquiry."

U. S. Seeks Friendlier Relations with Russia

New Move Prompted by Japan's Plans To Seize East Asia

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The United States, disturbed by Japan's new "Greater East Asia" policy, appeared tonight to be seeking friendlier relations with Soviet Russia.

After two unusually long conferences with the Soviet ambassador, Constantine Oumansky, within a week, acting secretary of state Summer Welles said today they had discussed many questions involving relations between the two countries.

At the same time, Welles declined to comment in any way on Japanese press reports that the American government had asked Japan to define more clearly its attitude regarding French Indo-China.

Motor Gas for Russia

The Maritime Commission's action yesterday in authorizing two American-owned tankers to take cargoes of Motor gasoline to Russia was linked in some quarters with the government's apparent effort to smoothe out trade and other difficulties with Moscow.

The commission denied applications for two other vessels to take steel and oil to Japan.

Welles, when asked for comment on this, recalled that he told the press about ten days ago that he understood charters would be granted for American ships to go to ports where there was no danger involved.

39 Italians Die In Mystery Blast In Powder Works

Explosions Near Genoa Are Unexplained; Inquiry under Way

By The Associated Press

ROME, Aug. 8—Two unexplained explosions killed thirty-nine workers and injured hundreds more today in the Tiatenza munitions works near Genoa as Italian officials heiled successes in the African campaign.

The munitions plant was almost demolished by the separate blasts that caused some destruction in nearby barracks and broke windows throughout the vicinity.

High officials left Rome hastily to investigate.

Authorities quickly organized first aid and began clearing away the debris within a short time after the blasts ended.

Italians Pleased

Meanwhile, officials here exultantly claimed that the Italian capture of the British Somaliland port of Zeila had opened the way to a consolidation of the British and French Somalilands under Fascists arms for an attack on Aden, Britain's protectorate 140 miles across the Gulf of that name.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Fifty-three German planes were declared shot down by British fliers yesterday (Thursday) in the greatest Nazi aerial onslaught against the British island fortress and channel supply lines.

Nazi raiders roared over the channel in uncounted hundreds, attacking in groups of about eighty planes all day long. They rained thousands of bombs on channel shipping. Unofficial estimates said at least 100 German fliers died in the assault.

The British acknowledged the loss of sixteen planes in the fierce dog fights watched by thousands on the coast. Fighters and bombers were seen to plummet into the channel and crash against the rocky coast.

Berlin immediately disputed the claim, saying only three Nazi planes were lost and that thirty-four British planes fell. German spokesmen asserted fifteen ships totaling 72,000 tons were sunk by German bombs.

Ten German radio stations, including one in Berlin, went silent late last night (Thursday), indicating British air raiders were over the country.

Bomb German Base

British raiders bombed the German naval base at Kiel early yesterday. Pilots reported fires and explosions resulted. They also attacked the Nazi-held French port of Cherbourg in their attempts to smash German concentrations.

As the fighting raged along the coast British leaders in Parliament appealed to rich India for aid. They held forth the prospect of "free and equal partnership" in the British commonwealth of nations after the war if that vast multilingual territory would contribute in the fight for the "world cause at stake."

Indian nationalist leaders were silent. Hundreds of Indian potentates who hold their thrones through Britain already have made contributions to the Empire's war treasury.

Appeal to India

The appeal to India was made when Italian infantrymen were fighting their way across British Somaliland in East Africa toward Berbera, British port on the Gulf of Aden from British Aden in Asia.

In the last few days the Fascists, assisted by native troops occupied Zeila, British Somaliland port near French Somaliland, and other hinterland towns. Their object is to gain all Somaliland with a 2,500-mile coastline fronting on the southeastern entrance to the Red Sea which connects with the Suez canal.

British troops were ready to make a stand in mountain passes south of Berbera. They minimized the strategic importance of Italian gains and kept another eye on Italians massed on the Libyan-Egyptian border.

Germany declared Britain is responsible for feeding the populations in German-occupied countries be-

James A. Farley Resigns Post in FDR's Cabinet

President Accepts It in Unusually Friendly Letter

SLATED TO BECOME PRESIDENT OF YANKEES

But May Take Position as President of Willys-Overland

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley handed in his portfolio as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet today, and a long political and official alliance between "Smiling Big Jim" and the chief he affectionately called "F.D." thus came to an end.

James A. Farley

To the big happy Irishman who twice led his campaigns for the White House President Roosevelt sent an exceedingly friendly letter accepting the resignation, effective Aug. 31.

Farley has persistently been reported planning to a head a syndicate to buy the New York Yankee baseball team, although other reports have linked him with the possible management of the Willys-Overland motors, Inc.

Italians Likely To Attack Egypt, London Declares

Drive through Somaliland only a Feint, British Spokesmen Think

By LARRY ALLEN

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 8 (AP)—British spokesmen expressed the conviction tonight that the Italian drive through British Somaliland toward the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean was merely a feint to hide preparations for a grand assault on Egypt.

Admitting Fascist gains in Somaliland, Britons nevertheless said the Italians' main effort would be to break Britain's stranglehold on Mediterranean Sea routes by which water and other necessities must be carried to Italian Africa.

Also, as long as Britain holds Egypt and the Suez Canal, Italy has neither effective sea nor land connection with her Ethiopian empire.

The real big push, they said, would come in mid-August.

The Italians were reported facing a dwindling water supply in blockaded Libya, a land largely of burning deserts where water is as vital as bullets.

Water From Italy

Virtually all the water used by Italy's sand-whipped troops in eastern Libya has been transported from Italy, it was asserted, in specially-constructed water tankers, dodging the British blockade.

A deep thrust into Egypt would solve one of Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's problems by opening the way for new supplies of water and oil.

Egypt's position in the anticipated action remained a debated question.

Egypt May Declare War

Hundreds of Warplanes Attack in Fleets of 80 Each and Drop Many Thousands of Bombs

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion hurling 800 Nazi bombers and fighter planes against Britain's outer defenses was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of almost constant fighting.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion launched by uncounted hundreds of German planes was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of intermittent battle and at least fifty-three of the raiding Nazi craft were reported shot down.

More than 100 trained Nazi pilots, observers and air gunners were declared to have gone down to flaming death in the British counter-fire.

The Germans appeared in numbers unprecedented for this war, attacking over and over again all day long in forces of eighty each, and dropping thousands upon thousands of bombs.

British fighter planes, meeting the greatest assault ever made on these islands, threw up for the mainland a shield which was not broken.

Record Incomplete

Tonight, as the air ministry still was assembling the record of this gigantic engagement, German planes were reported again over the southeast coast, and also over Wales and two towns in the southwest of England.

In the last three of the day's main attacks—attacks concentrated on shipping in the channel—the Germans loosed 150 dive bombers and fighters at one convoy.

Of the tentative total of raiders shot down, nineteen were dive bombers and thirty-four fighters.

Each wave of bombers were screened by fighter planes—many of them the new Heinkels, Germany's counter-weapon to the British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

It was the heaviest one-day loss ever claimed against the Nazis in the war for Britain's skies. The previous high was on July 12, when the British announced the destruction of twenty-six German raiders.

But in this day-long series of thunderous, running and almost endless engagements along the southeast coast, the British suffered too, acknowledging that sixteen fighter pilots were missing, that "several ships" in the channel had received "considerable damage" and that "a number of survivors and injured" had been landed.

(The Germans claimed thirty-four British planes were destroyed and twelve ships totalling 55,000 tons were sunk. They acknowledged the loss of only three Nazi planes.)

15 British Ships Sunk in Channel, Germany Asserts

Seven Others Damaged by Fleets of German Planes and Ships

BERLIN, Aug. 8 (AP)—A tornadic attack on British shipping and airpower today by Germany's fliers and speedboats sank fifteen ships in the English channel, the high command announced tonight, damaged seven others and downed thirty-four British planes.

A speedboat raid on a "strongly protected enemy convoy" during the night sent to the bottom an 8,000-ton tanker and two steamers totaling 9,000 tons, a special communique said, while bombers swooping down on another convoy this afternoon sank twelve ships totaling 55,000 tons and damaged seven others.

Thus in the space of twenty-four hours an aggregate of 72,000 tons of British shipping space was reported destroyed.

Tanker Set Afire

During the speedboat raid, which the communique said was hotly contested by British destroyers, the tiny torpedo-carrying craft also set one tanker afire.

All of the speedboats were reported to have returned safely.

Five of the thirty-four British planes shot down were pursuit

U. S. May Seize Some of French Money "Frozen" in New York City

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The first hope in many years of collecting a substantial sum on the $14,500,000,000 World War debt arose today when Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that the government was studying the question of seizing some of the French funds "frozen" in this country.

At a press conference, the secretary made it plain that the administration has not decided what to do with the frozen assets, but asserted that before they were released he wanted "to see what happens to American investments and debts over there."

Includes All Debts

He included the war debts owed to the government, with all business and other private debts, in this statement.

Previously he had discussed the chance that the frozen funds might be used to reimburse Americans for destruction of property in invaded countries, but today was the first time he acknowledged that war debt collection also was under study.

The frozen funds are unofficially estimated at $3,500,000,000. They belong to the invaded countries of Europe. France owes $4,200,000,000 on war debts, Poland $267,000,000 and Belgium $460,000,000.

This method, apparently, could not be used to collect the $5,600,000,000 owed by Great Britain, $2,025,000,000 owed by Italy, $1,300,000,000 owed by Germany, or $400,000,000 owed by Russia.

List Is Announced

The list of countries whose American assets have been impounded subject to special treasury license before they can be removed from this country includes France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. Officials declined to say how much of each country's funds were held, or what they totaled.

Morgenthau, again emphasizing that he did not yet know what would be done with the funds said: "I am just sitting on them and waiting to see what will happen. I am sure no American will lose by it."

Production Rate For Warplanes Is 10,800 Yearly

And Will Pass the 18,000 a Year Mark Jan. 1, Knudsen Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—William S. Knudsen, production chief of the National Defense Commission, reported to the nation tonight that United States production of warplanes had reached a rate of 10,800 a year and would pass the 18,000-a-year mark by next January.

He made this report of progress toward President Roosevelt's goal of 50,000 planes a year in a nation-wide radio broadcast.

This broadcast, in which Knudsen and other members of the commission gave a detailed accounting of the defense program, closely followed publication of a commission report showing that its production division had cleared $1,792,000,000 of army and navy contracts in the past two months. The dates on which the products involved in the contracts will be delivered were not announced.

In response to a radio commentator's question about plane production, Knudsen said:

Higher Rate Next Year

"Present production is approximately 900 planes per month. By January first the number will have risen to 1,500 planes and the volume will increase steadily thereafter. You might also be interested in knowing that in January 56,800 people were employed in aircraft factories. Today the number is nearer 75,000."

Other commission officials said that the present production of 900 planes a month and the expected production of 1,500 next January included the planes being made in this country for Britain.

Knudsen denied that no combat planes had been contracted for out of money appropriated by Congress up to August 1, declaring the navy had contracted for $7,000,000 worth of such planes in July.

"I would like to add," Knudsen continued, "that of money made available to us on July 1, five weeks ago, contracts have already been awarded for forty-five percent of the entire army funds and seventy-five percent of the navy's funds."

Uniforms for 400,000 Men

Knudsen was asked whether sufficient equipment would be available for an army of 400,000 men this fall, in the vent the compulsory service law were passed, or other measures were enacted to create such a force.

"If you mean uniforms, other clothing and general equipment, the answer is yes," he said.

Asked when deliveries could be expected on the combat material in which the commission was interested, he replied:

"I expect that the tooling up process will more or less take up the balance of this fall, but by January substantial deliveries of most of the material should commence and by spring 1941 production should be going at a good rate."

Points made by other members of the commission included:

40,000 Men in Shipyards

The shipbuilding industry is now employing almost 40,000 more people than at the ten-year peak in 1937; the aircraft industry is employing 50,000 more; the machine tool industry is employing 18,000 more, and the same is true of the engine industry.

Chester Davis, in charge of the agricultural division—

"No defense program can succeed if farm income and prices are not maintained at a level which will keep the farm plant healthy in the defense front. Existing machinery developed during the past seven years is available to do this job."

Leon Henderson, in charge of the division of price stabilization—

"The president wants to avoid the familiar price spiral—like he saw in the last war—where wages, the cost of living and prices skyrocketed up and left the country with a post-war headache."

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in charge of the raw materials division—

A railroad in Brazil will have to be built to obtain needed supplies of high-grade manganese—an indispensable alloy for the manufacture of steel.

The commission is discussing with industry plans for the production of emergency supplies of synthetic rubber, which "for certain purposes—including some airplane parts—is definitely superior to crude rubber."

Karl W. Fischer, assistant to Ralph Budd, in charge of the transportation division—

Steps already are being taken to strengthen 2,000 bridges in the country's 80,000-mile network of strategic highways so that they will carry the heaviest military equipment.

Gontrum Urged State Safety Code To Replace Existing Local Laws

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8. (AP)—Enactment by the next legislature of a state safety code which would take precedence over dozens of existing local laws, was recommended to a sub-committee of the legislative council today by John B. Gontrum, state insurance commissioner.

The proposed code would give the state authority to define and correct fire hazards and regulate the manufacture, use, sale and storage of petroleum and explosives.

And, as one of its most important features, it would regulate the sale and use of fireworks throughout the state. This section of the code, Gontrum said, would be simillar to the proposed fireworks legislation that was rejected by the legislature at its last session.

Gontrum told the sub-committee that existing laws relating to fireworks amounted to "a crazy quilt of local legislation" and declared that the insurance commissioner is prevented in many cases "from carrying out the most elementary safety provisions."

Refers to Conflict

The commissioner called attention to an incident several months ago when he attempted to promulgate a set of fireworks regulations for the state, but was reversed by a court ruling that gave local legislation precedence over regulations set forth by the insurance commissioner's office.

A similar situation exists in relation to five hazards throughout the state, Gontrum asserted. While his department can recommend regulations on fire escapes and other safety measures, it is without authority to enforce any rules that conflict with local laws.

The proposed state law, he said, would be in effect everywhere except in cases where local governments had more stringent rules and regulations.

Other proposals given the subcommittee for possible recommendation to the legislative council included:

New Fire Regulations

Complete organization of the fire marshal's department, proving an additional deputy insurance commissioner who would serve as fire marshal;

A law setting up qualifications for insurance adjusters, and granting the insurance commissioner discretionary power to refuse licenses to insure companies"on grounds of public policy or in the public interest;"

Amendment of the present law, so the state could impose a premium tax of five per cent on all classes of unauthorized insurance except life, health and accident insurance; this would include property-risk, workman's compensation and race horse insurance, bankers' blanket, fidelity and surety bonds;

Authority to impose fines—instead of suspension alone, as at present—on agent, solicitors and brokers found guilty of misconduct in this business;

A minimum rating for bonds in which insurance companies invest their reserves.

Gontrum also took up the question of over-insurance, which he said some experts believe "places a premium on arson." He said that while some states had enacted a fixed value policy law to meet this situation, he believed the problem could be handled best through the cooperation of the fire insurance companies. Should they fail to work out a solution, he said, then some remedial legislation should be considered.

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 8 (AP)—Dane Coolidge, 67, widely-known naturalist and writer, died today after an illness of several months.

Roosevelt Given

Can Call Out Officers

Besides authorizing mobilization of 227,000 national guardsmen, the measure empowers the chief executive to call out 116,000 reserve officers, about 38,000 reserve enlisted men, 3,700 retired officers and 12,000 retired enlisted men. Army officials have said, however, that immediate plans call for mustering only a portion of these forces.

After passage of the bill the Senate, still smarting under a week of turbulent and caustic debate, squared away for a possibly historic battle over the issue of civilian conscription, presented in a bill calling upon all men between twenty-one and thirty, inclusive, to register for the nation's first peacetime military draft.

Active Service Possible

During the debate on the national guard bill, critics made much of certain wording in it. They asserted Mr. Roosevelt and the war department had said the guard should be mobilized for "training" but that the bill which the president sent to the capitol called for "active military service."

But administration leaders were in command of the situation at all times, and beat back the opposition's two principal attempts to modify the measure. One was the amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) limiting the guardsmen's area of operation.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) fought alongside administration forces in opposition to this amendment. He contended the president should have broad authority to act quickly in an emergency situation and send troops to other lands if necessary to the protection of the United States or the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine.

In reply to this, Senator Chandler (D-Ky) asserted the Monroe Doctrine had been construed to cover so much territory that it was doubtful it could be enforced. He could not see why the United States would have to go to war, if some other nation took over the island of Trinidad, owned by Great Britain, for instance.

"I want to see us strong enough," Austin replied, "so that if Germany wins she will not dare to take Trinidad or any other possession in the Western Hemisphere."

Vote Is Very Close

So close was the vote on the Adams amendment that an excited flurry followed, with administration forces seeking to table a motion to reconsider and advocates of the amendment calling for a quorum call.

Senator Clark (D-Mo), a master parliamentary strategist, produced a motion to recommit the bill to the military committee with instructions that it write the Adams amendment into it and report the measure to the Senate at once.

The strategem failed. A roll call showed even fewer senators for the Adams amendment in its new than in its original form. The Clark motion was beaten forty-five to thirty-one.

The other attempted restriction was rejected yesterday, with the defeat of an amendment by Senator Danaher (R-Conn), which would have given all the men involved the privilege of resigning, and thus avoiding compulsory service.

However, today at the instance of Chairman Pittman (D-Nev) of the foreign relations committee, a compromise was struck on this point, and the Senate accepted unanimously the provision giving the resignation privilege only to men with wives or children dependent on their earnings.

Bermuda Society Women Curtsy to Duke of Windsor, Not to His Wife

By MORTON P. GUDEBROD

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 8 (AP)—Two of the highest placed matrons of official Bermuda society, in welcoming the Windsors to Britain-in-the-Western Hemisphere today, curtsied to the duke but not to his American-born twice-divorced duchess.

As pace-setters of the Colonial social set, they apparently established the punctilio that will prevail: the bended knee for his royal highness, a friendly bow to the commoner duchess.

The women who thus made the to-curtsy-or-not-to-curtsy choice are Mrs. Hastings Brooke, sister of Major-General Denis Kirwin Bernard, governor of Bermuda, and the wife of Admiral Sir Charles Kennedy-Purvis, commander of the Royal navy's American and West Indies squadron.

Chat With the Duchess

There was, of course, no dreadful pause and the two women soon found themselves in animated conversation with the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield for whom Edward VIII gave up a throne.

The American export liner Excalibur, bearing the Windsors from Lisbon, Portugal, anchored off Hamilton in early afternoon.

"The ship made a special stop here so the Windsors and their entourage could proceed more directly to the Bahamas where the Duke will be governor and commander-in-chief of British armed forces.

Thousands lined the shore as the Excalibur pulled in and cheers rose from a throng of about 1,000 which crowded the Royal Yacht club lawn, near the jetty where the Windsors stepped ashore from a tender.

The duke, tanned and boyish in gray serge, came ashore first.

Major-General Bernard, Admiral Sir Charles Kennedy-Purvis, their ladies and other officialdom met him. The ladies curtsied low as he smiled in recognition of cheers and hand-clapping from the crowd.

Guard Salutes Duke

Then the duke snapped to attention while an honor guard gave the Royal salute at present arms and the band played "God Save the King."

The duchess wore a printed satin-backed crepe of pink and blue of all-over design with a full length coat of royal blue crepe, its elbow-length sleeves hanging straight from her shoulders.

The duke wore a tab-colored shirt with his gray suit, an Oxford University tie and tan and white sports shoes. He carried an ordinary straw hat with black band.

Twice the duke passed along the ranks of soldiers, sailors and marines which made up the honor guard, stopping occasionally to chat with one of the men.

The entire ceremonies at the Royal Yacht club took little more than five minutes. The party then drove directly to government house where they will remain until going to Nassau.

Kerr and Snead Lead In Open Golf Tourney

PORT ERIE, Ont., Aug. 8 (AP)—Bill Kerr, stocky professional of the Toronto Hunt Club, and Slammin' Sam Snead, shared the lead tonight at the halfway mark of the eighteenth annual Ontario open golf championship. Both carded eighteen-hole totals of seventy-one, one under par.

Snead, the West Virginian who now is located at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., was one of four Americans who qualified for the final eighteen holes tomorrow along with twelve Canadians.

Snead, a former Canadian open champion, had trouble on the first hole and toured the first nine in thirty-seven. He came in with a par-shattering thirty-four.

Carroll County To Double Willkie Workers

WESTMINSTER, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—The county and State Central Republican Committees decided tonight to double the number of district and precinct workers in Carroll county for the duration of the Willkie campaign.

The decision will give the county 312 precinct workers. The new workers will be known as the "Willkie group", and will not hold their posts after the election.

About 175 persons, described by County Chairman Sherman E. Flanagan as the largest ever to attend a meeting so early in a campaign, were present for the strategy-drafting session.

British Remove Mail From American Ship

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 8 (AP)—British censors removed 120 to 700 bags of mail today from the American export liner Excalibur which went out of its way to land the Duke and Duchess of Windsor here en route to his new post as governor and commander-in-chief of the Bahama Islands.

planes participating in this afternoon's battle over the channel, the high command said, while the other twenty-nine—also pursuit craft—were bagged "during additional air skirmishes in the course of the afternoon."

The German announcement admitted loss of three German planes.

Propaganda Continues

At the same time another round was fired in the propaganda duel over who is to blame if Europe goes hungry.

Dienst Aus Reutschland, the authoritative news commentary published in Berlin, denied British press assertions that Germany is responsible for feeding the populations of Germany-occupied countries.

England really is responsible, the Dienst said, declaring England drew them into the war against Germany.

It denied British assertions that Adolph Hitler in his recent Reichstag speech had said "the feeding of Europe is assured," and said that what he did say was that the German food supply was assured.

The commentary insisted that American Red Cross shipments to persons in the occupied areas were being delivered without hindrance from German authorities.

Africa, it was declared, would give Italy a 2,500-mile continuous coastline along the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean.

The strategy thus projected would be intended not only to break the vital British empire communications, but to obtain the two great riches of oil and cotton—oil in the British-controlled Mosul filed; cotton in British Sudan.

Italians Near Berbera

Italian armored columns in British Somaliland were declared today to be well on the road to Berbera the biggest port in the protectorate, accompanied by bombers. Its seizure would prevent a third possible naval base against British Aden—in addition to Zeila, if it is held, and Jibuti, in French Somaliland.

(The British said in London that Italy might be allowed "a cheap victory" in British Somaliland; that Britain might withdraw her forces from the desert wastes not considered worth defending.)

New destructive bombardments of Haifa, the British outlet to the Mosul oil fields, were declared to have destroyed 100,000 tons of oil.

Group of Democrats Will Back Radcliffe And Wendell Willkie

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Formation of a Democratic organization opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt, but supporting Senator George L. Radcliffe for re-election, was announced today by Herbert M. Brune, independent candidate for governor in 1938.

Brune said registration figures show that "only through the assistance of Democrats" can Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard-bearer, "carry Maryland in November." He charged Roosevelt "seeks to establish in America the one-man, one-party system which has been the scourge of Europe."

Brune said he supported Roosevelt for re-election in 1936.

Plans for establishment of headquarters in each precinct for distribution of Willkie buttons and campaign literature were announced by the Republican City Committee.

Many Fishermen Enter Crisfield Contest

Crisfield, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Anglers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, and other nearby states got their rods and reels and favorite fishing clothes ready today for a sporting week end in the Chesapeake Bay fishing fair grand contest.

Advance reservations for rooms, boats, and guides indicate the fair will be one of the "best yet," said Capt. George Clifton Charnock, a director of the Fshing Fair Association.

Boat captains and guides were ready to take fishermen to choice locations in the two-day contest starting Saturday.

Officials said they anticipate from 6,000 to 10,000 sport-fishermen to participate in the two-day fishing jamboree.

Burglars Steal Safe For Second Time

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP)—For the second time in fifteen months burglars hauled away a filling station safe.

On the previous occasion, Herbert L. White, station manager, and police found the missing safe on a county lane. Late today they visited the same place but the safe was not there.

"They must have changed spots on me," White commented.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

While Italy presses her drive to wrest the Suez canal from British control, Britain makes what may be a counter move, in the form of a political gesture to India, at once the richest unit of the empire and the most difficult problem for London to handle.

With India's 350,000,000 population as a reservoir to draw on for defense of the canal, the odds against Italy's great adventure would be weighted heavily against Mussolini. That may be one of the motives behind Britain's action in proffering India new pledges of ultimate commonwealth status and immediate, active participation in highest government councils in India.

Yet the gesture appears to have some other, and perhaps controlling motive, because any additional fighting strength Britain hopes to gain from it could not affect the military situation in Egypt and other parts of Africa for many months.

Count on Other Factors

Obviously Britain counts on other factors to hold Suez—on seapower, experience in desert fighting, native troops and, above all, on the waterless sands of Egypt. Any Italian offensive must conquer these sands to reach the canal.

The more a layman studies the possibilities of the Italian attack, the more it becomes clear that a test of sea power versus air power is coming. It is only by air that Italy can hope to supply her armies and get them forward decisively against the outnumbered but firmly-entrenched British defenders. British sea power balks any other form of offensive.

Presumably Italy can throw the bulk of her air force into the fight and achieve a numerical superiority as great, or possibly greater, than that which Germany is able to mass for the long-delayed attack on England.

Tank Warfare Unlikely

Informed military men say tank warfare, or mechanized "blitzkrieg" in any form, is inconceivable in desert terrain, with temperatures running to 120 degrees in the shade.

It is by air routes, therefore, that Italy must hope to supply her troops across the Mediterranean and to transport them swiftly over the deserts of Egypt.

Yet Fascist leaders appear to be risking an unpredictable strain on their air resources. Aside from reserve stores of gasoline, oil, water and other materials at the Italian bases across the Mediterranean, virtually everything must be ferried by air from Italy.

With so huge a task of supply and transport confronting it on its own near eastern offensive front, it is highly doubtful that the Italian high command can lend much aerial assistance to Germany in any attack on England proper. On the contrary, there are seemingly authentic reports that Germany has already contributed special types of fighting aircraft to Italy for the Suez campaign.

German Stations Go Off the Air

Nine Stop Broadcasting as Precaution against Air Raids

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Nine German and German-controlled radio stations, including one in Berlin, went off the air late tonight—a normal indication of precaution against British air raids.

Those falling silent were Stuttgart, Brussels, Cologne, Hilversum, Leipzig, Berlin, Strasbourg, Frankfort and Saarbruecken.

It was the largest number of German stations to cease transmission without explanation since the beginning of the war.

land, threatening Egypt and driving for the Indian ocean along Britain's lifeline of empire.

Nothing was said officially as to the extent of aid which India could give in this most critical hour in British history, but that aid could be tremendous—Indian gold and supplies and unlimited numbers of Indian troops.

The new policy toward the continent whose people make up nearly three-fourths of all the half-billion subjects of King George probably will be debated in the House of Commons next Wednesday, said Clement Attlee, a government parliamentary spokesman.

Inquisitive Communist

As he made the announcement William Gallacher, a Communist member, demanded:

"Is Mr. Amery not aware that the closing of the Burma road has had a disastrous effect on feeling in India?"—a reference to the fact that the Churchill government recently agreed, in a gesture toward Japan, to halt munitions shipments to China over that route for three months.

Amery made no answer, for the speaker held that Gallacher had interjected "a matter of opinion—not a question."

This new gesture for Indian solidarity in behalf of the empire was heard with caution and reserve by nationalist leaders in India, but drew favorable comment from the Independent and Liberal party heads.

Trustworthy Shanghai sources reported Japan was preparing a lightning drive toward French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies to be timed when Germany begins her threatened total invasion of the British Isles.

military and naval leaders—is not known except for recent pronouncements by members of the Konoye government as too Japan's future role of leadership in "greater East Asia."

However, the Tokyo government is believed by foreign sources here to be in favor of forceful steps. The belief is growing in Japan that, regardless of who wins the European war, the victor will not be inclined to hand over far eastern colonies to Japan out of sheer generosity.

Along with the expansionist stirring the Japanese empire, came these reports:

TOKYO—One hundred and twenty-six members of the Japanese Diet's 466 members adopted a resolution urging the government to take "all available and effective measures to drive British influence from East Asia."

HANOI, French-Indo China—General Issaku Nishihara, head of a Japanese economic mission, was reported flying back to Hanoi after consultation with Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye in Tokyo for continuation of economic negotiations.

Resistance Stiffens

A stiffening of resistance to Japanese wishes appeared in announcement of a decision to reopen transit routes through Indo-China for Chinese exports. A month ago Indo-China agreed to seal her border with China and it was stipulated that outgoing Chinese shipments would be halted for one month.

One explanation of this slight display of French resistance to Japan was that the Vichy government, with Berlin's approval, favored putting a brake on the Japanese.

One informant raised the possibility that Hitler desired to preserve all the bargaining advantages he now holds, in favor of an ultimate broader settlement with Japan, perhaps embracing Batavia, in the Dutch East Indies.

HUNDREDS OF GERMAN PLANES DRIVEN BACK IN WAR'S GREATEST ATTACK ON ENGLAND

Japanese Drive against British in East Asia Is Likely at an Early Date

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8—Japan, following her self-proclaimed destiny of dominance in "greater East Asia," was reported tonight to be hastening preparations for a lightning drive in the direction of French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies.

Trustworthy foreign sources, the sponsors of this report, predicted that Japan's big southward push would be geared to Germany's blitzkrieg machinery, now tuning up for the threatened invasion of The British Isles, and would begin within forty-eight hours after the Germans start.

The essence of such timing would be to take advantage of diversion of British attention to home defense. Britain stands as the only belligerent defender of the rich East Indies and Indo-China, territory of the German-vanquished Netherlands and France.

Japanese Move Likely

If Adolf Hitler fails to move it was believed the Japanese would proceed more slowly and more cautiously, but further efforts to extend Japanese influence were regarded as inevitable.

Occasional premature reports of imminent Japanese action in recent weeks have been traced to movements of warships and transports between Formosa and Hainan, islands off the southeastern and Southern China coasts.

Formosa, long Japanese-ruled, and Hainan, occupied in the three-year-old war against China, are likely springboards for thrusts against Indo-China and the Welter of islands that make up the Dutch East Indies.

Foreign informants in Shanghai said both the Japanese army and navy were speeding preparations for the southward push.

The Japanese "southward" fleet consists of third ships, mostly cruisers and destroyers, but with one aircraft carrier and several seaplane tenders.

Naval and land forces of both Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, a thousand miles south of Formosa, are almost negligible.

More than 100,000 soldiers are believed concentrated now in Hainan and Formosa. Hainan lies less than 100 miles off the central coastline of Indo-China, a potential troop and plane base.

The French have only a few cruisers and destroyers and eighteen obsolete warplanes in Indo-China. The main infantry forces consist of Annamite soldiers who recently have been subjected to strong doses of anti-French propaganda by Japanese agents.

Back of all the Japanese negotiations with Indo-China is the Japanese wish for a right-of-way through that French territory for transport of empire troops and supplies into China's Yunnan province, which the Japanese believe would hasten the end of the war in China.

The precise attitude of the Tokyo government—as compared to the forthright expansionist clamor of

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—Britain appealed to India today to give her vast latent strength in the empire's fight for life against Axis forces striking both in west and east, and hold out to the 350,000,000 subject peoples of that fabulously wealthy possession the prospect of independence after the war.

In a statement announced simultaneously in the House of Commons by L. S. Amery, the British secretary of state for India, and in that far-off land by the Indian viceroy, the marquess of Linlithgow, the government proposed a "free and equal partnership" for India in the British commonwealth of nations for the future.

Cooperation Asked

But in the meantime, it was said, the government trusts "that for the period of the war all parties, communities and interests (in India) will combine and cooperate in making a notable Indian contribution to the world cause which is at stake."

The "partnership" thus offered was not outlined in detail, but it was interpreted authoritatively as going beyond even dominion status.

All this came while the British isles were awaiting the long-threatened German invasion from across the English channel and while the African troops of Italy were marching in British Somali-

Roosevelt Given Right To Call National Guard

President also Given Power To Call 116,000 Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—By the overwhelming vote of seventy-one to seven, the Senate today passed and sent to the House the administration bill empowering the president to call out the national guard and army reserves for a twelve months period of duty anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possessions or the Philippine islands.

(Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) was one of the four Democrats who voted against the measure. Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) was not listed as voting.)

First, however, the chamber adopted an amendment permitting guardsmen with wives or children dependent on their salaries or wages to resign.

Just before the bill passed, it escaped being drastically altered by the narrowest of margins. On a vote of thirty-nine to thirty-eight, the chamber rejected an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) limiting the service of the guard to continental United States, American possessions and the Philippine islands.

Amendment Rejected

This would mean that the president could not send guardsmen to Latin America. The administration leaders, who have made on secret of their fear of German penetration in that area, were quick to fight the amendment. Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) said it would be "jolly" to serve notice on the world that all "our pious resolutions" on "democracy and solidarity in the western hemisphere are of no more effect than if adopted by a quilting bee."

Adams told the Senate that he would be willing to give the president complete freedom in time of war, but in peace-time he wanted

Doctor's Body Is Found in Ocean; Suicide Probable

Dr. Alfonso Moufang Believed To Have Killed Self with Revolver

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—State Police Sergeant John J. Cassidy said today a body found floating off Hooper's island this morning had been identified by Johnstown, Pa., police ask Dr. Abraham Moufang of Johnstown, who disappeared July 30 from the Old Bay Line steamer Warfield.

The body, with a bullet wound in the head, was clad in brown and white striped pajamas.

Cassidy said identification was made by telephoned descriptions given by police in Cambridge, Md., and Johnstown. Johnstown officers said the pajamas were the only clothes reported missing from Dr. Moufang's effects.

Dr. Moufang's dessing gown and slippers were found on the deck near his stateroom window by a watchman on the Warfield. Seven letters in his stateroom, Cassidy said, indicated suicide. The Warfield was enroute from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va.

The body was discovered near the mouth of the Potomac river—at about the point where Moufang was reported missing—by two crabbers, Mulberry Wingate, and Eugene Wheatley, and taken to Cambridge.

Cassidy said Johnstown police were sending a funeral director to Cambridge to claim the body.

Dr. Joseph K. Shriver, Dorchester county medical examiner, said a bullet had entered the right side of the man's head, coming out on the left side.

Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief state medical examiner, was called from Ocean City, Md., where he was vacationing, to make an autopsy.

U. S. Seeks Friendlier Relations with Russia

New Move Prompted by Japan's Plans To Seize East Asia

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The United States, disturbed by Japan's new "Greater East Asia" policy, appeared tonight to be seeking friendlier relations with Soviet Russia.

After two unusually long conferences with the Soviet ambassador, Constantine Oumansky, within a week, acting secretary of state Summer Welles said today they had discussed many questions involving relations between the two countries.

At the same time, Welles declined to comment in any way on Japanese press reports that the American government had asked Japan to define more clearly its attitude regarding French Indo-China.

Motor Gas for Russia

The Maritime Commission's action yesterday in authorizing two American-owned tankers to take cargoes of Motor gasoline to Russia was linked in some quarters with the government's apparent effort to smoothe out trade and other difficulties with Moscow.

The commission denied applications for two other vessels to take steel and oil to Japan.

Welles, when asked for comment on this, recalled that he told the press about ten days ago that he understood charters would be granted for American ships to go to ports where there was no danger involved.

Definite Turn at Hand

39 Italians Die In Mystery Blast In Powder Works

Explosions Near Genoa Are Unexplained; Inquiry under Way

By The Associated Press

ROME, Aug. 8—Two unexplained explosions killed thirty-nine workers and injured hundreds more today in the Tiatenza munitions works near Genoa as Italian officials hailed successes in the African campaign.

The munitions plant was almost demolished by the separate blasts that caused some destruction in nearby barracks and broke windows throughout the vicinity.

High officials left Rome hastily to investigate.

Authorities quickly organized first aid and began clearing away the debris within a short time after the blasts ended.

Italians Pleased

Meanwhile, officials here exultantly claimed that the Italian capture of the British Somaliland port of Zeila had opened the way to a consolidation of the British and French Somalilands under Fascists arms for an attack on Aden, Britain's protectorate 140 miles across the Gulf of that name.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Fifty-three German planes were declared shot down by British fliers yesterday (Thursday) in the greatest Nazi aerial onslaught against the British island fortress and channel supply lines.

Nazi raiders roared over the channel in uncounted hundreds, attacking in groups of about eighty planes all day long. They rained thousands of bombs on channel shipping. Unofficial estimates said at least 100 German fliers died in the assault.

The British acknowledged the loss of sixteen planes in the fierce dog fights watched by thousands on the coast. Fighters and bombers were seen to plummet into the channel and crash against the rocky coast.

Berlin immediately disputed the claim, saying only three Nazi planes were lost and that thirty-four British planes fell. German spokesmen asserted fifteen ships totaling 72,000 tons were sunk by German bombs.

Ten German radio stations, including one in Berlin, went silent late last night (Thursday), indicating British air raiders were over the country.

Bomb German Base

British raiders bombed the German naval base at Kiel early yesterday. Pilots reported fires and explosions resulted. They also attacked the Nazi-held French port of Cherbourg in their attempts to smash German concentrations.

As the fighting raged along the coast British leaders in Parliament appealed to rich India for aid. They held forth the prospect of "free and equal partnership" in the British commonwealth of nations after the war if that vast multilingual territory would contribute in the fight for the "world cause at stake."

Indian nationalist leaders were silent. Hundreds of Indian potentates who hold their thrones through Britain already have made contributions to the Empire's war treasury.

Appeal to India

The appeal to India was made when Italian infantrymen were fighting their way across British Somaliland in East Africa toward Berbera, British port on the Gulf of Aden from British Aden in Asia.

In the last few days the Fascists, assisted by native troops occupied Zeila, British Somaliland port near French Somaliland, and other hinterland towns. Their object is to gain all Somaliland with a 2,500-mile coastline fronting on the southeastern entrance to the Red Sea which connects with the Suez canal.

British troops were ready to make a stand in mountain passes south of Berbera. They minimized the strategic importance of Italian gains, and kept another eye on Italians massed on the Libyan-Egyptian border.

Germany declared Britain is responsible for feeding the populations in German-occupied countries be-

James A. Farley Resigns Post in FDR's Cabinet

President Accepts It in Unusually Friendly Letter

SLATED TO BECOME PRESIDENT OF YANKEES

But May Take Position as President of Willys-Overland

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley handed in his portfolio as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet today, and a long political and official alliance between "Smiling Big Jim" and the chief he affectionately called "F.D." thus came to an end.

James A. Farley

To the big happy Irishman who twice led his campaigns for the White House President Roosevelt sent an exceedingly friendly letter accepting the resignation, effective Aug. 31.

Farley has persistently been reported planning to a head a syndicate to buy the New York Yankee baseball team, although other reports have linked him with the possible management of the Willys-Overland motors, Inc.

It was "Big Jim" who was the guiding genius of the campaign which put Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House in 1933. It was he who directed the highly successful 1936 campaign which brought the president four more years in ofice.

Differed with "The Boss"

But in recent months, when it became increasingly apparent that Mr. Roosevelt would accept renomination, Farley was reported frequently to have differed with "the boss" on the third term issue.

Then, at the Democratic convention in Chicago last month, he an-

Italians Likely To Attack Egypt, London Declares

Drive through Somaliland only a Feint, British Spokesmen Think

By LARRY ALLEN

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 8 (AP)—British spokesmen expressed the conviction tonight that the Italian drive through British Somaliland toward the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean was merely a feint to hide preparations for a grand assault on Egypt.

Admitting Fascist gains in Somaliland, Britons nevertheless said the Italians' main effort would be to break Britain's stranglehold on Mediterranean Sea routes by which water and other necessities must be carried to Italian Africa.

Also, as long as Britain holds Egypt and the Suez Canal, Italy has neither effective sea nor land connection with her Ethiopian empire.

The real big push, they said, would come in mid-August.

The Italians were reported facing a dwindling water supply in blockaded Libya, a land largely of burning deserts where water is as vital as bullets.

Water From Italy

Virtually all the water used by Italy's sand-whipped troops in eastern Libya has been transported from Italy, it was asserted, in specially-constructed water tankers, dodging the British blockade.

A deep thrust into Egypt would solve one of Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's problems by opening the way for new supplies of water and oil.

Egypt's position in the anticipated action remained a debated question.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion hurling 800 Nazi bombers and fighter planes against Britain's outer defenses was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of almost constant fighting.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion launched by uncounted hundreds of German planes was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of intermittent battle and at least fifty-three of the raiding Nazi craft were reported shot down.

More than 100 trained Nazi pilots, observers and air gunners were declared to have gone down to flaming death in the British counter-fire.

The Germans appeared in numbers unprecedented for this war, attacking over and over again all day long in forces of eighty each, and dropping thousands upon thousands of bombs.

British fighter planes, meeting the greatest assault ever made on these islands, threw up for the mainland a shield which was not broken.

Record Incomplete

Tonight, as the air ministry still was assembling the record of this gigantic engagement, German planes were reported again over the southeast coast, and also over Wales and two towns in the southwest of England.

In the last three of the day's main attacks—attacks concentrated on shipping in the channel—the Germans loosed 150 dive bombers and fighters at one convoy.

Of the tentative total of raiders shot down, nineteen were dive bombers and thirty-four fighters.

Each wave of bombers were screened by fighter planes—many of them the new Heinkels, Germany's counter-weapon to the British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

It was the heaviest one-day loss ever claimed against the Nazis in the war for Britain's skies. The previous high was on July 12, when the British announced the destruction of twenty-six German raiders.

But in this day-long series of thunderous, running and almost endless engagements along the southeast coast, the British suffered too, acknowledging that sixteen fighter pilots were missing, that "several ships" in the channel had received "considerable damage" and that "a number of survivors and injured" had been landed.

(The Germans claimed thirty-four British planes were destroyed and twelve ships totalling 55,000 tons were sunk. They acknowledged the loss of only three Nazi planes.)

15 British Ships Sunk in Channel, Germany Asserts

Seven Others Damaged by Fleets of German Planes and Ships

BERLIN, Aug. 8 (AP)—A tornadic attack on British shipping and airpower today by Germany's fliers and speedboats sank fifteen ships in the English channel, the high command announced tonight, damaged seven others and downed thirty-four British planes.

A speedboat raid on a "strongly protected enemy convoy" during the night sent to the bottom an 8,000-ton tanker and two steamers totaling 9,000 tons, a special communique said, while bombers swooping down on another convoy this afternoon sank twelve ships totaling 55,000 tons and damaged seven others.

Thus in the space of twenty-four hours an aggregate of 72,000 tons of British shipping space was reported destroyed.

Tanker Set Afire

During the speedboat raid, which the communique said was hotly contested by British destroyers, the tiny torpedo-carrying craft also set one tanker afire.

All of the speedboats were reported to have returned safely.

Five of the thirty-four British planes shot down were pursuit

Government To Probe Alleged Use Of "Slush Funds" by Big Utilities

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The justice department announced today that it would undertake grand jury investigations of the alleged use of political "slush funds" by public utilities companies at St. Louis, Springfield, Ill., Des Moines, Iowa, and "perhaps in other federal judicial districts."

The companies to be investigated were listed by the department as Union Electric Company of Missouri, Illinois Iowa Power Company, Missouri Power and Light Company, all subsidiaries in the Insull North American Company holding system.

Defer Other Probes

The Securities Commission announced at the same time that he had deferred for the present a proposed public investigation of the North American company and Union Electric pending the grand jury inquiry.

The justice department said the grand juries would investigate "information that Union Electric Company of Missouri and certain associated companies have violated provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Public Utility Holding Company Act, the maill fraud statute, the Federal Corrupt Practices Act and other federal criminal statutes by making and keeping false records for the purpose of cheating a so-called slush fund and using this fund to make contributions to candidates for election to federal and state offices.

Action Follows Inquiry

The department said that its action was based on information obtained during an SEC investigation of Union Electric and also on testomony at the trial in St. Louis on Frank J. Boehm, former vice president of the company, who was convicted of perjury and sentenced to five years in prison because of false testimony during the commission's inquiry."

U. S. May Seize Some of French Money "Frozen" in New York City

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The first hope in many years of collecting a substantial sum on the $14,500,000,000 World War debt arose today when Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that the government was studying the question of seizing some of the French funds "frozen" in this country.

At a press conference, the secretary made it plain that the administration has not decided what to do with the frozen assets, but asserted that before they were released he wanted "to see what happens to American investments and debts over there."

Includes All Debts

He included the war debts owed to the government, with all business and other private debts, in this statement.

Previously he had discussed the chance that the frozen funds might be used to reimburse Americans for destruction of property in invaded countries, but today was the first time he acknowledged that war debt collection also was under study.

The frozen funds are unofficially estimated at $3,500,000,000. They belong to the invaded countries of Europe. France owes $4,200,000,000 on war debts, Poland $267,000,000 and Belgium $460,000,000.

This method, apparently, could not be used to collect the $5,600,000,000 owed by Great Britain, $2,025,000,000 owed by Italy, $1,300,000,000 owed by Germany, or $400,000,000 owed by Russia.

List Is Announced

The list of countries whose American assets have been impounded subject to special treasury license before they can be removed from this country includes France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. Officials declined to say how much of each country's funds were held, or what they totaled.

Morgenthau, again emphasizing that he did not yet know what would be done with the funds said: "I am just sitting on them and waiting to see what will happen. I am sure no American will lose by it."

Infections Are Often Spread by Finger Tips

Physician Says Small Abrasions of Skin Should Not Be Neglected

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Experience emphasizes over and over again that even small abrasions on the skin should not be neglected. Many a case of blood poisoning has resulted from a blister on the heel from tennis, or a small splinter in the finger tip. Any cut or scratch should be washed gently with cotton dipped in alcohol and when dry painted with iodine or mercurochrome. If there is any bleeding, bandage with sterile gauze.

Yesterday we asked what two places on the body were the most dangerous for skin infections. The answer is finger tip infections and upper lip and nose infections.

Easier Carriers

The fingers are well supplied with lymphatics and these carry infection up the arm into the blood stream—so-called blood poisoning. Its path may be seen in the little red lines under the skin from the point of infection to the arm pit. The lymph glands—kernels—in the armpit or above the elbow may be enlarged—also an indication of spreading infection.

The finger tip is a dangerous site for infection, also because of its anatomy. Along the finger under the skin and above the bone and going into the palm of the hand are closed sacs of fascia—sheaths for the tendons of the muscles which perform the fine movements of the fingers. These are easily infected and leave, after the infection is conquered, considerable crippling and disability.

Other forms of infection of the fingers include felons which are extension of pus to the periosterum of the bone.

Prompt Dressing

To avoid all these dangers treat every injury and abrasion to the skin of the fingers, especially finger tips, with respect which means prompt sterilization and dressing.

The upper lip infections are particularly dangerous because the blood suply of that region leads directly to the great blood sinuses of the brain, and infection may follow this path causing septic sinus thrombosis, an almost always fatal condition. Such infections should be treated by a physician and above all should not be rubbed or touched or handled.

Furuncles of the nose have the same tendency. Small furuncles inside the nose usually come from an infected hair follicle. Lowered vitality or diabetes or some other chronic disease predispose to this sort of infection and the condition is commoner in older people. Erysipelas, also an infection predominantly of older people, may follow from such furuncles or little boils in the nose.

New Summer Beverage

Cinnamon-flavored coffee is something new in the way of a summer beverage. Pour cold coffee, rather strong, into the trays of the refrigerator. Sprinkle lightly with powdered cinnamon and freeze as usual. Use 3 cubes to each glass of coffee, top off with a dash of vanilla ice cream or vanilla-flavored whipped cream and you have Mocha Float.

Production Rate For Warplanes Is 10,800 Yearly

And Will Pass the 18,000 a Year Mark Jan. 1, Knudsen Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—William S. Knudsen, production chief of the National Defense Commission, reported to the nation tonight that United States production of warplanes had reached a rate of 10,800 a year and would pass the 18,000-a-year mark by next January.

He made this report of progress toward President Roosevelt's goal of 50,000 planes a year in a nation-wide radio broadcast.

This broadcast, in which Knudsen and other members of the commission gave a detailed accounting of the defense program, closely followed publication of a commission report showing that its production division had cleared $1,792,000,000 of army and navy contracts in the past two months. The dates on which the products involved in the contracts will be delivered were not announced.

In response to a radio commentator's question about plane production, Knudsen said:

Higher Rate Next Year

"Present production is approximately 900 planes per month. By January first the number will have risen to 1,500 planes and the volume will increase steadily thereafter. You might also be interested in knowing that in January 56,800 people were employed in aircraft factories. Today the number is nearer 75,000."

Other commission officials said that the present production of 900 planes a month and the expected production of 1,500 next January included the planes being made in this country for Britain.

Knudsen denied that no combat planes had been contracted for out of money appropriated by Congress up to August 1, declaring the navy had contracted for $7,000,000 worth of such planes in July.

"I would like to add," Knudsen continued, "that of money made available to us on July 1, five weeks ago, contracts have already been awarded for forty-five percent of the entire army funds and seventy-five percent of the navy's funds."

Uniforms for 400,000 Men

Knudsen was asked whether sufficient equipment would be available for an army of 400,000 men this fall, in the vent the compulsory service law were passed, or other measures were enacted to create such a force.

"If you mean uniforms, other clothing and general equipment, the answer is yes," he said.

Asked when deliveries could be expected on the combat material in which the commission was interested, he replied:

"I expect that the tooling up process will more or less take up the balance of this fall, but by January substantial deliveries of most of the material should commence and by spring 1941 production should be going at a good rate."

Points made by other members of the commission included:

Sidney Hillman, labor member—About 80,000 persons are taking training for jobs in defense industries. Would-be trainees should apply to their nearest state employment office.

40,000 Men in Shipyards

The shipbuilding industry is now employing almost 40,000 more people than at the ten-year peak in 1937; the aircraft industry is employing 50,000 more; the machine tool industry is employing 18,000 more, and the same is true of the engine industry.

Chester Davis, in charge of the agricultural division—

"No defense program can succeed if farm income and prices are not maintained at a level which will keep the farm plant healthy in the defense front. Existing machinery developed during the past seven years is available to do this job."

Leon Henderson, in charge of the division of price stabilization—

"The president wants to avoid the familiar price spiral—like he saw in the last war—where wages, the cost of living and prices skyrocketed up and left the country with a post-war headache."

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in charge of the raw materials division—

"A railroad in Brazil will have to be built to obtain needed supplies of high-grade manganese—an indispensable alloy for the manufacture of steel.

The commission is discussing with industry plans for the production of emergency supplies of synthetic rubber, which "for certain purposes—including some airplane parts—is definitely superior to crude rubber."

Karl W. Fischer, assistant to Ralph Budd, in charge of the transportation division—

Steps already are being taken to strengthen 2,000 bridges in the country's 80,000-mile network of strategic highways so that they will carry the heaviest military equipment.

Gontrum Urged State Safety Code To Replace Existing Local Laws

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8. (AP)—Enactment by the next legislature of a state safety code which would take precedence over dozens of existing local laws, was recommended to a sub-committee of the legislative council today by John B. Gontrum, state insurance commissioner.

The proposed code would give the state authority to define and correct fire hazards and regulate the manufacture, use, sale and storage of petroleum and explosives.

And, as one of its most important features, it would regulate the sale and use of fireworks throughout the state. This section of the code, Gontrum said, would be similar to the proposed fireworks legislation that was rejected by the legislature at its last session.

Gontrum told the sub-committee that existing laws relating to fireworks amounted to "a crazy quilt of local legislation" and declared that the insurance commissioner is prevented in many cases "from carrying out the most elementary safety provisions."

Refers to Conflict

The commissioner called attention to an incident several months ago when he attempted to promulgate a set of fireworks regulations for the state, but was reversed by a court ruling that gave local legislation precedence over regulations set forth by the insurance commissioner's office.

A similar situation exists in relation to five hazards throughout the state, Gontrum asserted. While his department can recommend regulations on fire escapes and other safety measures, it is without authority to enforce any rules that conflict with local laws.

The proposed state law, he said, would be in effect everywhere except in cases where local governments had more stringent rules and regulations.

Other proposals given the sub-committee for possible recommendation to the legislative council included:

New Fire Regulations

Complete organization of the fire marshal's department, proving an additional deputy insurance commissioner who would serve as fire marshal;

A law setting up qualifications for insurance adjusters, and granting the insurance commissioner discretionary power to refuse licenses to insure companies"on grounds of public policy or in the public interest;"

Amendment of the present law, so the state could impose a premium tax of five per cent on all classes of unauthorized insurance except life, health and accident insurance; this would include property-risk, workman's compensation and race horse insurance, bankers' blanket, fidelity and surety bonds;

Authority to impose fines—instead of suspension alone, as at present—on agent, solicitors and brokers found guilty of misconduct in this business;

A minimum rating for bonds in which insurance companies invest their reserves.

Gontrum also took up the question of over-insurance, which he said some experts believe "places a premium on arson." He said that while some states had enacted a fixed value policy law to meet this situation, he believed the problem could be handled best through the cooperation of the fire insurance companies. Should they fail to work out a solution, he said, then some remedial legislation should be considered.

Soviet relations since Welles two weeks ago condemned the Russian acquisition of the three small Baltic countries—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Corresponding with the apparent efforts to eliminate friction with Soviet Russia was increasing concern over Japan's intentions under the new Konoye government.

With Japan still viling the specific objectives of its new policy, some diplomatic sources considered the American conversations with Russia as a move to restrain Tokyo.

Roosevelt Given

Can Call Out Officers

Besides authorizing mobilization of 227,000 national guardsmen, the measure empowers the chief executive to call out 116,000 reserve officers, about 38,000 reserve enlisted men, 3,700 retired officers and 12,000 retired enlisted men. Army officials have said, however, that immediate plans call for mustering only a portion of these forces.

After passage of the bill the Senate, still smarting under a week of turbulent and caustic debate, squared away for a possibly historic battle over the issue of civilian conscription, presented in a bill calling upon all men between twenty-one and thirty, inclusive, to register for the nation's first peace-time military draft.

Active Service Possible

During the debate on the national guard bill, critics made much of certain wording in it. They asserted Mr. Roosevelt and the war department had said the guard should be mobilized for "training" but that the bill which the president sent to the capitol called for "active military service."

But administration leaders were in command of the situation at all times, and beat back the opposition's two principal attempts to modify the measure. One was the amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) limiting the guardsmen's area of operation.

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) fought alongside administration forces in opposition to this amendment. He contended the president should have broad authority to act quickly in an emergency situation and send troops to other lands if necessary to the protection of the United States or the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine.

In reply to this, Senator Chandler (D-Ky.) asserted the Monroe Doctrine had been construed to cover so much territory that it was doubtful it could be enforced. He could not see why the United States would have to go to war, if some other nation took over the island of Trinidad, owned by Great Britain, for instance.

"I want to see us strong enough," Austin replied, "so that if Germany wins she will not dare to take Trinidad or any other possession in the Western Hemisphere."

Vote Is Very Close

So close was the vote on the Adams amendment that an excited flurry followed, with administration forces seeking to table a motion to reconsider and advocates of the amendment calling for a quorum call.

Senator Clark (D-Mo), a master parliamentary strategist, produced a motion to recommit the bill to the military committee with instructions that it write the Adams amendment into it and report the measure to the Senate at once.

The strategem failed. A roll call showed even fewer senators for the Adams amendment in its new than in its original form. The Clark motion was beaten forty-five to thirty-one.

The other attempted restriction was rejected yesterday, with the defeat of an amendment by Senator Danaher (R-Conn), which would have given all the men involved the privilege of resigning, and thus avoiding compulsory service.

However, today at the instance of Chairman Pittman (D-Nev) of the foreign relations committee, a compromise was struck on this point, and the Senate accepted unanimously the provision giving the resignation privilege only to men with wives or children dependent on their earnings.

Bermuda Society Women Curtsy to Duke of Windsor, Not to His Wife

By MORTON P. GUDEBROD

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 8 (AP)—Two of the highest placed matrons of official Bermuda society, in welcoming the Windsors to Britain-in-the-Western Hemisphere today, curtsied to the duke but not to his American-born twice-divorced duchess.

As pace-setters of the Colonial social set, they apparently established the punctilio that will prevail: the bended knee for his royal highness, a friendly bow to the commoner duchess.

The women who thus made the to-curtsy-or-not-to-curtsy choice are Mrs. Hastings Brooke, sister of Major-General Denis Kirwin Bernard, governor of Bermuda, and the wife of Admiral Sir Charles Kennedy-Purvis, commander of the Royal navy's American and West Indies squadron.

Chat With the Duchess

There was, of course, no dreadful pause and the two women soon found themselves in animated conversation with the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield for whom Edward VIII gave up a throne.

The American export liner Excalibur, bearing the Windsors from Lisbon, Portugal, anchored off Hamilton in early afternoon.

"The ship made a special stop here so the Windsors and their entourage could proceed more directly to the Bahamas where the Duke will be governor and commander-in-chief of British armed forces.

Thousands lined the shore as the Excalibur pulled in and cheers rose from a throng of about 1,000 which crowded the Royal Yacht club lawn, near the jetty where the Windsors stepped ashore from a tender.

The duke, tanned and boyish in gray serge, came ashore first.

Major-General Bernard,* Admiral Sir Charles Kennedy-Purvis, their ladies and other officialdom met him. The ladies curtsied low as he smiled in recognition of cheers and hand-clapping from the crowd.

Guard Salutes Duke

Then the duke snapped to attention while an honor guard gave the Royal salute at present arms and the band played "God Save the King."

The duchess wore a printed satin-backed crepe of pink and blue of all-over design with a full length coat of royal blue crepe, its elbow-length sleeves hanging straight from her shoulders.

The duke wore a tab-colored shirt with his gray suit, an Oxford University tie and tan and white sports shoes. He carried an ordinary straw hat with black band.

Twice the duke passed along the ranks of soldiers, sailors and marines which made up the honor guard, stopping occasionally to chat with one of the men.

The entire ceremonies at the Royal Yacht club took little more than five minutes. The party then drove directly to government house where they will remain until going to Nassau.

Kerr and Snead Lead In Open Golf Tourney

FORT ERIE, Ont., Aug. 8 (AP)—Bill Kerr, stocky professional of the Toronto Hunt Club, and Slammin' Sam Snead, shared the lead tonight at the halfway mark of the eighteenth annual Ontario open golf championship. Both carded eighteen-hole totals of seventy-one, one under par.

Snead, the West Virginian who now is located at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., was one of four Americans who qualified for the final eighteen holes tomorrow along with twelve Canadians.

Snead, a former Canadian open champion, had trouble on the first hole and toured the first nine in thirty-seven. He came in with a par-shattering thirty-four.

Carroll County To Double Willkie Workers

WESTMINSTER, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—The county and State Central Republican Committees decided tonight to double the number of district and precinct workers in Carroll county for the duration of the Willkie campaign.

The decision will give the county 312 precinct workers. The new workers will be known as the "Willkie group", and will not hold their posts after the election.

About 175 persons, described by County Chairman Sherman E. Flanagan as the largest ever to attend a meeting so early in a campaign, were present for the strategy-drafting session.

British Remove Mail From American Ship

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 8 (AP)—British censors removed 120 to 700 bags of mail today from the American export liner Excalibur which went out of its way to land the Duke and Duchess of Windsor here en route to his new post as governor and commander-in-chief of the Bahama Islands.

Taxibikes

WARSAW (AP)—Call a taxi in Warsaw and up may come not a taxi as Americans know them, but a chair on wheels pushed by a bicycle.

Shortage of gasoline and automobiles since her defeat in the war has compelled Poland to use manpower to propel many of her vehicles. Bicycle taxis have taximeters and head lamps, but not much speed. Fortunately, most of Poland is flat, so hills present no problems for man-motors.

15 British Ships

planes participating in this afternoon's battle over the channel, the high command said, while the other twenty-nine—also pursuit craft—were bagged "during additional air skirmishes in the course of the afternoon."

The German announcement admitted loss of three German planes.

Propaganda Continues

At the same time another round was fired in the propaganda duel over who is to blame if Europe goes hungry.

Dienst Aus Reutschland, the authoritative news commentary published in Berlin, denied British press assertions that Germany is responsible for feeding the populations of Germany-occupied countries.

England really is responsible, the Dienst said, declaring England drew them into the war against Germany.

It denied British assertions that Adolph Hitler in his recent Reichstag speech had said "the feeding of Europe is assured," and said that what he did say was that the German food supply was assured.

The commentary insisted that American Red Cross shipments to persons in the occupied areas were being delivered without hindrance from German authorities.

39 Italians Die

Africa, it was declared, would give Italy a 2,500-mile continuous coastline along the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean.

The strategy thus projected would be intended not only to break the vital British empire communications, but to obtain the two great riches of oil and cotton—oil in the British-controlled Mosul filed; cotton in British Sudan.

Italians Near Berbera

Italian armored columns in British Somaliland were declared today to be well on the road to Berbera, the biggest port in the protectorate, accompanied by bombers. Its seizure would prevent a third possible naval base against British Aden—in addition to Zeila, if it is held, and Jibuti, in French Somaliland.

(The British said in London that Italy might be allowed "a cheap victory" in British Somaliland; that Britain might withdraw her forces from the desert wastes not considered worth defending.)

New destructive bombardments of Haifa, the British outlet to the Mosul oil fields, were declared to have destroyed 100,000 tons of oil.

Group of Democrats Will Back Radcliffe And Wendell Willkie

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Formation of a Democratic organization opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt, but supporting Senator George L. Radcliffe for re-election, was announced today by Herbert M. Brune, independent candidate for governor in 1938.

Brune said registration figures show that "only through the assistance of Democrats" can Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard-bearer, "carry Maryland in November." He charged Roosevelt "seeks to establish in America the one-man, one-party system which has been the scourge of Europe."

Brune said he supported Roosevelt for re-election in 1936.

Plans for establishment of headquarters in each precinct for distribution of Willkie buttons and campaign literature were announced by the Republican City Committee.

Many Fishermen Enter Crisfield Contest

Crisfield, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Anglers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, and other nearby states got their rods and reels and favorite fishing clothes ready today for a sporting week end in the Chesapeake Bay fishing fair grand contest.

Advance reservations for rooms, boats, and guides indicate the fair will be one of the "best yet," said Capt. George Clifton Charnock, a director of the Fshing Fair Association.

Boat captains and guides were ready to take fishermen to choice locations in the two-day contest starting Saturday.

Officials said they anticipate from 6,000 to 10,000 sport-fishermen to participate in the two-day fishing jamboree.

A parade, street dances, community singing, sightseeing trips to points in Crisfield and on the bay—including Tangier and Smith's Island—crab feasts, and exhibits by seafood industries round out the program.

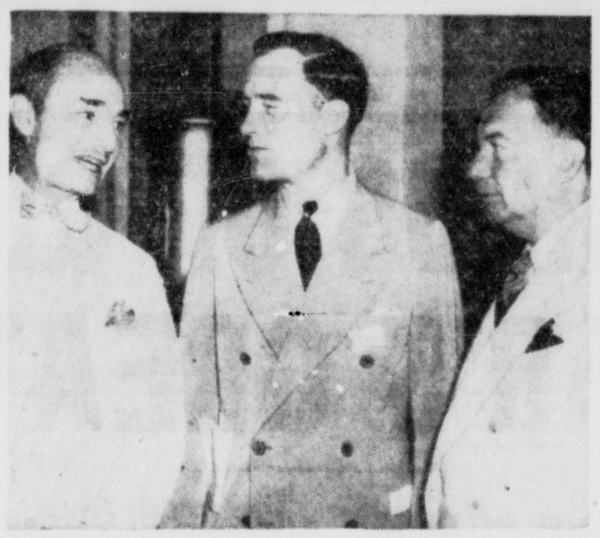

Burglars Steal Safe For Second Time

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP)—For the second time in fifteen months burglars hauled away a filling station safe.

On the previous occasion, Herbert L. White, station manager, and police found the missing safe on a county lane. Late today they visited the same place but the safe was not there.

"They must have changed spots on me," White commented.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

While Italy presses her drive to bulk of her air force into the fight and achieve a numerical superiority as great, or possibly greater, than that which Germany is able to mass for the long-delayed attack on England.

Tank Warfare Unlikely

Informed military men say tank warfare, or mechanized "blitzkrieg" in any form, is inconceivable in desert terrain, with temperatures running to 120 degrees in the shade.

It is by air routes, therefore, that Italy must hope to supply her troops across the Mediterranean and to transport them swiftly over the deserts of Egypt.

Yet Fascist leaders appear to be risking an unpredictable strain on their air resources. Aside from reserve stores of gasoline, oil, water and other materials at the Italian bases across the Mediterranean, virtually everything must be ferried by air from Italy.

With so huge a task of supply and transport confronting it on its own near eastern offensive front, it is highly doubtful that the Italian high command can lend much aerial assistance to Germany in any attack on England proper. On the contrary, there are seemingly authentic reports that Germany has already contributed special types of fighting aircraft to Italy for the Suez campaign.

Count on Other Factors

Obviously Britain counts on other factors to hold Suez—on seapower, experience in desert fighting, native troops and, above all, on the waterless sands of Egypt. Any Italian offensive must conquer these sands to reach the canal.

The more a layman studies the possibilities of the Italian attack the more it becomes clear that a test of sea power versus air power is coming. It is only by air that Italy can hope to supply her armies and get them forward decisively against the outnumbered but firmly-entrenched British defenders. British sea power balks any other form of offensive.

Presumably Italy can throw the land, threatening Egypt and driving for the Indian ocean along Britain's lifeline of empire.

Nothing was said officially as to the extent of aid which India could give in this most critical hour in British history, but that aid could be tremendous—Indian gold and supplies and unlimited numbers of Indian troops.

The new policy toward the continent whose people make up nearly three-fourths of all the half-billion subjects of King George probably will be debated in the House of Commons next Wednesday, said Clement Attlee, a government parliamentary spokesman.

Inquisitive Communist

As he made the announcement William Gallacher, a Communist member, demanded:

"Is Mr. Amery not aware that the closing of the Burma road has had a disastrous effect on feeling in India?"—a reference to the fact that the Churchill government recently agreed, in a gesture toward Japan, to halt munitions shipments to China over that route for three months.

Amery made no answer, for the speaker held that Gallacher had interjected "a matter of opinion—not a question."

This new gesture for Indian solidarity in behalf of the empire was heard with caution and reserve by nationalist leaders in India, but drew favorable comment from the Independent and Liberal party heads.

American Airlines Officials Probing Slugging of Gi

Stewardess Attacked b Unknown Man Just Before Landing

NASHVILLE, TENN., Aug. 8 (AP) American airlines officials toni investigated the reported sluggi of a sky sleeper stewardess by a unidentified person shortly befo the westbound plane landed he last night.

The stewardess, 24-year old Ro mary Griffith of Flushing, N. was recovering in a hospital he from the blow on the head an other bruises.

Paul Stanley, local sales manag for the airline, talked with h this morning and late today ga out a statement that Miss Griffi had told him of being accosted the ladies lounge by a man who de manded a key she had to the ma express and baggage compartmen "Give me the key," the pretti blonde stewardess said the ma whispered. "Give me the key or I slug you."

Swallows Key

Miss Griffith told Stanley she wa leaning over in a corner of th lounge at the time. She fell to the floor "as if under a heav blow," and then swallowed the ke Shortly afterward passengers found her unconscious.

Doctors reported the stewardess had scratches and bruises on one leg and one arm. They said she was "too nervous" to be questioned further. The airline official's statement was given out after he conferred with company officials in New York.

Stanley reported Miss Griffith said she didn't remember anything after falling from the blow. At the hospital she was guarded from unofficial visitors. One newsman, however, gained admission and chatted with her about other subjects. Her only reference to the experience was "it was awful."

Not Valuable Cargo

Roy Mitchell, assistant operations manager, who came here from New York to handle the inquiry, said the ship's cargo consisted only of mail, express and passengers and "nothing of especial value as far as I know now."

"When this investigation is completed," he said, "I will give a complete, detailed account of the case."

Miss Griffith has been in the service three years.

nounced his resignation as Democratic National Chairman.

In an exchange of letters, released at the temporary White House both Farley and the president expressed keen regret that the postmaster general had found it necessary to return to private enterprise.

"All of us in the administration will miss you deeply; we count on seeing you often," Mr. Roosevelt wrote. "I especially count on this after all of our years of close personal association. Our friendship will always continue."

Farley Sends Regards

Farley omitted such warm expressions from his letter of resignation, but closed it with "kindest personal regards."

"I know that it will please you," he told the president, "to learn that I have made definite arrangements for my future in private business where I know I shall be very happy."

His letter was for the most part a recitation of what the postal service had accomplished under his guidance.

"First of all," the chief executive asserted in reply, "I want to tell you of my own sincere sorrow that we are losing you as a member of the official family.

"At the same time, as I have told you, I fully understand and appreciate the personal reasons which recall you to private business after all these unselfish years in the public service. I congratulate you on your new work and send you every wish that it may, in every way be successful."

He added that the post office department, in Farley's administration, had made great strides in business efficiency, public service and in bettering the morale of more than 300,000 employes.

"That the post office service is on a completely self-sustaining basis with respect to that part that is rendered to the public for hire," he said, "is in itself a real tribute to you and your associates."

German Stations Go Off the Air

Nine Stop Broadcasting as Precaution against Air Raids

LONDON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Nine German and German-controlled radio stations, including one in Berlin, went off the air late tonight—a normal indication of precaution against British air raids.

Those falling silent were Stuttgart, Brussels, Cologne, Hilversum, Leipzig, Berlin, Strasbourg, Frankfort and Saarbruecken.

It was the largest number of German stations to cease transmission without explanation since the beginning of the war.

military and naval leaders—is not known except for recent pronouncements by members of the Konoye government as too Japan's future role of leadership in "greater East Asia."

However, the Tokyo government is believed by foreign sources here to be in favor of forceful steps. The belief is growing in Japan that, regardless of who wins the European war, the victor will not be inclined to hand over far eastern colonies to Japan out of sheer generosity.

Along with the expansionist stirring the Japanese empire, came these reports:

TOKYO—One hundred and twenty-six members of the Japanese Diet's 466 members adopted a resolution urging the government to take "all available and effective measures to drive British influence from East Asia."

HANOI, French-Indo China—General Issaku Nishihara, head of a Japanese economic mission, was reported flying back to Hanoi after consultation with Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye in Tokyo for continuation of economic negotiations.

Resistance Stiffens

A stiffening of resistance to Japanese wishes appeared in announcement of a decision to reopen transit routes through Indo-China for Chinese exports. A month ago Indo-China agreed to seal her border with China and it was stipulated that outgoing Chinese shipments would be halted for one month.

One explanation of this slight display of French resistance to Japan was that the Vichy government, with Berlin's approval, favored putting a brake on the Japanese.

One informant raised the possibility that Hitler desired to preserve all the bargaining advantages he now holds, in favor of an ultimate broader settlement with Japan, perhaps embracing Batavia, in the Dutch East Indies.

Weighty Objections Against Conscription

IMPRESSIVE, indeed, are the objections to conscription listed by Mark Sullivan in his dispatch published on this page today.

What is declared to be needed for carrying out the plans in hand for an adequate national defense is an addition to the regular army of, roughly, a million men. There are some 10,000,000 unemployed anxious to obtain jobs of any sort. Some of these are women, but, as noted in Sullivan's letter, it is reasonable to assume that one out of ten of these would meet the army requirements. Furthermore, the army, as a peace-time organization which is not expected to be called into war service by reason of the argument that adequate national defense will make that unnecessary, represents a good job. Its pay is not so niggardly when it is considered that clothing and subsistence are supplied and that increased remuneration is contemplated.

Now, the question is indeed pertinent why we should take workers out of their present productive occupations by compulsion if there is plenty of available material available. As noted in the listing presented by Sullivan, this material is available in larger number than is needed in the CCC, the NYA, the WPA and the other jobless not included in any of these organizations.

Another thing to be considered is the assertion so frequently repeated by draft advocates that conscription is the "only" democratic way. That, as Sullivan says, certainly needs to be proved. Many are firmly of the conviction that it is somewhat the opposite in that it tends to build up a huge and costly standing army and thus pave the way toward dictatorship.

Furthermore, the motive behind conscription needs searching investigation. Have the ideas of those who have been so assiduously and insiduously working toward socialistic theories of government, if not totalitarianism, anything to do with the ding-donging for it?

Certainly in view of all these strong objections, the national conscription bill should not be rushed through in a frenzy of fright and without due consideration of all that it involves.

Eating What Is Set In Front of One

VITAMINS and diets are but academic ideas to the man who tells a reporter: "Half the time I don't know what I eat. I'm no gourmet. I eat what's set in front of me, which is the way I was brought up."

It is important that the man who eats what's set in front of him is the candidate of a major party for president of the United States, his name being Wendell L. Willkie. It is more important that thousands of other citizens can say the same, being individuals less finicky about their personal comfort than about what they do and how they do it.

"It's the way I was brought up," says the candidate, in those seven words preaching a sermon against coddling. No youngster brought up to eat what is set in front of him becomes the spoiled child. He makes acquaintance early with practical values, with duties along with rights. He is on the path to a sound mind in a sound body.

Sound minds and sound bodies are abundant in this nation and will become even more abundant if the nation is put to the test. Sound minds and sound bodies are at a premium when the time arrives for a democracy to take inventory and safeguard itself in a world upside down.

Soft living has weakened more than one people and the United States, even in the midst of depression, has had perhaps more than its share of soft living. But the fiber of the nation ought to be unimpaired because so many of its citizens can still say with the candidate they were brought up to eat what was set in front of them.

Interesting Motor Cars Promised

THE NEWS that filters out of the automobile plants indicates the 1941 line of cars will be one of the most interesting ever to come off assembly lines.

The chief engineer for one of the largest companies remarked recently that designing engineers have been busier the last few months than ever before. He said all companies have been applying unlimited money and brains to produce cars so interesting every motorist will be impelled to buy a new model.

Tales of radical innovations are being circulated. It is doubtful if many will reach the public this year. The word is most are not yet ready to be put into hands of owner-drivers.

The new cars will be characterized by better performance, increased economy and improved safety. Bodies will be roomier and a step nearer streamlined forms. They will have the functional lines of airplanes and speedboats—the clean beauty of precision machines designed to yield utmost efficiency.

In driving for better business by giving buyers better-performing cars of more striking beauty the automobile industry is simply following the tradition that has made it the model for American business enterprise.

If other industries exhibited as much competitive spirit—showed as much consideration for buyers and their pocketbooks—there would be less talk in this country of monopolies and business depressions.

Keeping their objective of constantly offering a new and better product always in view, the motor makers do not overlook the importance of advertising the perfected product. Advertising has been developed into a fine art by manufacturers of automobiles. In fact, but for advertising it is doubtful whether the total number of automobiles in the United States today would approach one-half its present figure of 30,000,000.

Advertising—especially newspaper advertising—has brought the auto industry to its present state and has been responsible for the employment of millions of men in factories, garages and gas stations.

Useful Service Is Found For Color-Blindness

COLOR-BLINDNESS has long been considered one of the more serious defects in candidates for certain branches of military service and other occupations where the ability to distinguish shades is essential. This is especially true of aviation, for pilots must be able to recognize the various colored ground lights, particularly at night, and colored flares used as signals. For this reason color-blind recruits have been turned down.

The United States Army Air Corps has now discovered accidentally that it has been missing a trick. It all happened because an artilleryman was taken up as observer along with army pilots in an effort to discover how well the camouflage artists had succeeded in making forty guns indistinguishable from the air. A normal pilot could spot only ten of them, but the artilleryman nailed every one of the forty. When he landed, he confessed that he was color-blind.

As a result of this, the Army School of Aviation Medicine discovered that for some reason color-blind persons see right through the ordinary type of camouflage. Right away it began making a new index of applicants turned down for this peculiar "defect." Although color-blind flyers may never be allowed to pilot planes, as observers they would prove a great asset in time of war.

In fact, an entirely different system of camouflage may have to be devised if the color-blind observer is to be fooled. If a chap loaned by the artillery can take a hop and locate forty guns without a slip, the job of concealing hangers, planes, fortifications and other materials of war will be a lot harder in the future, for this is something the United States can hardly keep a secret.

Our First Duty Is To Ourselves

IF the nation is really in earnest about building up a war defense organization, why should there be hesitancy on the part of government about taking such steps as may be necessary to accumulate raw materials required for manufacture of equipment needed to make an army efficient in the modern sense?

The steel industry contends that there is enough scrap steel in this country to meet its ordinary needs for only six weeks. Representatives of independent steel companies purpose asking for an extension of the partial ban on exportation of No. 1 steel scrap to cover No. 2, declaring that both grades are essential to the nation's purpose of defense.

Our first duty is to ourselves. We plan for defense against aggression from any source. That plan fails at its beginning if we neglect to make whatever accumulations of material are necessary to make defense possible.

Still, if Washington stops the sale of gasoline and scrap iron to Japan, couldn't Japan get even by refusing to let the United States have any more of the silver it has been swiping from China and peddling to Uncle Sam for a great deal more than it is worth?

Word coming from Switzerland is that Paris and its suburbs are well organized and supplied and that other cities in Nazi-controlled France are not openly complaining of anything except shortages of food, fuel and water and rising prices.

The commander-in-chief of the Swiss army says the Swiss will defend the country to the last man. The last time this was said by a Frenchman.

War Might Force An Army Abroad, Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 — Gen. Pershing said that no matter what else we do to mix up in the European war, we shall never send an expeditionary force to Europe. On all the military probabilities he is right, as he usually is on such questions. But the unerringly certain quality about strategic planning is its unerring uncertainty — its utter unpredictability.

Who would have dreamed in 1913, for example, that before November, 1918, we would have more than 2,000,000 American soldiers in France — a larger combat force than Great Britain ever had there? I'll tell you some who didn't dream it — the president of the United States and the general staffs of Germany, France, England, Austria, Italy, Belgium and the United States of America.

Absurd, Wilson Thought

When the first selective draft started I wrote a memorandum, in July, 1917, suggesting that it be for 1,000,000 men — not to take them before they were ready, but to classify and warn those who would have to go. It came back ink-spattered by an angry pen-point that had punctured the paper and spurted indignation. It was initialed "W.W." and said, in effect, that the American people would never stand for a draft of a million men, that our contribution was to be largely in money and supplies, that it was absurd to think of an offensive in any such terms — just as Gen. Pershing says today.

That was perfectly understandable. The Allies were then saying that all they advised was a "token" American force of a few divisions to "show the flag" and boost French and British morale, that they needed our factories, our supplies, our money and the available shipping to keep business as usual much more than they would ever need our untrained levies. The enemy general staffs agreed. They did not count on Americans in mass until we actually began to send them, after the British debacle of March, 1918.

Not Geared at Start

We in the selective draft organization never agreed. As a system started, it was not geared to get 100,000 men a month. In December, 1917 I revised the entire machine to examine and classify the whole 10,000,000 pool of man-power. A result was that when the pressure came in 1918 and the Allies began to scream for "men in their undershirts," it was enabled to step up the monthly taking from some 30,000 or 40,000 to 400,000 men a month —without a ripple. I shall always believe that this change did much to win the war.

Anyway, it burned in on my mind the fact that no man is smart enough to forecast the course of war once the fateful decision is made to engage in it. We do a lot of talking about "defensive" war and "defending" the Western Hemisphere. No country at war can completely decide its own policy any more than Joe Louis could decide what he had to do against Max Schmeling in their first fight. The enemy has something to say about that.

May Have to Send Men

If we foolishly get into this shindy we may have to send men in the Army to Europe, Africa or Eastern Asia. We almost certainly will have to send men in the navy and marines to all those places. As has frequently been remarked in this space, in a knock-out fight you can't afford to "hit soft," and you can't enter any fight with one hand tied behind your back or one foot hobbled to a post.

Germany is fighting this war as England always fought her wars—to win. If we get into it, that is the way we must fight where a powerful blow may bring victory. Let's make no mistake about that or be fooled into any action on the error that any war is a picnic or that either combatant can call his shots without regard to what the enemy may do.—Distributed By The United Feature Syndicate.

THE LIGHTING PROBLEM

Weighty Draft Objections Are Seen As Jobs Are Open for Many Jobless

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, Aug. 8 — The great debate is now on, about conscription. Much of the argument will be about details — what age limit to fix, how many to select for actual service, and so on.

Mark Sullivan

But beneath all that is the deep question of principle. This question is shall the United States at this time build up its army by conscription, or by Voluntary enlistment?

As a convenient approach to the question, there is here set down some of the arguments against conscription, as they have come from various sources. They are presented here without pre-judgment, and merely for clarification of the broad question.

Not Tested

It is frequently said we can't get enough men by voluntary enlistment. But has that been tested? Are we sure of that? On this point the pertinent figures are:

The present army strength is about 250,000 (the number rises daily through new enlistments.) The army ultimately needed is estimated from 750,000 to 1,250,000. Hence the number of new enlistments needed is from 500,000 to 1,000,000. Take one million as the outside needed number (in addition to the existing army). The question is, can we get a million new recruits by the voluntary method? To this, the advocates of conscription say no.

If we can't get a million voluntary enlistments, what must we say about the assertion that there are ten million unemployed, seeking jobs? That figure includes some women, but would it not be reasonable to assume that one out of ten of the unemployed are men who would meet the army requirements?

A Good Job

The army is a good job— hundreds of thousands of Americans have found it so. Even the beginning pay, $21 a month, with food, lodging and clothing, is good. Not many young men when they first go to work in private occupations have $21 a month left after paying rent, food and clothing. And the army pay rises satisfactorily, with length of service, and promotion to first-class private, corporal, sergeant. Also the army provides, for those who wish, a permanent career, with a satisfactory pension assured. The enlistment period is three years, with privilege of reenlistment.

Why take men out of private jobs, by conscription, if there are enough unemployed who could enlist if they would? It is important for war, that we keep the personnel of our industrial organizations intact.

The CCC Boys

How about the roughly 30,000 young men in the Civilian Conservation Camps? These receive money from the government, on the theory that they cannot find jobs. But by our army expansion program we are offering jobs to a million. If CCC boys — such as are properly equipped—don't take the army jobs, how come? A great many CCC boys (though not all) must be properly equipped. The age for admission is 17 to 23. By the circumstances, they must become physically fit through their service in the camps.

The CCC young men get $30 a month, in addition to board, clothing and necessities. Out of this, they are required to send $25 home to their families. The army pay, $21, which the soldier can use as he wishes, is practically as good as CCC.

Half Million More

How about the young men who get money from the government National Youth Administration- There are about half a million of these—high school students, college students, college graduates. They get from a minimum of $5 a month up to $30, for part time work. They get it on the theory they can't find jobs. Some are too young for the army; but some are old enough, and some must be able to meet the enlistment requirements.

On WPA, presumably not a great many could pass the army tests. But some undoubtedly could. The government pays WPA workers from $31.20 a month up to $94.90. (For what amounts to part-time work.) That is all they get—no lodging, meals or clothing. The army is a better job for such as can qualify.

Jobs for Jobless

As to none of these groups, can we say that a man getting largesse from the government must join the army — that would be compulsion. But in every case, the reason the governments gives the largesse is that the man cannot get a job. And here is the government itself offering a million jobs. Certainly there is a position proper for the government to take: a man qualified for a job in the army is by that fact debarred from saying that he cannot get a job — and therefore is barred from CCC, NYA, or WPA.

There are other questions. Again and again, those who favor conscription say it "is the only democratic way." That calls for some proving. Have we been undemocratic during all these years we practiced voluntary enlistment? The word "democratic" has come to be used for strange meanings.

Motive Questioned

Many who oppose conscription, or are in doubt about it, ask a question about motive. They ask, is the building up of the army the only purpose of conscription? They wonder if conscription is a detail in a broader purpose of regimenting everybody and everything. What was the purpose of registering all men up to the age of 64, as provided in the early draft of the conscription bill? That could not have been for the army. Was there any vague notion of conscripting everybody for all sorts of occupations? And when conscription was first discussed, President Roosevelt spoke of having compulsory government service for all young persons, including young women, in government camps. What was the idea of that?

Poll Confirms Columnists

Swing Is Definitely Away from Roosevelt and the New Deal, Oakland Writer Says

Editor, Cumberland News:

The first Gallup poll of the United States for the coming campaign shows Willkie well ahead in the electoral vote, 304 against 227, with Maryland and Virginia reported a couple of points on the Roosevelt side.

But they will no doubt swing in line for Willkie, by the time another poll is taken. The entire northern half of the country, with the exception of Montana and Washington, is solid for Willkie.

This confirms the view of such veteran columnists as Frank Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, who has been telling us the trend has been away from Roosevelt for some time. The people are fed up on the whole Roosevelt tribe, and all the New Deal nostrums and failures, to the point of nausea.

It all reminds one of the story told by the late Odd McIntyre, in his daily column. They were calling on some friends, who had taken a new apartment. One little four-year-old tot piloted them around, pointing out with pride many features of the new home. On reaching the kitchen she towed them over to the kitchen sink and said: "And this is where I frowed up". The American voters have just about reached the "kitchen sink" in their political thinking.

The past seven years is one long nightmare of horrors culminating in the disgraceful performance at the Chicago convention, with its third-term burlesque, the booting of faithful Jim Farley and booing of the veteran Senator Carter Glass for daring to quote Thomas Jefferson against a third term.

The immediate respone was the wide-spread revolt of life-long members of the party (including the writer of this letter) which we confidently expect to include our Senator Tydings.

STANLEY ROSS.

Oakland, August 7, 1940.

Is the Same Old Dictatorship

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Bernarr Macfadden, the publisher, in a letter to the Republican national committeeman for Florida explaining his reasons for supporting Mr. Willkie in this campaign, said this:

"There is nothing new about the New Deal. It is the same old dictatorship that has enslaved people for centuries. To a large extent it is a fusion of the Russian, German and Italian systems.

"And in this election parties should be eliminated.

"There are really no Republican or Democratic parties.

"It is between the pro-New Deal and the anti-New Deal citizens of this country.

"The fight is between Americanism and those who believe in foreign 'isms.'

"There should be no difficulty in making a decision."

Those are the plain facts of the case. They are facts which the Republican national convention recognized in the nomination of Mr. Willkie, facts which thoughtful Democrats are coming more and more to realize.

Liberty Curbs Seen Increasing

Should Not Be Left to the Discretion of Officials, Roscoe Pound Writes

The steady growth of social curbs on individual liberty raises serious questions. Where is it to stop? What is every man's castle, or has he a castle sacred against the encroachment of public interest?

At first there was a tendency to restrict only in order to maintain the public health or safety or morals. Today, conservation of natural resources, maintaining aesthetic surroundings, securing neighbors against spite, and zoning laws are everyday illustrations of the spread in restrictive legislation.

There can be no quarrel with the abstract object of such restrictions. They set up legal limits to the rights, powers and liberties involved in ownership. But this ideal becomes fallible when powers and liberties are left to the discretion of an administrative official free to determine for himself what he conceives some legally formulated policy requires or makes expedient, writes Roscoe Pound, former dean of the Harvard law school, in the August Nation's Business.

This temptation to use power simply because one has it, has led rulers to arbitrary interferences with liberty of person ever since history has been recorded. Moreover it has led to seizure of property by governmental decree ever since a king coveted Naboth's vineyard. When the will to power is combined with covetousness they have continually brought about arbitrary interferences with liberty of using property. Some rulers have claimed to do these things by divine right, but, for the most part they have identified their confiscatory activities with the public good. It is significant that the current of thought which is giving up the idea of property is also giving up the idea of liberty. As the two grew up together they are a common subject of attack by those who conceive the one must go with the fall of the other.

Character Gives The Best Chance, Surveys Show

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Pretty good news comes out of Minneapolis for the run-of-the-mine graduate. The product of our colleges breaks up, broadly, into three groups. First are the lads who delight their professors with perfect recitations. Second are the lads who delight their coaches with touchdowns. Third are the lads who just plain do their darndest, a darndest that falls far short of Phi Beta Kappa or a varsity letter.

Offhand, the first two groups seem to have the best chance in the big race for jobs which began last June and will end the Lord knows when. But, according to Minneapolis, the last group needn't worry. The news is that jobs are less likely for Tom Touchdown and William I. Q. Bright they are for plain George Graduate, provided George has that thing that we all like to think we have—character.

Merritt's Finding

Out in Minneapolis a vice president of the Investors Syndicate, a man named King Merritt, who must have a bump of curiosity as big as a watermelon, has polled the colleges of the country. He reports now on the result. Boiled down to one word that result is "Character."

Employers will give a job to a man with character three times as soon as they will to a candidate whose best talking point is scholarship, and ninety-seven—that's right, ninety-seven—times as soon as they will to the candidates who come fresh from the football field with an armload of press clippings.

"Fame is what you have taken,
"Character's what you give.
"When to this truth you waken,
"Then you begin to live."

Found by Taylor

Bayard Taylor wrote at times run-of-the-mine verse, but maybe that is why he could put his finger so aptly on the essential merit of the run-of-the-mine man. Seventy-five years or so ago he figured out what Mr. Merritt has just figured again after writing to 345 educational centers in forty-three states from which almost half a million young men and women have just been graduated. Surprisingly enough, in our depressed times, some of these have actually been asked into jobs. A record number of employers sent recruiting agents to campuses the country over. Surprisingly also, at least half of the June crop of graduates will have work before September rolls around.

Will Decide Leaders

Most of the lucky applicants will be teaching; others will be working in engineering, in business administration, at selling, in aviation, in medicine, in law, in accounting, in agriculture, in insurance, in journalism, in ministry, in architecture, and in social welfare. But all will be where they are chiefly because their bosses gave them a look and decided they had character.

"Character," says the survey, "was emphasized by 82.73 per cent of the employers who described the man for whom they had a job waiting." Of course there were other requirements too, such as adaptability, personality, scholarship, campus popularity, athletic prowess and enthusiasm. But character was the Abou Ben Adhem of the lot. It led all the rest.

Infections Are Often Spread by Finger Tips

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Experience emphasizes over and over again that even small abrasions on the skin should not be neglected. Many a case of blood poisoning has resulted from a blister on the heel from tennis, or a small splinter in the finger tip. Any cut or scratch should be washed gently with cotton dipped in alcohol and when dry painted with iodine or mercurochrome. If there is any bleeding, bandage with sterile gauze.

Yesterday we asked what two places on the body were the most dangerous for skin infections. The answer is finger tip infections and upper lip and nose infections.

Easier Carriers

The fingers are well supplied with lymphatics and these carry infection up the arm into the blood stream—so-called blood poisoning. Its path may be seen in the little red lines under the skin from the point of infection to the arm pit. The lymph glands—kernels—in the armpit or above the elbow may be enlarged—also an indication of spreading infection.

The finger tip is a dangerous site for infection, also because of its anatomy. Along the finger under the skin and above the bone and going into the palm of the hand are closed sacs of fascia—sheaths for the tendons of the muscles which perform the fine movements of the fingers. These are easily infected and leave, after the infection is conquered, considerable crippling and disability.

Other forms of infection of the fingers include felons which are extension of pus to the periosterum of the bone.

Prompt Dressing

To avoid all these dangers treat every injury and abrasion to the skin of the fingers, especially finger tips, with respect which means prompt sterilization and dressing.

The upper lip infections are particularly dangerous because the blood supply of that region leads directly to the great blood sinuses of the brain, and infection may follow this path causing septic sinus thrombosis, an almost always fatal condition. Such infections should be treated by a physician and above all should not be rubbed or touched or handled.

Furuncles of the nose have the same tendency. Small furuncles inside the nose usually come from an infected hair follicle. Lowered vitality or diabetes or some other chronic disease predispose to this sort of infection and the condition is commoner in older people. Erysipelas, also an infection predominantly of older people, may follow from such furuncles or little boils in the nose.

New Summer Beverage

Cinnamon-flavored coffee is something new in the way of a summer beverage. Pour cold coffee, rather strong, into the trays of the refrigerator. Sprinkle lightly with powdered cinnamon and freeze as usual. Use 3 cubes to each glass of coffee, top off with a dash of vanilla ice cream or vanilla-flavored whipped cream and you have Mocha Float.

THE DAILY STORY

LETTER PERFECT

Reading the Letter Over, She Knew It Was Full of Lies, but the Biggest Falsehood Was Herself.

By MARY DRAKE

The girl crossed the shabby little room and pulled up the cracked shade to admit as much morning sunlight as could dodge around the corner of the apartment building next door. She looked searchingly into the small mirror at the faint lines of fatigue which etched her face with shadows.

The letter lay upon the table, set with the materials of a scanty breakfast and a hurried one. She paced the floor back and forth before the table deep in thought three of four times, and then sat down. While she sipped her breakfast coffee she reread the letter.

The Pages Rustled Dryly

"Dear Sister Flo: I know that I should be ashamed for not having written to you sooner, but I know that you will understand, in that nice, big-sister way of yours, that here in New York I have been finding life so full I have scarcely time to eat."

The pages rustled dryly as the girl shifted them to her left hand in order to lift a piece of toast to her mouth. Her eyes followed the lines avidly.

"I know that the first thing you will want to know is how I am succeeding in my new job at the Orpheum. You and mother were both dead set against me going to New York to try my luck on the stage, but I guess I have shown you both by this time that little sister Millie knew what she was talking about.

"If you see Jimmy, you can tell him also that I have accomplished what I set out to do three months ago—that I've found out just what I am capable of doing in the show world and am doing it to the best of my ability. By the way, I hope that you received the check I sent to you for my part of mother's upkeep. It isn't much, but it was all I had left after buying a new summer outfit."

The Orpheum! For years she had read of the famous names who crammed the dressing rooms at the Orpheum. It must be wonderful, even if you only could manage a small part in a show, to feel that you were so near to greatness, could reach out and touch it actually if you had the whim. In her mind, the girl catalogued her wardrobe, no item of which was less than two years old, most of them well beyond that. Oh, to be able to be successful and happy and unworried!

"Of course, you understand why I turned Jimmy down when he wanted me to reconsider and marry him on the evening before I came to New York. Can you imagine me, spending the rest of my life in Alexandria—married to a grocer? I'm not saying anything about Jimmy personally, because I think he is a swell fellow, but he and I don't think alike!"

Jimmy was a swell fellow, all right! He had more real humanity in him than a cageful of Millies would ever have, but he couldn't budge Millie's decision one bit. He would one day probably become one of Alexandria's leading citizens, if he kept on the way he had since he inherited his father's small business. He had the right idea, being a big frog in a small puddle. Funny, some people couldn't stand that, or thought they couldn't.

"One meets so many exciting personalities in a place like New York, especially if one is connected with the theater, which of course attracts all manner of geniuses. At a party the other night for Anastasia Dimitrov—you know, the Russian countess who is starring in 'Lost Hope'—I met several noblemen. Imagine that! I've been out to dinner and to luncheon any number of times with some of the actors and writers and musicians you probably read about in the syndicated gossip columns which the Alexandria Register picks up from New York, that is, when my own theater engagements permit me the time.

The girl made a wry mouth as she chased the last crumb of the toast to the edge of the plate and put it in her mouth, swallowing after it the dregs of her cool coffee. How did it feel, she wondered, to be able to enter one of the swank eating places in New York, a famous man at one's heels, and order anything one chose, no matter how exotic? It must be the next thing to heaven!

"I know that mother has been worrying about me, even if I am perfectly all right and getting on wonderfully. You tell her for me that one of these days I'll be back home with enough money for that eye operation I promised her."

Poor mother! With all the worry she had after the head of the house passed away, with the awful burden of blindness creeping up on her. To have the added bitterness of her youngest child running off to a strange place totally alone. It wasn't right! But it was too late now to change anything. The plan of life was too far begun to make any alterations now, if only for pride's sake!

"And so, Flo, darling, you can see that I am far from being idle here in the big city. I miss you and mother, of course, but some day we'll all be together again and all the little differences we've had in the past will be forgotten. I am feeling wonderful. I have my work and new friends galore, so you see there is nothing for you to worry about either on my score. I'll have to dash off now for rehearsal, so excuse this tiny note. I hope you are all well, and Jimmy, too. Say hello for me when you see him, will you? Love to all."

The girl stared at the blank edges of the paper for a long minute, visualizing the glamour of the life the words hinted at. A tear welled and dropped upon the saucer before her and she proudly brushed away another. Then she reached out for the pen on the table and resolutely scrawled a single word at the end of the letter.

"Millie," she wrote firmly.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Report Promised on Mine Inspection Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Chairman Smith (D-WVa) of the House Mines and Mining Committee, said today he had been promised a report "within the next week" from a subcommittee which conducted hearings on a federal mine inspection bill.

Upon receipt of the report from Chairman Somers (D-NY) of the subcommittee, Smith said, a meeting of the full committee would be called to take a stand on the legislation (S2420).

The bill, which would require inspection of all coal mines at least once annually by federal officers, has been opposed by coal operators and officials of many coal producing states as unnecessary duplication of state inspection services.

Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, on the other hand, have contended that state inspection services were inadequate and that the federal inspection would reduce the number of accidents and deaths in the mines.

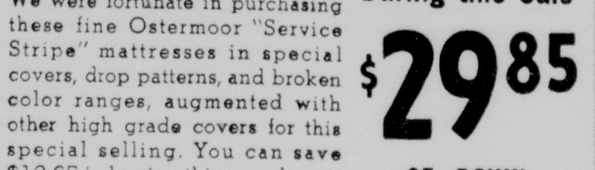

"We who are about to die, salute thee!" was a phrase originally used by gladiators who entered the ring as participants in Roman contests and so saluted the Emperor Claudius.

Weighty Objections Against Conscription

What is declared to be needed for carrying out the plans in hand for an adequate national defense is an addition to the regular army of, roughly, a million men. There are some 10,000,000 unemployed anxious to obtain jobs of any sort. Some of these are women, but, as noted in Sullivan's letter, it is reasonable to assume that one out of ten of these would meet the army requirements. Furthermore, the army, as a peace-time organization which is not expected to be called into war service by reason of the argument that adequate national defense will make that unnecessary, represents a good job. Its pay is not so niggardly when it is considered that clothing and subsistence are supplied and that increased remuneration is contemplated.

Now, the question is indeed pertinent why we should take workers out of their present productive occupations by compulsion if there is plenty of available material available. As noted in the listing presented by Sullivan, this material is available in larger number than is needed in the CCC, the NYA, the WPA and the other jobless not included in any of these organizations.

Another thing to be considered is the assertion so frequently repeated by draft advocates that conscription is the "only" democratic way. That, as Sullivan says, certainly needs to be proved. Many are firmly of the conviction that it is somewhat the opposite in that it tends to build up a huge and costly standing army and thus pave the way toward dictatorship.

Furthermore, the motive behind conscription needs searching investigation. Have the ideas of those who have been so assiduously and insiduously working toward socialistic theories of government, if not totalitarianism, anything to do with the ding-donging for it?

Certainly in view of all these strong objections, the national conscription bill should not be rushed through in a frenzy of fright and without due consideration of all that it involves.

Eating What Is Set In Front of One

VITAMINS and diets are but academic ideas to the man who tells a reporter: "Half the time I don't know what I eat. I'm no gourmet. I eat what's set in front of me, which is the way I was brought up."

It is important that the man who eats what's set in front of him is the candidate of a major party for president of the United States, his name being Wendell L. Willkie. It is more important that thousands of other citizens can say the same, being individuals less finicky about their personal comfort than about what they do and how they do it.

"It's the way I was brought up," says the candidate, in those seven words preaching a sermon against coddling. No youngster brought up to eat what is set in front of him becomes the spoiled child. He makes acquaintance early with practical values, with duties along with rights. He is on the path to a sound mind in a sound body.

Sound minds and sound bodies are abundant in this nation and will become even more abundant if the nation is put to the test. Sound minds and sound bodies are at a premium when the time arrives for a democracy to take inventory and safeguard itself in a world upside down.

Soft living has weakened more than one people and the United States, even in the midst of depression, has had perhaps more than its share of soft living. But the fiber of the nation ought to be unimpaired because so many of its citizens can still say with the candidate they were brought up to eat what was set in front of them.

Interesting Motor Cars Promised

THE NEWS that filters out of the automobile plants indicates the 1941 line of cars will be one of the most interesting ever to come off assembly lines.

The chief engineer for one of the largest companies remarked recently that designing engineers have been busier the last few months than ever before. He said all companies have been applying unlimited money and brains to produce cars so interesting every motorist will be impelled to buy a new model.

Tales of radical innovations are being circulated. It is doubtful if many will reach the public this year. The word is most are not yet ready to be put into hands of owner-drivers.

The new cars will be characterized by better performance, increased economy and improved safety. Bodies will be roomier and a step nearer streamlined forms. They will have the functional lines of airplanes and speedboats—the clean beauty of precision machines designed to yield utmost efficiency.

In driving for better business by giving buyers better-performing cars of more striking beauty the automobile industry is simply following the tradition that has made it the model for American business enterprise.

If other industries exhibited as much competitive spirit—showed as much consideration for buyers and their pocketbooks—there would be less talk in this country of monopolies and business depressions.

Keeping their objective of constantly offering a new and better product always in view, the motor makers do not overlook the importance of advertising the perfected product. Advertising has been developed into a fine art by manufacturers of automobiles. In fact, but for advertising it is doubtful whether the total number of automobiles in the United States today would approach one-half its present figure of 30,000,000.

Advertising—especially newspaper advertising—has brought the auto industry to its present state and has been responsible for the employment of millions of men in factories, garages and gas stations.

Useful Service Is Found For Color-Blindness

COLOR-BLINDNESS has long been considered one of the more serious defects in candidates for certain branches of military service and other occupations where the ability to distinguish shades is essential. This is especially true of aviation, for pilots must be able to recognize the various colored ground lights, particularly at night, and colored flares used as signals. For this reason color-blind recruits have been turned down.

The United States Army Air Corps has now discovered accidentally that it has been missing a trick. It all happened because an artilleryman was taken up as observer along with army pilots in an effort to discover how well the camouflage artists had succeeded in making forty guns indistinguishable from the air. A normal pilot could spot only ten of them, but the artilleryman nailed every one of the forty. When he landed, he confessed that he was color-blind.

As a result of this, the Army School of Aviation Medicine discovered that for some reason color-blind persons see right through the ordinary type of camouflage. Right away it began making a new index of applicants turned down for this peculiar "defect." Although color-blind flyers may never be allowed to pilot planes, as observers they would prove a great asset in time of war.

In fact, an entirely different system of camouflage may have to be devised if the color-blind observer is to be fooled. If a chap loaned by the artillery can take a hop and locate forty guns without a slip, the job of concealing hangers, planes, fortifications and other materials of war will be a lot harder in the future, for this is something the United States can hardly keep a secret.

Our First Duty Is To Ourselves

IF the nation is really in earnest about building up a war defense organization, why should there be hesitancy on the part of government about taking such steps as may be necessary to accumulate raw materials required for manufacture of equipment needed to make an army efficient in the modern sense?

The steel industry contends that there is enough scrap steel in this country to meet its ordinary needs for only six weeks. Representatives of independent steel companies purpose asking for an extension of the partial ban on exportation of No. 1 steel scrap to cover No. 2, declaring that both grades are essential to the nation's purpose of defense.

Our first duty is to ourselves. We plan for defense against aggression from any source. That plan fails at its beginning if we neglect to make whatever accumulations of material are necessary to make defense possible.

Still, if Washington stops the sale of gasoline and scrap iron to Japan, couldn't Japan get even by refusing to let the United States have any more of the silver it has been swiping from China and peddling to Uncle Sam for a great deal more than it is worth?

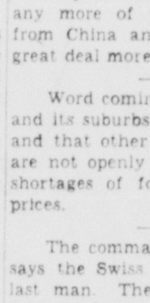

Word coming from Switzerland is that Paris and its suburbs are well organized and supplied and that other cities in Nazi-controlled France are not openly complaining of anything except shortages of food, fuel and water and rising prices.

The commander-in-chief of the Swiss army says the Swiss will defend the country to the last man. The last time this was said by a Frenchman.

War Might Force An Army Abroad, Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 — Gen. Pershing said that no matter what else we do to mix up in the European war, we shall never send an expeditionary force to Europe. On all the military probabilities he is right, as he usually is on such questions. But the unerringly certain quality about strategic planning is its unerring uncertainty — its utter unpredictability.

Who would have dreamed in 1913, for example, that before November, 1918, we would have more than 2,000,000 American soldiers in France — a larger combat force than Great Britain ever had there? I'll tell you some who didn't dream it — the president of the United States and the general staffs of Germany, France, England, Austria, Italy, Belgium and the United States of America.

Absurd, Wilson Thought

When the first selective draft started I wrote a memorandum, in July, 1917, suggesting that it be for 1,000,000 men — not to take them before they were ready, but to classify and warn those who would have to go. It came back ink-spattered by an angry pen-point that had punctured the paper and spurted indignation. It was initialed "W.W." and said, in effect, that the American people would never stand for a draft of a million men, that our contribution was to be largely in money and supplies, that it was absurd to think of an offensive in any such terms — just as Gen. Pershing says today.

That was perfectly understandable. The Allies were then saying that all they advised was a "token" American force of a few divisions to "show the flag" and boost French and British morale, that they needed our factories, our supplies, our money and the available shipping to keep business as usual much more than they would ever need our untrained levies. The enemy general staffs agreed. They did not count on Americans in mass until we actually began to send them, after the British debacle of March, 1918.

We in the selective draft organization never agreed. As a system started, it was not geared to get 100,000 men a month. In December, 1917 I revised the entire machine to examine and classify the whole 10,000,000 pool of man-power. A result was that when the pressure came in 1918 and the Allies began to scream for "men in their undershirts," it was enabled to step up the monthly taking from some 30,000 or 40,000 to 400,000 men a month —without a ripple. I shall always believe that this change did much to win the war.

Anyway, it burned in on my mind the fact that no man is smart enough to forecast the course of war once the fateful decision is made to engage in it. We do a lot of talking about "defensive" war and "defending" the Western Hemisphere. No country at war can completely decide its own policy any more than Joe Louis could decide what he had to do against Max Schmeling in their first fight. The enemy has something to say about that.

May Have to Send Men

If we foolishly get into this shindy we may have to send men in the Army to Europe, Africa or Eastern Asia. We almost certainly will have to send men in the navy and marines to all those places. As has frequently been remarked in this space, in a knock-out fight you can't afford to "hit soft," and you can't enter any fight with one hand tied behind your back or one foot hobbled to a post.

Germany is fighting this war as England always fought her wars—to win. If we get into it, that is the way we must fight where a powerful blow may bring victory. Let's make no mistake about that or be fooled into any action on the error that any war is a picnic or that either combatant can call his shots without regard to what the enemy may do.—Distributed By The United Feature Syndicate.

THE LIGHTING PROBLEM

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, Aug. 8 — The great debate is now on, about conscription. Much of the argument will be about details — what age limit to fix, how many to select for actual service, and so on.

Mark Sullivan

But beneath all that is the deep question of principle. This question is shall the United States at this time build up its army by conscription, or by Voluntary enlistment?

As a convenient approach to the question, there is here set down some of the arguments against conscription, as they have come from various sources. They are presented here without pre-judgment, and merely for clarification of the broad question.

Not Tested

It is frequently said we can't get enough men by voluntary enlistment. But has that been tested? Are we sure of that? On this point the pertinent figures are:

The present army strength is about 250,000 (the number rises daily through new enlistments.) The army ultimately needed is estimated from 750,000 to 1,250,000. Hence the number of new enlistments needed is from 500,000 to 1,000,000. Take one million as the outside needed number (in addition to the existing army). The question is, can we get a million new recruits by the voluntary method? To this, the advocates of conscription say no.

If we can't get a million voluntary enlistments, what must we say about the assertion that there are ten million unemployed, seeking jobs? That figure includes some women, but would it not be reasonable to assume that one out of ten of the unemployed are men who would meet the army requirements?

A Good Job

The army is a good job— hundreds of thousands of Americans have found it so. Even the beginning pay, $21 a month, with food, lodging and clothing, is good. Not many young men when they first go to work in private occupations have $21 a month left after paying rent, food and clothing. And the army pay rises satisfactorily, with length of service, and promotion to first-class private, corporal, sergeant. Also the army provides, for those who wish, a permanent career, with a satisfactory pension assured. The enlistment period is three years, with privilege of reenlistment.

Why take men out of private jobs, by conscription, if there are enough unemployed who could enlist if they would? It is important for war, that we keep the personnel of our industrial organizations intact.

The CCC Boys

How about the roughly 30,000 young men in the Civilian Conservation Camps? These receive money from the government, on the theory that they cannot find jobs. But by our army expansion program we are offering jobs to a million. If CCC boys — such as are properly equipped—don't take the army jobs, how come? A great many CCC boys (though not all) must be properly equipped. The age for admission is 17 to 23. By the circumstances, they must become physically fit through their service in the camps.

The CCC young men get $30 a month, in addition to board, clothing and necessities. Out of this, they are required to send $25 home to their families. The army pay, $21, which the soldier can use as he wishes, is practically as good as CCC.

Half Million More

How about the young men who get money from the government National Youth Administration- There are about half a million of these—high school students, college students, college graduates. They get from a minimum of $5 a month up to $30, for part time work. They get it on the theory they can't find jobs. Some are too young for the army; but some are old enough, and some must be able to meet the enlistment requirements.

On WPA, presumably not a great many could pass the army tests. But some undoubtedly could. The government pays WPA workers from $31.20 a month up to $94.90. (For what amounts to part-time work.) That is all they get—no lodging, meals or clothing. The army is a better job for such as can qualify.

Jobs for Jobless

As to none of these groups, can we say that a man getting largesse from the government must join the army — that would be compulsion. But in every case, the reason the governments gives the largesse is that the man cannot get a job. And here is the government itself offering a million jobs. Certainly there is a position proper for the government to take: a man qualified for a job in the army is by that fact debarred from saying that he cannot get a job — and therefore is barred from CCC, NYA, or WPA.

There are other questions. Again and again, those who favor conscription say it "is the only democratic way." That calls for some proving. Have we been undemocratic during all these years we practiced voluntary enlistment? The word "democratic" has come to be used for strange meanings.

Motive Questioned

Many who oppose conscription, or are in doubt about it, ask a question about motive. They ask, is the building up of the army the only purpose of conscription? They wonder if conscription is a detail in a broader purpose of regimenting everybody and everything. What was the purpose of registering all men up to the age of 64, as provided in the early draft of the conscription bill? That could not have been for the army. Was there any vague notion of conscripting everybody for all sorts of occupations? And when conscription was first discussed, President Roosevelt spoke of having compulsory government service for all young persons, including young women, in government camps. What was the idea of that?

Poll Confirms Columnists

Editor, Cumberland News:

The first Gallup poll of the United States for the coming campaign shows Willkie well ahead in the electoral vote, 304 against 227, with Maryland and Virginia reported a couple of points on the Roosevelt side.

But they will no doubt swing in line for Willkie, by the time another poll is taken. The entire northern half of the country, with the exception of Montana and Washington, is solid for Willkie.

This confirms the view of such veteran columnists as Frank Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, who has been telling us the trend has been away from Roosevelt for some time. The people are fed up on the whole Roosevelt tribe, and all the New Deal nostrums and failures, to the point of nausea.

It all reminds one of the story told by the late Odd McIntyre, in his daily column. They were calling on some friends, who had taken a new apartment. One little four-year-old tot piloted them around, pointing out with pride many features of the new home. On reaching the kitchen she towed them over to the kitchen sink and said: "And this is where I frowed up". The American voters have just about reached the "kitchen sink" in their political thinking.

The past seven years is one long nightmare of horrors culminating in the disgraceful performance at the Chicago convention, with its third-term burlesque, the booting of faithful Jim Farley and booing of the veteran Senator Carter Glass for daring to quote Thomas Jefferson against a third term.

The immediate respone was the wide-spread revolt of life-long members of the party (including the writer of this letter) which we confidently expect to include our Senator Tydings.

Is the Same Old Dictatorship

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Bernarr Macfadden, the publisher, in a letter to the Republican national committeeman for Florida explaining his reasons for supporting Mr. Willkie in this campaign, said this:

"There is nothing new about the New Deal. It is the same old dictatorship that has enslaved people for centuries. To a large extent it is a fusion of the Russian, German and Italian systems.

"And in this election parties should be eliminated.

"There are really no Republican or Democratic parties.

"It is between the pro-New Deal and the anti-New Deal citizens of this country.

"The fight is between Americanism and those who believe in foreign 'isms.'

"There should be no difficulty in making a decision."

Those are the plain facts of the case. They are facts which the Republican national convention recognized in the nomination of Mr. Willkie, facts which thoughtful Democrats are coming more and more to realize.

Liberty Curbs Seen Increasing

The steady growth of social curbs on individual liberty raises serious questions. Where is it to stop? What is every man's castle, or has he a castle sacred against the encroachment of public interest?

At first there was a tendency to restrict only in order to maintain the public health or safety or morals. Today, conservation of natural resources, maintaining aesthetic surroundings, securing neighbors against spite, and zoning laws are everyday illustrations of the spread in restrictive legislation.

There can be no quarrel with the abstract object of such restrictions. They set up legal limits to the rights, powers and liberties involved in ownership. But this ideal becomes fallible when powers and liberties are left to the discretion of an administrative official free to determine for himself what he conceives some legally formulated policy requires or makes expedient, writes Roscoe Pound, former dean of the Harvard law school, in the August Nation's Business.

This temptation to use power simply because one has it, has led rulers to arbitrary interferences with liberty of person ever since history has been recorded. Moreover it has led to seizure of property by governmental decree ever since a king coveted Naboth's vineyard. When the will to power is combined with covetousness they have continually brought about arbitrary interferences with liberty of using property. Some rulers have claimed to do these things by divine right, but, for the most part they have identified their confiscatory activities with the public good. It is significant that the current of thought which is giving up the idea of property is also giving up the idea of liberty. As the two grew up together they are a common subject of attack by those who conceive the one must go with the fall of the other.

Character Gives The Best Chance, Surveys Show

Edwin C. Hill

Pretty good news comes out of Minneapolis for the run-of-the-mine graduate. The product of our colleges breaks up, broadly, into three groups. First are the lads who delight their professors with perfect recitations. Second are the lads who delight their coaches with touchdowns. Third are the lads who just plain do their darndest, a darndest that falls far short of Phi Beta Kappa or a varsity letter.

Offhand, the first two groups seem to have the best chance in the big race for jobs which began last June and will end the Lord knows when. But, according to Minneapolis, the last group needn't worry. The news is that jobs are less likely for Tom Touchdown and William I. Q. Bright they are for plain George Graduate, provided George has that thing that we all like to think we have—character.

Merritt's Finding

Out in Minneapolis a vice president of the Investors Syndicate, a man named King Merritt, who must have a bump of curiosity as big as a watermelon, has polled the colleges of the country. He reports now on the result. Boiled down to one word that result is "Character."

Employers will give a job to a man with character three times as soon as they will to a candidate whose best talking point is scholarship, and ninety-seven—that's right, ninety-seven—times as soon as they will to the candidates who come fresh from the football field with an armload of press clippings.

"Fame is what you have taken,
"Character's what you give.
"When to this truth you waken,
"Then you begin to live."

Found by Taylor

Bayard Taylor wrote, at times, run-of-the-mine verse, but maybe that is why he could put his finger so aptly on the essential merit of the run-of-the-mine man. Seventy-five years or so ago he figured out what Mr. Merritt has just figured again after writing to 345 educational centers in forty-three states, from which almost half a million young men and women have just been graduated. Surprisingly enough, in our depressed times, some of these have actually been asked into jobs. A record number of employers sent recruiting agents to campuses the country over. Surprisingly also, at least half of the June crop of graduates will have work before September rolls around.

Will Decide Leaders

Most of the lucky applicants will be teaching; others will be working in engineering, in business administration, at selling, in aviation, in medicine, in law, in accounting, in agriculture, in insurance, in journalism, in ministry, in architecture, and in social welfare. But all will be where they are chiefly because their bosses gave them a look and decided they had character.

"Character," says the survey, "was emphasized by 82.73 per cent of the employers who described the man for whom they had a job waiting." Of course there were other requirements too, such as adaptability, personality, scholarship, campus popularity, athletic prowess and enthusiasm. But character was the Abou Ben Adhem of the lot. It led all the rest.

Finan, Jr., Joseph Lewis, William Seibert, Frederick Steiding, Upshur Lowndes, William Keight, Pete Powell and J. W. Holmes.

Have Garden Party

Games, races and a treasure hunt, under the direction of Mrs. Francis Tritt, Mrs. Pearl Robinette and Miss Aileen Jones, were the main features of the garden party at the home of Mrs. J. L. Robinette, McMullen highway, Tuesday evening when the Bowling Green Homemakers Club was entertained.

Prizes were won by Mrs. E. O. Edmunds, Mrs. Vivian Robinette, Mrs. H. B. Bloom, Miss Mildred Abbott, Mrs. J. E. Tritt, Mrs. Marl Hyde, Mrs. Edward Heavener, Mrs. Findley Thompson, and Mrs. Helen Robinette.

A picnic lunch was served on the lawn. Plans were formulated for a covered dish luncheon to be held September 3.

Others present were Mrs. Harry Utterback, Mrs. Robert Moreland, Jean Heavner, Mrs. T. A. Jones, Mrs. A. C. Canfield, Alberta and Camilla Canfield, David and Mary Rae Robinette, Mrs. Harry A. Tritt, Mrs. J. A. Smith, Mrs. F. L. Decker, Mrs. Elsie Meidter, Mrs. Maude Elliott, Miss Karmyn Reinke and Mrs. B. J. Pull.

Veteran Unit Meets

A paper on the Life of Prince Gallitzin, telling of his conversion to Catholicism and the reformation of his private life, was read by Miss Catherine McKenzie at a meeting, Wednesday evening, of the Gallitzin Veteran Mission Unit of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, at the home of the president, Miss Joan Kerr.

It was announced that Charles Brode would serve as chairman of a committee to plan an entertainment to be held the latter part of this month.

Mr. Brode, Robert Louis, Miss Catherine McKenzie, Miss Mary Becker and Miss Louise Santora comprise a committee to sell football tickets.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Knieriem, of 509 Franklin street, announce the marriage of their son, Ralph, to Miss Marie Stevens, daughter of Mr. J. E. Stevens, of La Vale.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Boniface, O. F. M. Cap., at a nuptial mass yesterday at 9 a. m. at SS. Peter and Paul church.

Events in Brief

A large crowd is expected to attend the Junior Volunteer Service Corps dance to be held at 10 o'clock this evening at the Cumberland Country Club, Christie road, which will benefit the crippled children. Although tickets are not available through members of the Junior Volunteer Service Corps, it is hoped that this worthy cause will be well patronized. Miss Elsie Mae Poling heads the committee on arrangements and is being assisted by Mrs. Robert M. King, Mrs. Howard L. Tolson and Mrs. R. Arden Lowndes.

The Young Peoples class of Fairview Christian church will hold an all day community picnic today.

At 7 o'clock tomorrow evening a picnic will be held by the churches of the Oldtown Methodist circuit at Nixon's Grove, near Oldtown. A band concert at the Oldtown church will feature the picnic.

Members of the Flintstone Homemakers Club and their families will hold a wiener roast at 7:30 o'clock this evening at Constitution Park.

A social will be held at 7 o'clock this evening on the lawn at Fairview Methodist church. There will be cake, candy, pie, ice cream and tonic for sale.

Adding to the gayety of the racing meet, the Hiwaiian Gardens graced the beautiful Ali Ghan Country Club, Baltimore pike, at the opening of the special race weeks' entertainment Wednesday evening. The garden will be open every evening during the race meet.

Personals

Miss Betty Oswald, Philadelphia, will arrive today to visit Mrs. E. L. Jones, 522 Washington street.

Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Lanich, 108 Virginia avenue, have as their guests, Mrs. Lanich's mother, Mrs. Anne E. City Best Place To Get the Men Who Are Eligible

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

So you're going on your vacation my dear Annabelle, and this time you hope to meet "someone interesting." This, translated, means you hope to meet an eligible man.

You tell me you're 27, but are never taken for a day over 22; you're easy on the eyes, dress well, and your last three vacations were sorry disappointments. You met nothing but dowagers, "wife-watched husbands, acting as nursemaids for spoiled children." And at the last place—some sort of a camp—you met dreary girls who were supposed to be made over athletics but were not, and never a man but the milkman and the hobble-de-hoy who left the ice.

And so Annabelle, you're of two minds: shall you chance another of these melancholy holidays, or put you vacation money in a bond, a fur coat, or a saving account? Well, my dear, you might do any of those things and be more sure of meeting that almost unknown quantity — an eligible man —than if you continue to fly to some Adamless Eden for your summer holiday.

The happy hunting ground for the girl-shy male is right here in the shadow of the skyscrapers and the baking brick and asphalt of the teeming city. More men are caught in towns during the summer months than flies on flypaper. Bear that in mind, Annabelle.

The type of man regarded as eligible is not found very often at the average summer resort. He has to stay dressed up; he has to work like a stevedore dancing with girls in stuffy ballrooms of evenings, and unless he's the shyest of shy violets, he doesn't enjoy being continually mobbed by girls languishing from the usual nine-to-one ratio of girls to men at such places. If a man is presenttable he'd rather share this terrific competition with others of the male persuasion.

Eligibles On Vacation

Eligibles—real eligibles—like more primitive vacations where they can relax, wear rough clothes, fish, swim, sail, and cook their own messes in the open. They don't plan for girls. They're taking a vacation from them too, and girls must be mighty clever to know how to stalk this type of vacationing game.

The best bet, as I've had in confidences addressed to this column, is to get some woman related to one of the campers to surprise them with a gift of fresh vegetables and fruit. Girl tags along and hopes for the best. The man, the place, the hour has sometimes turned the trick, but it's a chancy business. Even then, girls may find a sulky bunch of campers who can do without vegetable gifts as well as girls.

But the city—the great, teeming, hot city — is a girl's best bet in stalking eligibles.

Won't Stay Cooped

Long summer vacations are incompatible with the successful male. He probably takes his holiday on a winter cruise. But no normal man wants to stay cooped in a house when the thermometer soars. He thinks of rivers, rowboats, canoes, suppers cooked in the open with someone who likes that sort of thing too. Even the humbler "moonlight boatride" at so much per head is not to be overlooked.

Nearly all cities have resorts, and the eligible bachelor who may be so shy that he hardly speaks to a girl at an adjoining desk in winter time, will be driven by yearning for the great out-of-doors, to pluck up courage and ask her for a date.

Yes, my dear Annabelle, my suggestion to you is to try the city this time.

Too Old To Be Whipped

Dear Miss Fairfax,

I am a girl of 18 years, going "steady" with a young man for about six months. He is 24. We're very much in love with each other and he has asked me many times to marry him. He makes a pretty good salary, and he has almost enough furniture to fill a four-room apartment.

Here's my problem. My mother is terribly mean to me. She refuses to let me see any young men, but I do meet my boy friend on the sly. Last week, when she found out I was meeting him, she gave me a terrible whipping. Don't you think I'm too old for that? The young man found out about it, and is more determined than ever that I should go away with him and get married.

I've just about decided to slip off with him. Do you think I'd be doing the right thing?

TROUBLED.

Modern people do not think so well of Solomon's precept: "Spare not the rod and spoil the child." It's unthinkable that a girl of 18 years should be subjected to this brutal form of chastisement. Who does your mother dislike this young man?

If there's no valid objection to this young man, who seems to be thrifty, I think no one could blame you for leaving a home where whipping, instead of peacefully talking things out, is part of the domestic program.

Is He Engaged?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We had all lived in the same town, but her family moved to the big city about a year before I did. When I reached there, they were settled and as I didn't know anyone else, I found it pleasant to go to their house, especially when they invited me to meals, rides and their social affairs.

But I wasn't in love with the girl, and never spoke an affectionate word to her. I thought she was modern enough to understand a straight, honest friendship between a boy and girl.

Now her parents seem to think there's an "understanding" and have said things about our future that make me wonder. I had a talk with the girl about it, but she said she'd always loved me, and then I didn't know what to do. When I left I said I was terribly sorry that she felt hurt, but I'm sure glad I had sense enough to maintain a "hands off" policy. Now, am I or am I not engaged?

FRIGHTENED

If you haven't made love or built air castles that the girl misunderstood, certainly you're not engaged. And there's no reason in the world why you should be roped into a marriage with a girl who has taken so much for granted.

The whole situation is absolutely unmodern. Young men used to get into predicaments of this sort a generation or two ago, but nowadays girls are supposed to understand that friendship carries no obligations.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

LINDA turned to the car where Ronald waited as the door closed behind Robert. It was such a final closing. Not sharp. Not swift. Just inevitable.

"Linda, Sarah's eloped," Ronald said. "Eloped with a man from our band!"

"I didn't know she was interested in any of the men in your band," she answered as she climbed into the car.

"She isn't. That's it! Don't you see? But she thought that it was hopeless to wait around. Oh, I'm making a mess of it. Sarah fell in love with me, really in love. Not at first. That was a game she played. But later . . ."

His voice was broken and hurt. There was no pretense in it now. Linda spoke steadily.

"You mean since that night on the boat when I saw you, and maybe before?"

He nodded, not speaking.

The road was deserted at this hour. They had gone over to the streets along the piers and turned northward. There was a smell of fish and an odor of salt in the wind.

Ronald spoke again. "She can't marry this man, Linda, because she doesn't care anything about him. He's not a bad saxophone, but he's not for her. Some day there'll be somebody else. Oh, hang it, we've got to stop her, Linda!"

It seemed to Linda, thinking about it afterward, that in that moment she grew up. Suddenly the whole pattern was clear. She and Ronnie had grown up together. They had given their first boy-and-girl devotion to each other. It had been a preface to an older, wiser love, but they had not known. They had gone on, blindly believing this was real.

And it wasn't. She knew it now. Ronald loved Sarah, but he had felt that the new affection must not replace the old one. In this new understanding Linda could even forgive him for asking her to wait with her evidence concerning Mr. Parrish. She could forgive him, but not quite forget.

As the car spend past the steamship agencies she spoke simply. "Ronald, why didn't you tell me you loved Sarah?"

The eyes he turned to hers were troubled, not believing.

"I love you!"

So he still would cling to the fabric of the pattern, still believe in something that was beautiful and had been lost! Oh, life and love would be such simple things if she could accept his words and make her heart repeat them.

"No, Ronald, not for a long time. Or why are you trying to rescue Sarah?"

"Because I—" His voice paused, then finished swiftly. "Because I can't bear to see her marry anyone else!"

Linda managed to grin in the dark car. "Swell, Ronnie, then she won't marry anyone else. We'll get to her. Do you know where she went?"

"I think so. The saxophone player spilled the beans to some of us tonight. Wanted me to hear, and I got the name out of him. They have a head start. Maybe we can't overtake them."

"I'm holding on tight and you're stepping on the gas. We will overtake them!"

"But you, Linda?" Suddenly he remembered that he had been engaged to her.

She tried to laugh, but the sound was more like a sob. She did not care—but so many things were going to pieces. "Don't you remember, Ronnie? I'm the girl who told you we were taking different paths awhile ago? We aren't engaged anymore."

"But that was foolish—"

"Not foolish. Just sensible. I like you, Ronnie. You're—you're tops. But that's all. Now let's think about getting to Sarah."

At that moment she did not think about Robert. She was seeing the many times when Ronald had come to her in loyalty, trying to keep an old romance bright, telling himself that Sarah was an infatuation because he had made a pledge elsewhere.

There was a traffic jam ahead of them as they swung to the road up to Connecticut and they were held up 15 minutes. At last Ronald climbed out of the car.

He came back in a moment. "We can't get through. Two trucks overturned. No one hurt, but it will be half an hour before the highway is opened."

Half an hour.

In that time Sarah would have said her marriage vows, and she and Ronnie might as well go home at once. They couldn't do that. She had helped Ronnie too long to fail him now.

"Isn't there some sort of car on the other side of the jam that we could commandeer?" she asked. She slipped into the driver's seat and drove Ronnie's off the beaten path into a field. Then she held out her hand.

"Come on, we'll get one and make it turn around after we get through the barricade."

They found a car which was willing. It belonged to some high school boys who had covered it with gay signs, but they did not notice them.

"Step on it!" Ronnie said, and the car whizzed up the road. It didn't travel as fast as Linda had imagined it would. She felt herself holding to the door, shaking it, trying to wish it into faster speed.

One mile passed. Two and three. They went on and on. Finally Ronald gave the name of the minister they wanted. It was that of a man who conducted a marriage mart, performing ceremonies in swift procession. They were brief affairs, too. Probably Sarah and the saxophonist were gone by now, Linda thought.

For just a moment, eyes on the low white moon, with the sweet smell of new earth rushing past, she thought of that other Connecticut ceremony of two nights ago. It had been held in a church, where there were flowers and candles and vows to be taken. And Robert had been there. Ah, there would be time enough to think about him later.

The car stopped. Ronald handed the driver a bill and clutched Linda's slender arm. He hurried her through the maze of cars at the entrance to the building.

From the entrance she could not see Sarah. Nor was there any sign of her around the room.

"She must be here," Linda said. "Or maybe she hasn't arrived yet, Ronnie. Maybe that's it."

THE DAILY STORY

LETTER PERFECT

Reading the Letter Over, She Knew It Was Full of Lies, but the Biggest Falsehood Was Herself.

By MARY DRAKE

The girl crossed the shabby little room and pulled up the cracked shade to admit as much morning sunlight as could dodge around the corner of the apartment building next door. She looked searchingly into the small mirror at the faint lines of fatigue which etched her face with shadows.

The letter lay upon the table, set with the materials of a scanty breakfast and a hurried one. She paced the floor back and forth before the table deep in thought three of four times, and then sat down. While she sipped her breakfast coffee she reread the letter.

The Pages Rustled Dryly

"Dear Sister Flo: I know that I should be ashamed for not having written to you sooner, but I know that you will understand, in that nice, big-sister way of yours, that here in New York I have been finding life so full I have scarcely time to eat."

The pages rustled dryly as the girl shifted them to her left hand in order to lift a piece of toast to her mouth. Her eyes followed the lines avidly.

"I know that the first thing you will want to know is how I am succeeding in my new job at the Orpheum. You and mother were both dead set against me going to New York to try my luck on the stage, but I guess I have shown you both by this time that little sister Millie knew what she was talking about.

"If you see Jimmy, you can tell him also that I have accomplished what I set out to do three months ago—that I've found out just what I am capable of doing in the show world and am doing it to the best of my ability. By the way, I hope that you received the check I sent to you for my part of mother's upkeep. It isn't much, but it was all I had left after buying a new summer outfit."

The Orpheum! For years she had read of the famous names who crammed the dressing rooms at the Orpheum. It must be wonderful, even if you only could manage a small part in a show, to feel that you were so near to greatness, could reach out and touch it actually if you had the whim. In her mind, the girl catalogued her wardrobe, no item of which was less than two years old, most of them well beyond that. Oh, to be able to be successful and happy and unworried!

"Of course, you understand why I turned Jimmy down when he wanted me to reconsider and marry him on the evening before I came to New York. Can you imagine me, spending the rest of my life in Alexandria—married to a grocer? I'm not saying anything about Jimmy personally, because I think he is a swell fellow, but he and I don't think alike!"

Jimmy was a swell fellow, all right! He had more real humanity in him than a cageful of Millies would ever have, but he couldn't budge Millie's decision one bit. He would one day probably become one of Alexandria's leading citizens, if he kept on the way he had since he inherited his father's small business. He had the right idea, being a big frog in a small puddle. Funny, some people couldn't stand that, or thought they couldn't.

"One meets so many exciting personalities in a place like New York, especially if one is connected with the theater, which of course attracts all manner of geniuses. At a party the other night for Anastasia Dimitrov—you know, the Russian countess who is starring in 'Lost Hope'—I met several noblemen. Imagine that! I've been out to dinner and to luncheon any number of times with some of the actors and writers and musicians you probably read about in the syndicated gossip columns which the Alexandria Register picks up from New York, that is, when my own theater engagements permit me the time.

The girl made a wry mouth as she chased the last crumb of the toast to the edge of the plate and put it in her mouth, swallowing after it the dregs of her cool coffee. How did it feel, she wondered, to be able to enter one of the swank eating places in New York, a famous man at one's heels, and order anything one chose, no matter how exotic? It must be the next thing to heaven!

"I know that mother has been worrying about me, even if I am perfectly all right and getting on wonderfully. You tell her for me that one of these days I'll be back home with enough money for that eye operation I promised her."

Poor mother! With all the worry she had after the head of the house passed away, with the awful burden of blindness creeping up on her. To have the added bitterness of her youngest child running off to a strange place totally alone. It wasn't right! But it was too late now to change anything. The plan of life was too far begun to make any alterations now, if only for pride's sake!

"And so, Flo, darling, you can see that I am far from being idle here in the big city. I miss you and mother, of course, but some day we'll all be together again and all the little differences we've had in the past will be forgotten. I am feeling wonderful. I have my work and new friends galore, so you see there is nothing for you to worry about either on my score. I'll have to dash off now for rehearsal, so excuse this tiny note. I hope you are all well, and Jimmy, too. Say hello for me when you see him, will you? Love to all."

The girl stared at the blank edges of the paper for a long minute, visualizing the glamour of the life the words hinted at. A tear welled and dropped upon the saucer before her and she proudly brushed away another. Then she reached out for the pen on the table and resolutely scrawled a single word at the end of the letter.

"Millie," she wrote firmly.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Report Promised on Mine Inspection Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Chairman Smith (D-WVa) of the House Mines and Mining Committee, said today he had been promised a report "within the next week" from a subcommittee which conducted hearings on a federal mine inspection bill.

Upon receipt of the report from Chairman Somers (D-NY) of the subcommittee, Smith said, a meeting of the full committee would be called to take a stand on the legislation (S2420).

The bill, which would require inspection of all coal mines at least once annually by federal officers, has been opposed by coal operators and officials of many coal producing states as unnecessary duplication of state inspection services.

Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, on the other hand, have contended that state inspection services were inadequate and that the federal inspection would reduce the number of accidents and deaths in the mines.

"We who are about to die, salute thee!" was a phrase originally used by gladiators who entered the ring as participants in Roman contests and so saluted the Emperor Claudius.

Writer Insists Handicaps Can Be Overcome

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

An unhappy girl has written to this column that, because she is cross-eyed, she's given up the fight to have friends and be a success. These days young people are operated on successfully for strabismus, the medical term for this condition. My correspondent should seek the best advice and have her eyes operated on, if operative measures are indicated; or she might, like other people with defective eyes, cash in on what she regards as a disfigurement.

Several weeks ago newspapers were flooded with pictures of Ben Turpin, funmaker of the silent films. His crossed eyes were his fortune, even as Eddie Cantor's pop-eyes have been one of his greatest screen assets. Speaking of eyes, Toscanini is so near-sighted that he became impatient reading notes. This handicap put a baton in his hand and made him the greatest of modern conductors.

Roosevelt's Case

Would President Roosevelt ever have attained the highest office in the gift of the nation if it hadn't been for his physical handicap? There is a story to the effect that his wife and the late Louis Howe, his secretary, would not let him for a moment consider himself an invalid after he had fallen a victim to infantile paralysis. They took turns at reading to him all night long, heartening him, minimizing his illness. And whether you're pro-Roosevelt or anti-Roosevelt, you've got to admit the magnificence with which F. D. R. has never allowed this handicap to curtail his work as President of the United States.

John Barrymore was not a howling success as a cartoonist. He shifted to acting—you know the rest. In the beginning it was thought that Ethel's husky voice might not take with the public. But it scored above the usual feminine squeaks and tremolos and made her a conspicuous favorite.

Speaking of voices, the great Mrs. Fiske had no voice at all from the standpoint of vocal experts. Her words ran together, and yet Alexander Woollcott, in his laments for things that have passed, wrote: "I shall never again hear the wonder of Mrs. Fiske's voice in the theater." Her voice was hypnotic; you felt rather than heard the things she interpreted.

O. Henry, most successful of short story writers, mastered the art of writing while serving a prison sentence, now conceded to have been unjust.

Helen Hayes' Handicap

Helen Hayes, when a child, was destined by her ambitious mother to be a dancer. Slightly pigeon-toed she didn't succeed in that art, but became the splendid actress she is.

Clarence Day, who wrote "Life With Father", was terribly handicapped with arthritis. Robert Louis Stevenson fought tuberculosis while he turned out books that were the joy of his generation.

Greig, famous composer-pianist, has a defective hand.

Helen Keller has surmounted the triple handicap of blindness, deafness and the inability to speak, which goes with lack of hearing.

It's downright humorous to mention Mr. Hitler and his nerves and his almost comic acceptance of the dictates of his astrologer. Yet he's knocked the crowns off the heads of Europe's anointed, and believes his soothsayer and the stars are equal to the patrons of any seventh daughter of a seventh son. Not conspicuously successful as a paper hanger and painter, Mr. Hitler's handicap has put him in the Napoleon class.

Mrs. McNary's Principal Interests: Her Garden, Her Daughter, HIS Career

By PAUL W. HARVEY
AP Feature Service

SALEM, Ore. — Cornelie Morton McNary isn't sure she'd enjoy going back to Washington, D. C., even as the nation's second lady.

She'd rather putter among the chickens and filbert trees and in her garden at Fircone, her farm home near here.

So far as she's concerned, too, the same goes for her husband, Sen. Charles Linza McNary, Republican nominee for Vice President.

His nomination came as a surprise to her. News of it, a few hours after he had telegraphed her that he would not accept nomination for the second position on the national ticket, nearly bowled her over.

Herself Personally

"It is a great honor, of course," she concedes, "an honor that any woman would be proud to have, and being the wife of the Vice President would be greater still—but we're talking about what I'd prefer, personally."

She had dreamed of living quietly at Fircone when Senator McNary's term expired two years hence.

"I had hopes that he would come home then," she says. "He has worked very hard as senate minority leader, and he is entitled to live as a private citizen. He needs a rest badly; but now, if he's elected, it will be a long time before he can come home to the farm. He loves it here, you know."

What makes life at Fircone so attractive?

Two hundred rolling acres in the perpetually green Williamette valley, a comfortable house, acres of filbert trees, hay, chickens, geese, a boating stream, a flower garden in which she spends hours each day, neighbors who drop in of an evening, friends who have known her husband since he was a baby, on that very farm.

Wedded to Oregon

"I am wedded to Oregon," Mrs. McNary says. "I love this delightful state and its people."

A gracious, intelligent and witty woman, Mrs. McNary is a native of Washington, D. C. Her mother's family has lived in the capital for four generations. Mrs. McNary's residence was there, too, until she and Senator McNary were married in 1923.

"But Washington isn't what it used to be," she says.

Her principal interests at the moment are "my husband's career, our daughter, Charlotte, and my garden."

She supervises operation of the farm, watches the market for filberts, the farm's principal income crop, sees to their harvest, and keeps an eye on the chickens, geese and hay, which also mean cash. Moreover, she assists the senator with many of his political problems. Before their marriage she was a member of the League of Women Voters' executive committee at Washington.

The McNary family cares little for social activity outside its circle of friends.

"We just like to rest when we're at home—we do not do any entertaining. We have so many friends that we couldn't entertain them all."

Mrs. McNary attending her roses on their estate near Salem, Ore. Roses and filbert trees make it a show place.

Problem Child Often Worries Young Mother

Knowing How to Handle Annoying Little Situations Is Important

By GARRY MYERS, Ph. D.

Suppose you were only 24 and had four children from 14 months to five and one-half years of age, do you suppose you would be half as poised and successful as the mother who write the following letter?

"I really feel as if I am writing to an old friend in writing you," says a young mother, "as I have been benefited by the advice in your column so often. . . .

"I am only 24 but am the mother of four children, 5½, 3½, 2½, and 15 months. In the big things like going into the street, coming out when put to bed, etc., I seem to have them under control but I am at a loss what to do about those annoying little things that drive one to distraction yet hardly seem to merit a spanking or other real punishment. The problem child seems to shift from one to the other. Right now the oldest boy is the one who seems to make the most trouble. He is continually picking up things he is not supposed to touch, sticking his fingers in food,etc., always seeming to know just how far he can go without any real punishment but I know that the continual scoldings are not helping him, and certainly not me. I have felt that perhaps these things have arisen from jealousy and I try to spend time reading to them, etc., but I have so little time and since their father works at night he does not have much chance to be with them.

"I certainly will appreciate any help you can give me. This continual uproar is beginning to make me feel I am a complete failure as a mother.

"A self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed."

"Bless your soul, young mother, you should be proud of your success in handling these four little children," my reply stated. "If any of us fathers had your job we would be 'nuts'. What I marvel at is that you reveal as much poise as you do. You have controlled these little children well in large matters. But as you indicate, there are hundreds of little items that try your patience.

"Let me suggest that you put a few more of these 'little things' in the group of 'big things'. For example, after you have warned the youngster once or twice about a forbidden act, speak no more; act. Assign the offender to sit in a chair where you can see him doing nothing for exactly twenty minutes by the clock. If he moves one inch from the chair without permission spank him soundly and without warning. Fine you read to them. Let other things go.

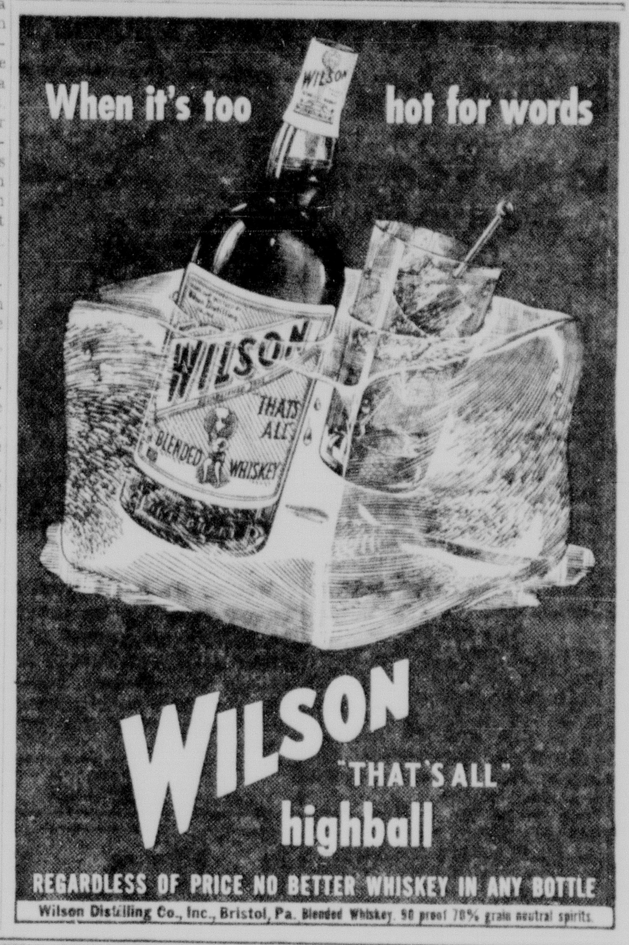

"A little dust or disorder is unimportant in comparison to such companionship with them. Let the elder choose the story, as a rule, since he is 'so big'.

"You are right in suspecting jealously in him. Don't make him give up his things to the younger; certainly not often. See that the younger ones respect his rights. When he does something fine praise him; also when he cooperates with you. When he seems most out of sorts pick him up, hold him on your lap and cuddle him. This will give him the reassurance he so much needs, that he is loved.

"If at all possible, hire some help so you can get more rest and recreation. You even might afford to borrow money for this purpose till these children grow old enough to care for themselves and help you. Train them then to share in the home duties.

"Please, Mrs.——, never condemn yourself again. I just know you are a wonderful mother to those lovely little children and may God bless you. Be proud of your successes with them."

I enclosed a folder describing a series of fifteen pamphlets I have written on the baby and young child, being simple presentations of my university lectures to pre-school parents. Anyone else may receive this folder by writing me at 235 E. Forty-fifth street, New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Veteran Unit Meets

A paper on the Life of Prince Gallitzin, telling of his conversion to Catholicism and the reformation of his private life, was read by Miss Catherine McKenzie at a meeting, Wednesday evening, of the Gallitzin Veteran Mission Unit of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, at the home of the president, Miss Joan Kerr.

It was announced that Charles Brode would serve as chairman of a committee to plan an entertainment to be held the latter part of this month.

Mr. Brode, Robert Louis, Miss Catherine McKenzie, Miss Mary Becker and Miss Louise Santora comprise a committee to sell football tickets.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Knieriem, of 509 Franklin street, announce the marriage of their son, Ralph, to Miss Marie Stevens, daughter of Mr. J. E. Stevens, of La Vale.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Boniface, O. F. M. Cap., at a nuptial mass yesterday at 9 a. m. at SS. Peter and Paul church.

Events in Brief

A large crowd is expected to attend the Junior Volunteer Service Corps dance to be held at 10 o'clock this evening at the Cumberland Country Club, Christie road, which will benefit the crippled children. Although tickets are not available through members of the Junior Volunteer Service Corps, it is hoped that this worthy cause will be well patronized. Miss Elsie Mae Poling heads the committee on arrangements and is being assisted by Mrs. Robert M. King, Mrs. Howard L. Tolson and Mrs. R. Arden Lowndes.

The Young Peoples class of Fairview Christian church will hold an all day community picnic today.

At 7 o'clock tomorrow evening a picnic will be held by the churches of the Oldtown Methodist circuit at Nixon's Grove, near Oldtown. A band concert at the Oldtown church will feature the picnic.

Members of the Flintstone Homemakers Club and their families will hold a wiener roast at 7:30 o'clock this evening at Constitution Park.

A social will be held at 7 o'clock this evening on the lawn at Fairview Methodist church. There will be cake, candy, pie, ice cream and tonic for sale.

Adding to the gayety of the racing meet, the Hiwaiian Gardens graced the beautiful Ali Ghan Country Club, Baltimore pike, at the opening of the special race weeks' entertainment Wednesday evening. The garden will be open every evening during the race meet.

City Best Place To Get the Men Who Are Eligible

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

So you're going on your vacation my dear Annabelle, and this time you hope to meet "someone interesting." This, translated, means you hope to meet an eligible man.

You tell me you're 27, but are never taken for a day over 22; you're easy on the eyes, dress well, and your last three vacations were sorry disappointments. You met nothing but dowagers, "wife-watched husbands, acting as nurse-maids for spoiled children." And at the last place—some sort of a camp—you met dreary girls who were supposed to be made over athletics but were not, and never a man but the milkman and the hobble-de-hoy who left the ice.

And so Annabelle, you're of two minds: shall you chance another of these melancholy holidays, or put you vacation money in a bond, a fur coat, or a saving account? Well, my dear, you might do any of those things and be more sure of meeting that almost unknown quantity — an eligible man —than if you continue to fly to some Adamless Eden for your summer holiday.

The happy hunting ground for the girl-shy male is right here in the shadow of the skyscrapers and the baking brick and asphalt of the teeming city. More men are caught in towns during the summer months than flies on flypaper. Bear that in mind, Annabelle.

The type of man regarded as eligible is not found very often at the average summer resort. He has to stay dressed up; he has to work like a stevedore dancing with girls in stuffy ballrooms of evenings, and unless he's the shyest of shy violets, he doesn't enjoy being continually mobbed by girls languishing from the usual nine-to-one ratio of girls to men at such places. If a man is presenttable he'd rather share this terrific competition with others of the male persuasion.

Eligibles On Vacation

Eligibles—real eligibles—like more primitive vacations where they can relax, wear rough clothes, fish, swim, sail, and cook their own messes in the open. They don't plan for girls. They're taking a vacation from them too, and girls must be mighty clever to know how to stalk this type of vacationing game.

The best bet, as I've had in confidences addressed to this column, is to get some woman related to one of the campers to surprise them with a gift of fresh vegetables and fruit. Girl tags along and hopes for the best. The man, the place, the hour has sometimes turned the trick, but it's a chancy business. Even then, girls may find a sulky bunch of campers who can do without vegetable gifts as well as girls.

But the city—the great, teeming, hot city — is a girl's best bet in stalking eligibles.

Won't Stay Cooped

Long summer vacations are incompatible with the successful male. He probably takes his holiday on a winter cruise. But no normal man wants to stay cooped in a house when the thermometer soars. He thinks of rivers, rowboats, canoes, suppers cooked in the open with someone who likes that sort of thing too. Even the humbler "moonlight boatride" at so much per head is not to be overlooked.

Nearly all cities have resorts, and the eligible bachelor who may be so shy that he hardly speaks to a girl at an adjoining desk in winter time, will be driven by yearning for the great out-of-doors, to pluck up courage and ask her for a date.

Yes, my dear Annabelle, my suggestion to you is to try the city this time.

Too Old To Be Whipped

Dear Miss Fairfax,

I am a girl of 18 years, going "steady" with a young man for about six months. He is 24. We're very much in love with each other and he has asked me many times to marry him. He makes a pretty good salary, and he has almost enough furniture to fill a four-room apartment.

Here's my problem. My mother is terribly mean to me. She refuses to let me see any young men, but I do meet my boy friend on the sly. Last week, when she found out I was meeting him, she gave me a terrible whipping. Don't you think I'm too old for that? The young man found out about it, and is more determined than ever that I should go away with him and get married.

I've just about decided to slip off with him. Do you think I'd be doing the right thing?

TROUBLED.

Modern people do not think so well of Solomon's precept: "Spare not the rod and spoil the child." It's unthinkable that a girl of 18 years should be subjected to this brutal form of chastisement. Who does your mother dislike this young man?

If there's no valid objection to this young man, who seems to be thrifty, I think no one could blame you for leaving a home where whipping, instead of peacefully talking things out, is part of the domestic program.

Is He Engaged?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We had all lived in the same town, but her family moved to the big city about a year before I did. When I reached there, they were settled and as I didn't know anyone else, I found it pleasant to go to their house, especially when they invited me to meals, rides and their social affairs.

But I wasn't in love with the girl, and never spoke an affectionate word to her. I thought she was modern enough to understand a straight, honest friendship between a boy and girl.

Now her parents seem to think there's an "understanding" and have said things about our future that make me wonder. I had a talk with the girl about it, but she said she'd always loved me, and then I didn't know what to do. When I left I said I was terribly sorry that she felt hurt, but I'm sure glad I had sense enough to maintain a "hands off" policy. Now, am I or am I not engaged?

FRIGHTENED

If you haven't made love or built air castles that the girl misunderstood, certainly you're not engaged. And there's no reason in the world why you should be roped into a marriage with a girl who has taken so much for granted.

The whole situation is absolutely unmodern. Young men used to get into predicaments of this sort a generation or two ago, but nowadays girls are supposed to understand that friendship carries no obligations.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

LINDA turned to the car where Ronald waited as the door closed behind Robert. It was such a final closing. Not sharp. Not swift. Just inevitable.

"Linda, Sarah's eloped," Ronald said. "Eloped with a man from our band!"

"I didn't know she was interested in any of the men in your band," she answered as she climbed into the car.

"She isn't. That's it! Don't you see? But she thought that it was hopeless to wait around. Oh, I'm making a mess of it. Sarah fell in love with me, really in love. Not at first. That was a game she played. But later . . ."

His voice was broken and hurt. There was no pretense in it now. Linda spoke steadily.

"You mean since that night on the boat when I saw you, and maybe before?"

He nodded, not speaking.

The road was deserted at this hour. They had gone over to the streets along the piers and turned northward. There was a smell of fish and an odor of salt in the wind.

Ronald spoke again. "She can't marry this man, Linda, because she doesn't care anything about him. He's not a bad saxophone, but he's not for her. Some day there'll be somebody else. Oh, hang it, we've got to stop her, Linda!"

It seemed to Linda, thinking about it afterward, that in that moment she grew up. Suddenly the whole pattern was clear. She and Ronnie had grown up together. They had given their first boy-and-girl devotion to each other. It had been a preface to an older, wiser love, but they had not known. They had gone on, blindly believing this was real.

And it wasn't. She knew it now. Ronald loved Sarah, but he had felt that the new affection must not replace the old one. In this new understanding Linda could even forgive him for asking her to wait with her evidence concerning Mr. Parrish. She could forgive him, but not quite forget.

As the car spend past the steamship agencies she spoke simply. "Ronald, why didn't you tell me you loved Sarah?"

The eyes he turned to hers were troubled, not believing.

"I love you!"

So he still would cling to the fabric of the pattern, still believe in something that was beautiful and had been lost! Oh, life and love would be such simple things if she could accept his words and make her heart repeat them.

"No, Ronald, not for a long time. Or why are you trying to rescue Sarah?"

"Because I—" His voice paused, then finished swiftly. "Because I can't bear to see her marry anyone else!"

Linda managed to grin in the dark car. "Swell, Ronnie, then she won't marry anyone else. We'll get to her. Do you know where she went?"

"I think so. The saxophone player spilled the beans to some of us tonight. Wanted me to hear, and I got the name out of him. They have a head start. Maybe we can't overtake them."

"I'm holding on tight and you're stepping on the gas. We will overtake them!"

"But you, Linda?" Suddenly he remembered that he had been engaged to her.

She tried to laugh, but the sound was more like a sob. She did not care—but so many things were going to pieces. "Don't you remember, Ronnie? I'm the girl who told you we were taking different paths awhile ago? We aren't engaged anymore."

"But that was foolish—"

"Not foolish. Just sensible. I like you, Ronnie. You're—you're tops. But that's all. Now let's think about getting to Sarah."

At that moment she did not think about Robert. She was seeing the many times when Ronald had come to her in loyalty, trying to keep an old romance bright, telling himself that Sarah was an infatuation because he had made a pledge elsewhere.

There was a traffic jam ahead of them as they swung to the road up to Connecticut and they were held up 15 minutes. At last Ronald climbed out of the car.

He came back in a moment. "We can't get through. Two trucks overturned. No one hurt, but it will be half an hour before the highway is opened."

Half an hour.

In that time Sarah would have said her marriage vows, and she and Ronnie might as well go home at once. They couldn't do that. She had helped Ronnie too long to fail him now.

"Isn't there some sort of car on the other side of the jam that we could commandeer?" she asked. She slipped into the driver's seat and drove Ronnie's off the beaten path into a field. Then she held out her hand.

"Come on, we'll get one and make it turn around after we get through the barricade."

They found a car which was willing. It belonged to some high school boys who had covered it with gay signs, but they did not notice them.

"Step on it!" Ronnie said, and the car whizzed up the road. It didn't travel as fast as Linda had imagined it would. She felt herself holding to the door, shaking it, trying to wish it into faster speed.

One mile passed. Two and three. They went on and on. Finally Ronald gave the name of the minister they wanted. It was that of a man who conducted a marriage mart, performing ceremonies in swift procession. They were brief affairs, too. Probably Sarah and the saxophonist were gone by now, Linda thought.

For just a moment, eyes on the low white moon, with the sweet smell of new earth rushing past, she thought of that other Connecticut ceremony of two nights ago. It had been held in a church, where there were flowers and candles and vows to be taken. And Robert had been there. Ah, there would be time enough to think about him later.

The car stopped. Ronald handed the driver a bill and clutched Linda's slender arm. He hurried her through the maze of cars at the entrance to the building.

From the entrance she could not see Sarah. Nor was there any sign of her around the room.

"She must be here," Linda said. "Or maybe she hasn't arrived yet, Ronnie. Maybe that's it."

Comedian Will Be On Radio Program As Serious Actor

Jack Pearl Will Play the Story of Tito, the Clown

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—Jack Pearl, comedian, comes to the radio Friday night as a serious actor. He will play in the weekly MBS feature, Command Performance, at 8:30, in the story of Tito, tragic tale of a clown [illegible]

This will be Jack's second appearance in the series, his first being at the opening of the program last March. These broadcasts are the realization of a Pearl ambition to cast aside gags and puns for a straight role.

Life of Hoff

Al Pearce has been going in for "The Life of" skits in his CBS broadcasts, for the east at 6:30 and for the west at 9:30. This time it will be Carl Hoff, his orchestra leader who in every program gets heckling lines to read beside his job of baton waving.

The life of Tex Rickard, prize fight promoter, will be given in certain details by the old ranger in the Death Valley day tales of WJZ-NBC at 7:30.

This is the hour, too, when CBS and Ted Husing display another edition of the sports quiz series, Choose Up Sides. Among the guests this time is expected to be Ham Fisher, creator of the comic character, Joe Palooka.

From Europe

Listening of and from Europe presents this list: NBC 7 a. m., 12:45, 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 p. m.; WJZ-NBC 9; MBS 9, 9:15.

In continuation of the broadcasts of national defense, some of the problems involved therein will be taken up on WEAF-NBC at 6:45 by Harry B. Mitchell and Lawson A. Moyer of the civil service commission.

Rumania Promulgates New Jewish Laws

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Rumanian cabinet promulgated tonight a new Jewish law which was a major step in this country's adoption of Nazi ideas.

The law separates Rumania's 750,000 Jews in three categories:

To the first—Jews who have fought in the front line for Rumania, and their descendants—are accorded some of the rights of Christians. Those of this class who hold public office may keep their jobs, but no new appointments will be made.

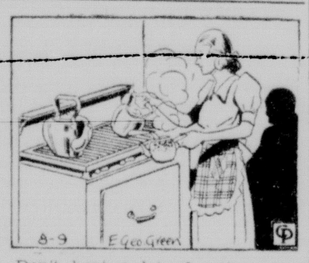

Jews in the second and third categories—those in regions annexed to Rumania after the World war and those of the old Rumania who never were in active combat for the Fatherland—are barred from public office, from professions "having direct liaison with the public authority", and from operating cafes, tobacco shops, movie theaters and many other enterprises.

All Jews are prohibited from owning farms or other rural lands. Those now owning such properties will lose them to the government and be recompensed with bonds.

Jews in the second and third categories are barred from military service. In place of such service there will be a special tax—cash if they have it, otherwise payable in labor on public works.

The highest spot in the world inhabited by human beings is the Buddhist cloister of Hanie, Thibet, where the priests live at an altitude of 16,000 feet.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Don't heat a lot of water when you only need a small amount. If you have room in your kitchen it is well to have a large tea kettle for occasions when you need a good deal of water, and a small one for boiling water when you only wish to make a small teapot of tea.

Coal Company President Resigns

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8 (AP)—J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company—the nation's largest commercial producer of bituminous coal—resigned today effective August 31.

He will become president of the Joy Manufacturing Company of Franklin, Pa., makers of Mobile coal loading machines. Morrow helped found the Pittsburgh Coal Company and was its president for thirteen years.

Writer Insists Handicaps Can Be Overcome

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

An unhappy girl has written to this column that, because she is cross-eyed, she's given up the fight to have friends and be a success. These days young people are operated on successfully for strabismus, the medical term for this condition. My correspondent should seek the best advice and have her eyes operated on, if operative measures are indicated; or she might, like other people with defective eyes, cash in on what she regards as a disfigurement.

Several weeks ago newspapers were flooded with pictures of Ben Turpin, funmaker of the silent films. His crossed eyes were his fortune, even as Eddie Cantor's pop-eyes have been one of his greatest screen assets. Speaking of eyes, Toscanini is so near-sighted that he became impatient reading notes. This handicap put a baton in his hand and made him the greatest of modern conductors.

Roosevelt's Case

Would President Roosevelt ever have attained the highest office in the gift of the nation if it hadn't been for his physical handicap? There is a story to the effect that his wife and the late Louis Howe, his secretary, would not let him for a moment consider himself an invalid after he had fallen a victim to infantile paralysis. They took turns at reading to him all night long, heartening him, minimizing his illness. And whether you're pro-Roosevelt or anti-Roosevelt, you've got to admit the magnificence with which F. D. R. has never allowed this handicap to curtail his work as President of the United States.

John Barrymore was not a howling success as a cartoonist. He shifted to acting—you know the rest. In the beginning it was thought that Ethel's husky voice might not take with the public. But it scored above the usual feminine squeaks and tremolos and made her a conspicuous favorite.

Speaking of voices, the great Mrs. Fiske had no voice at all from the standpoint of vocal experts. Her words ran together, and yet Alexander Woollcott, in his laments for things that have passed, wrote: "I shall never again hear the wonder of Mrs. Fiske's voice in the theater." Her voice was hypnotic; you felt rather than heard the things she interpreted.

O. Henry, most successful of short story writers, mastered the art of writing while serving a prison sentence, now conceded to have been unjust.

Helen Hayes' Handicap

Helen Hayes, when a child, was destined by her ambitious mother to be a dancer. Slightly pigeon-toed she didn't succeed in that art, but became the splendid actress she is. Clarence Day, who wrote "Life With Father", was terribly handicapped with arthritis. Robert Louis Stevenson fought tuberculosis while he turned out books that were the joy of his generation.

Greig, famous composer-pianist, has a defective hand.

Helen Keller has surmounted the triple handicap of blindness, deafness and the inability to speak, which goes with lack of hearing.

It's downright humorous to mention Mr. Hitler and his nerves and his almost comic acceptance of the dictates of his astrologer. Yet he's knocked the crowns off the heads of Europe's anointed, and believes his soothsayer and the stars are equal to the patrons of any seventh daughter of a seventh son. Not conspicuously successful as a paper hanger and painter, Mr. Hitler's handicap has put him in the Napoleon class.

Mrs. McNary's Principal Interests: Her Garden, Her Daughter, HIS Career

By PAUL W. HARVEY
AP Feature Service

SALEM, Ore. — Cornelie Morton McNary isn't sure she'd enjoy going back to Washington, D. C., even as the nation's second lady.

She'd rather putter among the chickens and filbert trees and in her garden at Fircone, her farm home near here.

So far as she's concerned, too, the same goes for her husband, Sen. Charles Linza McNary, Republican nominee for Vice President.

His nomination came as a surprise to her. News of it, a few hours after he had telegraphed her that he would not accept nomination for the second position on the national ticket, nearly bowled her over.

Herself Personally

"It is a great honor, of course," she concedes, "an honor that any woman would be proud to have, and being the wife of the Vice President would be greater still—but we're talking about what I'd prefer, personally."

She had dreamed of living quietly at Fircone when Senator McNary's term expired two years hence.

"I had hopes that he would come home then," she says. "He has worked very hard as senate minority leader, and he is entitled to live as a private citizen. He needs a rest badly; but now, if he's elected, it will be a long time before he can come home to the farm. He loves it here, you know."

What makes life at Fircone so attractive?

Two hundred rolling acres in the perpetually green Williamette valley, a comfortable house, acres of filbert trees, hay, chickens, geese, a boating stream, a flower garden in which she spends hours each day, neighbors who drop in of an evening, friends who have known her husband since he was a baby, on that very farm.

Wedded to Oregon

"I am wedded to Oregon," Mrs. McNary says. "I love this delightful state and its people."

A gracious, intelligent and witty woman, Mrs. McNary is a native of Washington, D. C. Her mother's family has lived in the capital for four generations. Mrs. McNary's residence was there, too, until she and Senator McNary were married in 1923.

"But Washington isn't what it used to be," she says.

Her principal interests at the moment are "my husband's career, our daughter, Charlotte, and my garden."

She supervises operation of the farm, watches the market for filberts, the farm's principal income crop, sees to their harvest, and keeps an eye on the chickens, geese and hay, which also mean cash. Moreover, she assists the senator with many of his political problems. Before their marriage she was a member of the League of Women Voters' executive committee at Washington.

The McNary family cares little for social activity outside its circle of friends.

"We just like to rest when we're at home—we do not do any entertaining. We have so many friends that we couldn't entertain them all."

Mrs. McNary attending her roses on their estate near Salem, Ore. Roses and filbert trees make it a show place.

Problem Child Often Worries Young Mother

Knowing How to Handle Annoying Little Situations Is Important

By GARRY MYERS, Ph. D.

Suppose you were only 24 and had four children from 14 months to five and one-half years of age, do you suppose you would be half as poised and successful as the mother who write the following letter?

"I really feel as if I am writing to an old friend in writing you," says a young mother, "as I have been benefited by the advice in your column so often. . . .

"I am only 24 but am the mother of four children, 5½, 3½, 2½, and 15 months. In the big things like going into the street, coming out when put to bed, etc., I seem to have them under control but I am at a loss what to do about those annoying little things that drive one to distraction yet hardly seem to merit a spanking or other real punishment. The problem child seems to shift from one to the other. Right now the oldest boy is the one who seems to make the most trouble. He is continually picking up things he is not supposed to touch, sticking his fingers in food,etc., always seeming to know just how far he can go without any real punishment but I know that the continual scoldings are not helping him, and certainly not me. I have felt that perhaps these things have arisen from jealousy and I try to spend time reading to them, etc., but I have so little time and since their father works at night he does not have much chance to be with them.

"I certainly will appreciate any help you can give me. This continual uproar is beginning to make me feel I am a complete failure as a mother.

"A self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed."

"Bless your soul, young mother, you should be proud of your success in handling these four little children," my reply stated. "If any of us fathers had your job we would be 'nuts'. What I marvel at is that you reveal as much poise as you do. You have controlled these little children well in large matters. But as you indicate, there are hundreds of little items that try your patience.

"Let me suggest that you put a few more of these 'little things' in the group of 'big things'. For example, after you have warned the youngster once or twice about a forbidden act, speak no more; act. Assign the offender to sit in a chair where you can see him doing nothing for exactly twenty minutes by the clock. If he moves one inch from the chair without permission spank him soundly and without warning. Fine you read to them. Let other things go.

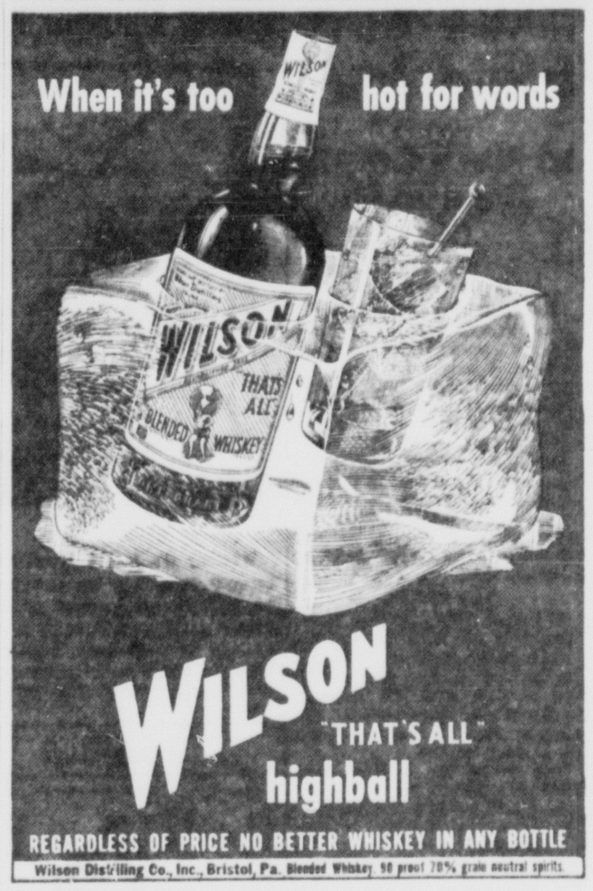

"A little dust or disorder is unimportant in comparison to such companionship with them. Let the elder choose the story, as a rule, since he is 'so big'.

"You are right in suspecting jealously in him. Don't make him give up his things to the younger; certainly not often. See that the younger ones respect his rights. When he does something fine praise him; also when he cooperates with you. When he seems most out of sorts pick him up, hold him on your lap and cuddle him. This will give him the reassurance he so much needs, that he is loved.

"If at all possible, hire some help so you can get more rest and recreation. You even might afford to borrow money for this purpose till these children grow old enough to care for themselves and help you. Train them then to share in the home duties.

"Please, Mrs.——, never condemn yourself again. I just know you are a wonderful mother to those lovely little children and may God bless you. Be proud of your successes with them."

I enclosed a folder describing a series of fifteen pamphlets I have written on the baby and young child, being simple presentations of my university lectures to pre-school parents. Anyone else may receive this folder by writing me at 235 E. Forty-fifth street, New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Comedian Will Be On Radio Program As Serious Actor

Jack Pearl Will Play the Story of Tito, the Clown

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—Jack Pearl, comedian, comes to the radio Friday night as a serious actor. He will play in the weekly MBS feature, Command Performance, at 8:30, in the story of Tito, tragic tale of a clown with his frustrated love.

This will be Jack's second appearance in the series, his first being at the opening of the program last March. These broadcasts are the realization of a Pearl ambition to cast aside gags and puns for a straight role.

Life of Hoff

Al Pearce has been going in for "The Life of" skits in his CBS broadcasts, for the east at 6:30 and for the west at 9:30. This time it will be Carl Hoff, his orchestra leader who in every program gets heckling lines to read beside his job of baton waving.

The life of Tex Rickard, prize fight promoter, will be given in certain details by the old ranger in the Death Valley day tales of WJZ-NBC at 7:30.

This is the hour, too, when CBS and Ted Husing display another edition of the sports quiz series, Choose Up Sides. Among the guests this time is expected to be Ham Fisher, creator of the comic character, Joe Palooka.

From Europe

Listening of and from Europe presents this list: NBC 7 a. m., 12:45, 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 p. m.; WJZ-NBC 9; MBS 9, 9:15.

In continuation of the broadcasts of national defense, some of the problems involved therein will be taken up on WEAP-NBC at 6:45 by Harry B. Mitchell and Lawson A. Mover of the civil service commission.

Rumania Promulgates New Jewish Laws

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Rumanian cabinet promulgated tonight a new Jewish law which was a major step in this country's adoption of Nazi ideas.

The law separates Rumania's 750,000 Jews in three categories:

To the first—Jews who have fought in the front line for Rumania, and their descendants—are accorded some of the rights of Christians. Those of this class who hold public office may keep their jobs, but no new appointments will be made.

Jews in the second and third categories—those in regions annexed to Rumania after the World war and those of the old Rumania who never were in active combat for the Fatherland—are barred from public office, from professions "having direct liaison with the public authority", and from operating cafes, tobacco shops, movie theaters and many other enterprises.

All Jews are prohibited from owning farms or other rural lands. Those now owning such properties will lose them to the government and be recompensed with bonds.

Jews in the second and third categories are barred from military service. In place of such service there will be a special tax—cash if they have it, otherwise payable in labor on public works.

The highest spot in the world inhabited by human beings is the Buddhist cloister of Hanle, Thibet, where the priests live at an altitude of 16,000 feet.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Don't heat a lot of water when you only need a small amount. If you have room in your kitchen it is well to have a large tea kettle for occasions when you need a good deal of water, and a small one for boiling water when you only wish to make a small teapot of tea.

Coal Company President Resigns

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8 (AP)—J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company—the nation's largest commercial producer of bituminous coal—resigned today effective August 31.

He will become president of the Joy Manufacturing Company of Franklin, Pa., makers of Mobile coal loading machines. Morrow helped found the Pittsburgh Coal Company and was its president for thirteen years.

Bedford Man Fined For Careless Driving

Harvey E. England, of Bedford, Pa., was fined $5 on a careless driving charge, yesterday in police court by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

He is alleged to have failed to stop at the Frederick and Decatur street intersection and caused a three car collision. The other two drivers, Henry T. Smith, 347 Bedford street, and Mary B. Milburn, Bedford, Pa., were found not guilty on careless driving charges.

Officers W. J. Cubbage and R. M. Nuse made the arrests.

Former Cumberland Resident Succumbs

Miss Helen Wilson, 26, of Denver, Colo., died yesterday morning at her home. She was born in Cumberland and lived here until six years ago when the family went to Denver.

She is survived by her father, Walter Wilson, and three brothers, Howard and Woodrow, of Ogden, Utah; and Merrill, Denver. Her mother, the late Mrs. Edith Barnes Wilson, died two years ago.

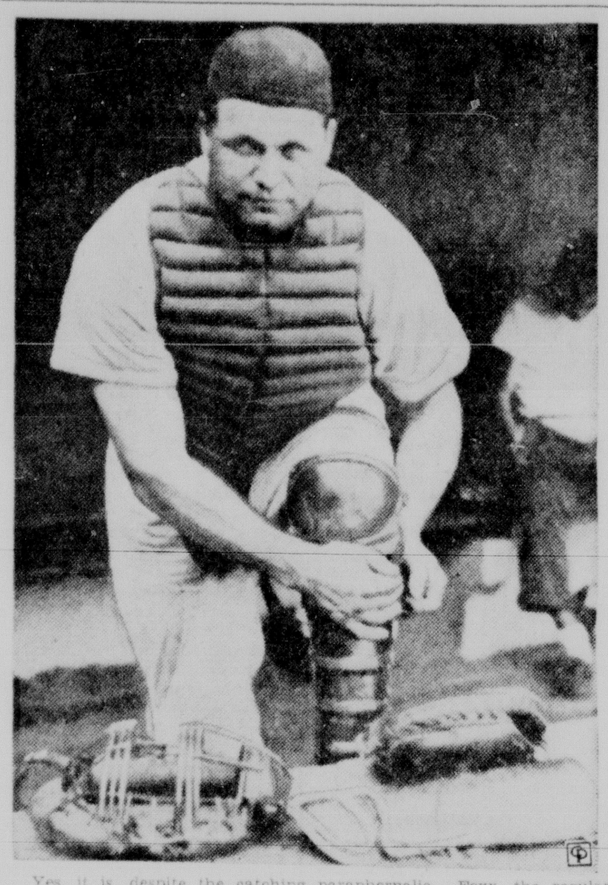

The body will arrive here Saturday morning and will be taken to Wolfords funeral home to remain until the funeral hour.

One Birth Reported

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shanholtz announce the birth of a daughter at their home in Wiley Ford, W. Va., Thursday, Aug. 18.

NOT OUR JIMMY FOXX, IS IT!

Yes, it is, despite the catching paraphernalia. Foxx, the regular Red Sox first baseman, donned the mask for the first time in two years during the Cleveland series. Jimmy, you know, once was a catcher. The move was to insert as much punch into the Sox lineup as possible. Lou Finney, outfielder, went to first and his place in the field was taken by Dom DiMaggio.

THE TOP HORSEMAN

SARATOGA, N. Y.—The top horseman of the world today is in the general direction of his 80th year—high up in the 70's. He schooled his first steeplechaser 61 years ago—and after 61 years he is still many lengths in front under wraps. He is also one of the top sportsmen of all time, one of the most remarkable men I've ever known in sport.

His name is Thomas Hitchcock, father of Tommy Hitchcock, Jr., who will stand as the all-time polo player until some superman comes along. And there are no supermen.

Everyone has admired the efficiency of Connie Mack, 77, and Lonnie Stagg, 77, at baseball and football. But the name of Thomas Hitchcock belongs in this slender group of amazing veterans who have thrown clocks and calendars away and ignored time completely. They have made the years their vassals, ignoring such puny details as half-centuries.

TRAINING WINNERS

I met Mr. Hitchcock just after one of his horses had won another steeplechase.

I wanted to know how he did it. I asked him first why it was that he never had the front feet of his jumpers shod.

"This," he said, "is quite a simple matter. A horse gets his drive and his balance from his hind feet. His forefeet have a tendency to expand. His hoofs will nearly always spread. Now if you encase these hoofs in an iron band there can be no expansion. There can be no give. I have known this after some 60 years of study and observation. That is the reason my jumpers are never shod to the front.

"The trouble most horses have is with their hoofs or legs. I have never had any such trouble."

OTHER ANGLES

I asked Mr. Hitchcock just what system he followed to bring about such an amazing success.

"First of all," he answered, "I would say the word is 'patience.' You can't drive a horse at a barrier and force him over. Not consistently. I want natural jumpers. Not synthetic jumpers. So I start them in this direction when they are less than a year old. I give them minor jumps to make on their way to eat—jumps of less than a foot. I gradually increase this height. I get them to feel that a jump is a part of their lives—something they have to make before they can eat.

"These jumps are made higher and higher. But there is no force about it. There is nothing new about it. It is something that belongs to their earlier memories—something they handle instinctively."

I asked Mr. Hitchcock about other details.

"For one thing," he said, "you must know and love horses. Few are alike. They have their own whims and personalities. But to get them accustomed to people I have young riders, ten or twelve years old, who ride or play with them as yearlings. I get them accustomed to the problems they must face later on. I get them used to other horses which may be crowding in.

"All this," he said, "takes a world of patience. The horse must be schooled over and over and over. What you want him to do must be made a habit that he understands.

"The same thing goes for polo ponies. I have known experts who went out for speed. But a polo pony must be trained and taught to turn in a split second. Speed, of course, is a factor. But so is turning agility. These are things that take time.

"To my mind a horse doesn't reach or approach his prime until he is six years old. This applies especially to jumping and to polo. You haven't time to teach young horses what they need to know at these two sorts."

LOOKING BACK

"Just when did you begin this schooling work?" I asked.

"When I was at Oxford, in 1881," he said. "No, it was before that. Probably around 1879. I was a little younger then," he added, "than I am now."

That was 61 years ago. But I doubt he was younger then.

In seeking our first appointment I was told Mr. Hitchcock would be at the track around 6:30 or 7 a. m.

I had no recollection of any such rising hours, so the date was shoved up. If Mr. Hitchcock is to meet you at 7 a. m. or 1 p. m., he means exactly that to the split minute. Arriving five minutes late, it will be just too bad so far as any date is concerned. To the past master and the present master of all steeplechase experts, time is nothing to be wasted or thrown away.

"There is so much to do," he said plaintively, "and so little time in which to do it. When you must be patient you must have time in which to work. You must know horses, you must love horses—you must understand them and work with them, not against them."

Here you have one of the reasons why Mr. Thomas Hitchcock has known the most phenomenal success over the years than anyone else has even approached.

Mr Hitchcock says that a horse is better from six years on. Looking at Messrs. Hitchcock, Mack and Stagg, I am beginning to believe that efficient life is around 77 or 78.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance).

Harlow Dislikes Five-man Line

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP) — The five-man line in football was rated by Harvard University's veteran coach, Dick Harlow, today in the same class with women's hats and jitterbugging.

He told high school coaches at their annual school that the five-man line is a fad and as a serious part of football strategy will come to an end within a few years.

At the conference of coaches yesterday, Harlow, whose Crimson offensive knocked the touted five-man Yale line to bits in 1937, outlined a series of plays "which will tear the five-man line to pieces."

He lectured today on the shifting defense, including the "looping" system Harvard has used with good results in recent years. In that setup, all linemen but one pull out around the offensive forwards and the backfield fills gaps in the line.

The veteran coach, in the business since 1912, warned the football men it was an unsound practice of defense, but used occasionally against superior teams might cause enough trouble to upset the opposition.

Registration at the school, sponsored by West Virginia University, reached 155, surpassing the 1939 enrollment by 13.

Bill Kern, new pilot of the Mountaineers, will take over the football classes tomorrow and Saturday.

Athletics Beat Washington 6-4

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Washington Senators 6 to 4 today with a splurge of doubles in the ninth and tenth innings. Trailing by a run in the ninth, catcher Frank Hayes, batting in a pinch hitter's spot, doubled Bennie McCoy home to tie the game 4 to 4 for Philadelphia.

Sam Chapman started things for the A's in the 10th with a single. Bob Johnson then doubled him home with a smash off first baseman Jimmy Bloodworth's glove. Dick Siebert followed with another double.

Sam Chapman homered in the second for Philadelphia.

Paul Pillan Dies In Local Hospital

Paul Pillan, 78, of 116 South Smallwood street, died last night at Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient since July 29.

He was the son of the late Lewis Pillan and Rosalie Bisson Pillan. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rosie Wilcox Pillan; and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Osbourne, with whom he resided.

Temperature Here Stays in Low Eighties

The temperature in Cumberland for the second straight day stayed in the middle eighties with a maximum of eighty-seven degrees registered at 3 p. m. yesterday.

Wednesday the mercury registered eighty-eight degrees, while on Monday and Tuesday it reached ninety-six and ninety-seven degrees respectively.

Wiland Youth Will Be Buried at Barton

The body of Francis Wiland, one of two Detroit, Mich., youths who was drowned Tuesday evening in the South Branch of the Potomac river, near Romney, W. Va., will be taken to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiland, of Moscow, instead of to Detroit, Mich., where he resided. Burial will be made Saturday at St. Gabriels cemetery, Barton.

The body of his friend, Hans Ross Pearson, was taken to Detroit last night, and later will be taken to Tallahoma, Tenn., to be buried beside his mother.

Kept From European Resorts by War, American Tourist Trade Strays Home, Starts "Back - to - the - Farm" Trend

"I feed 'em right," says smiling Mrs. Neil Warren, who charges only $10 a week for room and board.

By HELEN WELSHIMER
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 8—Because Americans can't stroll down Picadilly Circus or wander around Montmartre this summer, due to bombs and gas and blackouts and Hitler's campaign to see Europe, doesn't mean that they aren't going to have any fun in their two-week playtime.

Resourceful inhabitants of the North American continent are opening up their backyards and asking the travelers in. Take the region around Watertown, N. Y., for example. For years the farmers have depended on alfalfa and dairy products for their living.

That's over now. More than 20,000 farmers in this one section of one state have been papering their spare bedrooms and greasing the porch swings in anticipation of the board-and-lodging trade that is now well underway.

Indians Live Like Indians

Or if you aren't interested in mowing hay and gathering eggs, you can journey up to Quebec to the Indian village on the outskirts of Caughwanaga where real Indians beat real toms toms, build fires, cook, dance, and live in tepees.

The idea for the Indian village had it origin eight years ago when Chief Poking Fire, a full-blooded Iroquois living with 5,000 fellow Indians on the Quebec government reservation 20 miles from Montreal, decided an Indian village would boost tourist trade. For five years he tried to sell the idea to his Indian colleagues. But they shut the doors of their frame houses to the idea and went right on having American hair-cuts.

Three years ago 10 Indians came over to his side, and the next year 52 signed. This summer 24 families, including 150 full-blooded Iroquois, have moved to the outskirts of Caughwanaga to live as their ancestor did some hundred years ago.

"My biggest job," Chief Poking Fire says, "is to lure the younger tribesmen from the $1.90 an hour steel working jobs in the States to come home and dance. Then, too, I have to teach them to beat toms toms, cook, act like Indians used to."

In the winter the Indians stay in their houses—houses as conventional as your own abode—let their hair grow long, make beads for decorations, study Indian lore, plan the summer, and generally try to reproduce a real Indian village.

Work for Fun

Maurice Humphrey of Cape Vincent is one of the spoksmen for the farm group seeking the tourist trade. He says, "Here we've been working from 16 to 18 hours a day to squeeze a living from the earth in the summer and now we find that by taking in boarders and letting the city folk do the work for fun, we make money."

Humphrey often has as many as 45 people at his farm-boarding table. Fruit juices, all kinds of cereal, bacon, eggs, toast, doughnuts and coffee comprise the usual breakfast at the summer farms. Also, there is unlimited milk for drinking. The other meals are rich in cream, butter, vegetables, fruits, meats—anything you want. All the farmers serve the same type of meals.

Incidentally, it pays to take a fishing rod along if you're heading north, for, in addition to its natural supply of fish, the St. Lawrence river has received a generous gift from the federal hatchery. It consists of more than 3,000,000 whitefish, rainbow trout and small mouth bass.

Good Fishing

A good fishing season is predicted everywhere, though. Game Warden J. M. Corbin of Jefferson county, New York, explains that during April he saw a stream near Black Lake filled with walleyed pike four and five deep, going up to spawn.

Then there are always the mountains and seashores, the Dionne sisterhood, and the Fairs on both costs are repeating. But for something new, old-fashioned farming—not at all like dude rancing—heads the list.

Here are a few don'ts if you want to stand in well with the farmer's daughter:

Don't be socially superior at the table. The food is good and it's been prepared to eat, so enjoy it.

Don't mention the city's bright lights. You can get a much nicer view of the moon and the stars from the country.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO SIGNAL EXPENSIVE

YOU CANNOT afford to use for signaling purposes a card which probably will be needed later to take a trick. But then there is almost never any need to do such a thing. A low discouraging card in some other suit will generally tell your partner you don't want that suit led, and by indirection convey to him the idea that you prefer something else. And, if you get a chance for low-card signals in two suits, he has no alternative left but to feed you the suit you desire.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

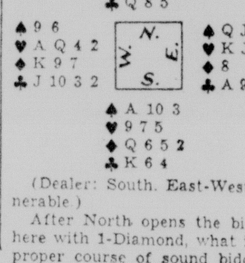

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 NT

West led the heart 3 to the J. Declarer had a hunch from East's 10 play that the spade finesse wouldn't work, so took two high spades and then led the J to West's Q. East had a chance to discard twice on these tricks. He gave a high-low in diamonds with the 9 and 2. So, when West took the third spade, he obeyed instructions by leading his diamond 10. The dummy's Q covered it, so did East's K and declarer ducked, since he now held a "tourchette" of the A-8 over the J-4.

East returned a heart, which declarer won with the A. South then led a club to East's K, and the latter exited with another club to the A. West could now have set the contract with a heart lead to the K; declarer, after two spades, would have had to lead from his last two diamonds, giving East the setting trick. But West, having another diamond, thought East wanted the suit led again, expecting him to have the J-9-8. This bad bridge gave South two tricks in the suit and game. If East, instead of signaling with his diamond 9, had tossed off the club 2 and then the 5, West could not have gone wrong, as East would have had the diamond J and 9 after the first trick in the suit.

Men Experienced In Trades Wanted By American Army

Full Information Can Be Obtained from Sgt. Biehn at Post Office

The Regular Army has received its third preparedness requisition for men which is part of a plan to bring the authorized strength up to 375,000.

The unfilled quota of the second preparedness requisition shows there are nearly six thousand vacancies for young unmarried men to be filled beginning with the month of August from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

The Army is looking for men experienced in the following trades or with a view of teaching recruits these trades. There may not be a vacancy in every trade at the same time, but Sgt. Clarence Biehn the recruiting officer at the post office can give complete information.

Many Trades Open

Artificer, Auditor, Baker, Bench and latheman, Blacksmith, Blue printer, Bricklayer, Butcher, Cabinetmaker, Cable splicer, Camera repairman, Carpenter, Chauffeur, Chemical mixer, Clerk, Cobbler, Computer, topographical.

Cook, Coppersmith, Copper-tin smith, Demolition man, Developer and printer, Draftsman, Driver, tractor or tank; Electrician, Engineman, Fabric worker, Farrier, Foundryman, Gas engineman, Harness maker, Horseshoer, Horse trainer, Hostler, Installer, telephone.

Instrument maker, Laboratory man, Leather-worker, Lineman, Lithographer, Machinist, Maintenance man, post telephone system; Map maker, Map man, meteorological; Mason, stone end brick; Mechanic, Metal worker, Millwright, Motorcyclist, Musician, Observer and computer (meteorological).

Operators of: Crane, Machine, Multigraph, mimeograph, addressograph machines, etc.; Radio, Road Roller, Switchboard, Telegraph, Telephone, Packer, Painter, Paint mixer, Photographer, Photographer, motion; Pigeon expert, Pikeman, Pipe fitter, Plasterer, Plumber.

Single Men Wanted

Tailor, Teamster, Tinsmith, Toolmaker, Topographer, Typist, Vulcanizer, Wagoner, Warehouseman, Welder, acetylene and electric; Wharfinger, Wheelwright, Woodworker.

Many of these trades are not associated with the Army in the mind of the average man. If you are single, between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five, have had experience in any of the above trades or crafts or want to learn such a trade, see Sgt. Biehn, the local recruiting officer.

Bedford Man Fined For Careless Driving

Harvey E. England, of Bedford, Pa., was fined $5 on a careless driving charge, yesterday in police court by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

He is alleged to have failed to stop at the Frederick and Decatur street intersection and caused a three car collision. The other two drivers, Henry T. Smith, 347 Bedford street, and Mary B. Milburn, Bedford, Pa., were found not guilty on careless driving charges.

Officers W. J. Cubbage and R. M. Nice made the arrests.

Former Cumberland Resident Succumbs

Miss Helen Wilson, 26, of Denver, Colo., died yesterday morning at her home. She was born in Cumberland and lived here until six years ago when the family went to Denver.

She is survived by her father, Walter Wilson, and three brothers, Howard and Woodrow, of Ogden, Utah, and Merrill, Denver. Her mother, the late Mrs. Edith Barnes Wilson, died two years ago.

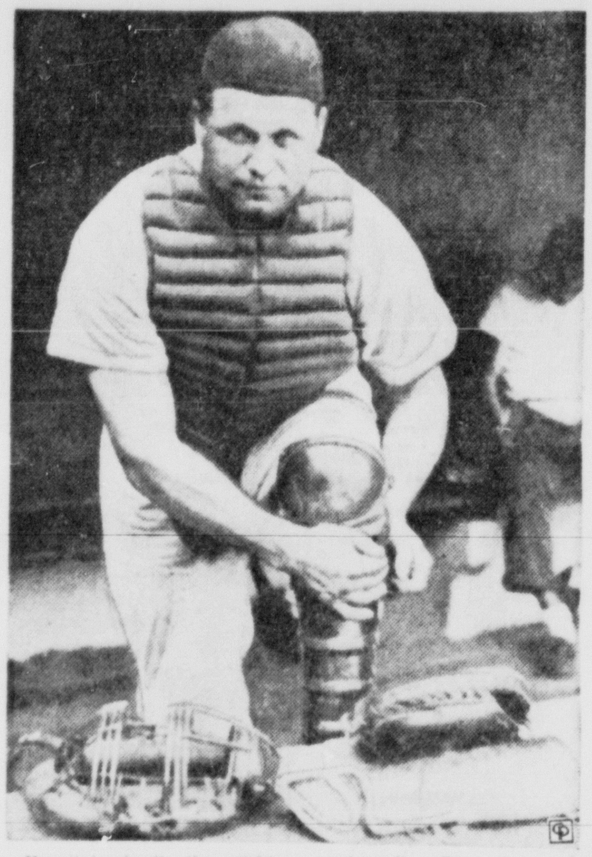

The body will arrive here Saturday morning and will be taken to Wolfords funeral home to remain until the funeral hour.

One Birth Reported

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Shanholtz announce the birth of a daughter at their home in Wiley Ford, W. Va., Thursday, Aug. 18.

NOT OUR JIMMY FOXX, IS IT!

Yes, it is, despite the catching paraphernalia. Foxx, the regular Red Sox first baseman, donned the mask for the first time in two years during the Cleveland series. Jimmy, you know, once was a catcher. The move was to insert as much punch into the Sox lineup as possible. Lou Finney, outfielder, went to first and his place in the field was taken by Dom DiMaggio.

THE TOP HORSEMAN

SARATOGA, N. Y.—The top horseman of the world today is in the general direction of his 80th year—high up in the 70's. He schooled his first steeplechaser 61 years ago—and after 61 years he is still many lengths in front under wraps. He is also one of the top sportsmen of all time, one of the most remarkable men I've ever known in sport.

His name is Thomas Hitchcock, father of Tommy Hitchcock, Jr., who will stand as the all-time polo player until some superman comes along. And there are no supermen.

Everyone has admired the efficiency of Connie Mack, 77, and Lonnie Stagg, 77, at baseball and football. But the name of Thomas Hitchcock belongs in this slender group of amazing veterans who have thrown clocks and calendars away and ignored time completely. They have made the years their vassals, ignoring such puny details as half-centuries.

TRAINING WINNERS

I met Mr. Hitchcock just after one of his horses had won another steeplechase.

I wanted to know how he did it. I asked him first why it was that he never had the front feet of his jumpers shod.

"This," he said, "is quite a simple matter. A horse gets his drive and his balance from his hind feet. His forefeet have a tendency to expand. His hoofs will nearly always spread. Now if you encase these hoofs in an iron band there can be no expansion. There can be no give. I have known this after some 60 years of study and observation. That is the reason my jumpers are never shod to the front.

"The trouble most horses have is with their hoofs or legs. I have never had any such trouble."

OTHER ANGLES

I asked Mr. Hitchcock just what system he followed to bring about such an amazing success.

"First of all," he answered, "I would say the word is 'patience.' You can't drive a horse at a barrier and force him over. Not consistently. I want natural jumpers. Not synthetic jumpers. So I start them in this direction when they are less than a year old. I give them minor jumps to make on their way to eat—jumps of less than a foot. I gradually increase this height. I get them to feel that a jump is a part of their lives—something they have to make before they can eat.

"These jumps are made higher and higher. But there is no force about it. There is nothing new about it. It is something that belongs to their earlier memories—something they handle instinctively."

I asked Mr. Hitchcock about other details.

"For one thing," he said, "you must know and love horses. Few are alike. They have their own whims and personalities. But to get them accustomed to people I have young riders, ten or twelve years old, who ride or play with them as yearlings. I get them accustomed to the problems they must face later on. I get them used to other horses which may be crowding in.

"All this," he said, "takes a world of patience. The horse must be schooled over and over and over. What you want him to do must be made a habit that he understands.

"The same thing goes for polo ponies. I have known experts who went out for speed. But a polo pony must be trained and taught to turn in a split second. Speed, of course, is a factor. But so is turning agility. These are things that take time.

"To my mind a horse doesn't reach or approach his prime until he is six years old. This applies especially to jumping and to polo. You haven't time to teach young horses what they need to know at these two sorts."

LOOKING BACK

"Just when did you begin this schooling work?" I asked.

"When I was at Oxford, in 1881," he said. "No, it was before that. Probably around 1879. I was a little younger then," he added, "than I am now."

That was 61 years ago. But I doubt he was younger then.

In seeking our first appointment I was told Mr. Hitchcock would be at the track around 6:30 or 7 a. m.

I had no recollection of any such rising hours, so the date was shoved up. If Mr. Hitchcock is to meet you at 7 a. m. or 1 p. m., he means exactly that to the split minute. Arriving five minutes late, it will be just too bad so far as any date is concerned. To the past master and the present master of all steeplechase experts, time is nothing to be wasted or thrown away.

"There is so much to do," he said plaintively, "and so little time in which to do it. When you must be patient you must have time in which to work. You must know horses, you must love horses—you must understand them and work with them, not against them."

Here you have one of the reasons why Mr. Thomas Hitchcock has known the most phenomenal success over the years than anyone else has even approached.

Mr Hitchcock says that a horse is better from six years on. Looking at Messrs. Hitchcock, Mack and Stagg, I am beginning to believe that efficient life is around 77 or 78.—(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance).

Harlow Dislikes Five-man Line

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP) — The five-man line in football was rated by Harvard University's veteran coach, Dick Harlow, today in the same class with women's hats and jitterbugging.

He told high school coaches at their annual school that the five-man line is a fad and as a serious part of football strategy will come to an end within a few years.

At the conference of coaches yesterday, Harlow, whose Crimson offensive knocked the touted five-man Yale line to bits in 1937, outlined a series of plays "which will tear the five-man line to pieces."

He lectured today on the shifting defense, including the "looping" system Harvard has used with good results in recent years. In that setup, all linemen but one pull out around the offensive forwards and the backfield fills gaps in the line.

The veteran coach, in the business since 1912, warned the football men it was an unsound practice of defense, but used occasionally against superior teams might cause enough trouble to upset the opposition.

Registration at the school, sponsored by West Virginia University, reached 155, surpassing the 1939 enrollment by 13.

Bill Kern, new pilot of the Mountaineers, will take over the football classes tomorrow and Saturday.

Athletics Beat Washington 6-4

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics beat the Washington Senators 6 to 4 today with a splurge of doubles in the ninth and tenth innings. Trailing by a run in the ninth, catcher Frank Hayes, batting in a pinch hitter's spot, doubled Bennie McCoy home to tie the game 4 to 4 for Philadelphia.

Sam Chapman started things for the A's in the 10th with a single. Bob Johnson then doubled him home with a smash off first baseman Jimmy Bloodworth's glove. Dick Siebert followed with another double.

Wiland Youth Will Be Buried at Barton

The body of Francis Wiland, one of two Detroit, Mich., youths who was drowned Tuesday evening in the South Branch of the Potomac river, near Romney, W. Va., will be taken to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiland, of Moscow, instead of to Detroit, Mich., where he resided. Burial will be made Saturday at St. Gabriels cemetery, Barton.

The body of his friend, Harry Ross Pearson, was taken to Detroit last night, and later will be taken to Tallahoma, Tenn., to be buried beside his mother.

Devil's Island Fugitive Finds Peace in the Bahamas

AP Feature Service

NASSAU, Bahamas—Henri DeBoyn, a man without a country who says he spent 34 years in the Devil's Island penal colony, has found peace at last in these semi-tropical islands.

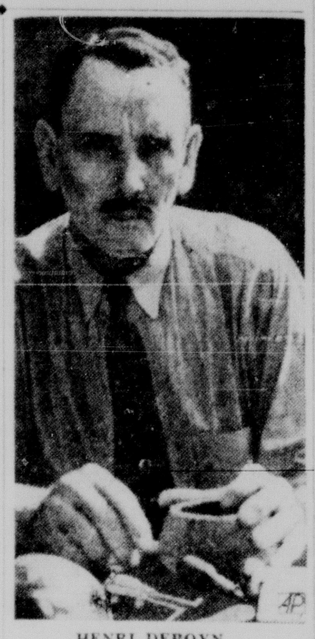

Born in French Algeria of Irish political exiles, DeBoyn joined the Foreign Legion at 18, but was sentenced to the penal colony for striking an officer. The sentence was prolonged as he tried again and again to escape.

Finally, on his 21st attempt, DeBoyn and several companions escaped in a boat and came here. He had never renounced his nationality, and British sympathy helped him combat efforts to repatriate him to French soil. The collapse of France apparently decided that question.

DeBoyn says he had hoped, before France was conquered by Germany, to recover and sell family property in Algeria. During his imprisonment he became skillful at carving. He has made a living here by selling carved coconut shell curios.

The refugee, now 53, hopes to marry a planter's daughter.

"I want children of my own," he says.

HENRI DEBOYN
Collapse of France helped him

Italians Likely

on Italy "is a matter solely for the Egyptians themselves." He pointed out that "at the moment Egypt is a non-belligerent ally."

While the Italians pushed with but little opposition from Ethiopia into British Somaliland, royal air force planes kept up their daily bombing of Italian troop concentrations and communications in North Africa.

A British communique said the Italians captured te port of Zeila, just below Jibuti, in French Somaliland, and halted "as anticipated" after occupying the towns of Oadweina and Hargeisa.

(Fascists in Rome said the Zeila occupation constituted the first step of a campaign to incorporate British and French Somaliland into Italian East Africa.)

53 Nazi

who watched the great battle over the channel said bombs dropped almost continuously from daybreak on.

"The fighters," said one, "kept the Germans so busy, though, that all the bombs I saw fell into the sea. We saw planes dropping, too. I myself saw one crash into the sea in flames. Two others came down further along the coast.

"There was a burst of raiding in the morning and then again in the early afternoon. Then there was a lull.

"But just when we were getting ready for tea a third raid started on a convoy in the channel.

"We saw a British fighter and a German plane circle around each other at a great height, and soon the Nazi began to turn and spin down. It crashed in flames into the sea.

"We saw a dive bomber suddenly appear overhead with its starboard wing damaged. A British fighter roared down and forced the German to land in a field. The crew was captured."

Torpedo Boats Attack

The raids followed a series of darting attacks by Nazi torpedo boats upon channel shipping.

In these stealthy assaults the British acknowledged the loss of three coastal vessels and damage to several others—an overture to the subsequent bombing attacks on British convoys in which several ships were damaged—but reported they had sunk one speedboat and damaged another.

In a prelude to it all, British fliers last night bombed the vital German naval base at Kiel, dropping their explosives through the mists and setting off a series of fires and explosions. They also attacked the Nazi-held French port of Cherbourg.

But today was such a day of aerial warfare as never had been known before.

The Germans arrived in great waves, dive bombers escorted by single and twin-engined fighters. Scarcely had one attack been beaten off by the Royal Air Force than another developed.

The British figure of fifty-three German aircraft destroyed was described as the minimum Nazi loss; it was declared that more complete reports might send the total upward. A third of the German losses were Junkers-87 dive bombers, the remainder fighters.

Much of the southeast coast area—that lying nearest to German-held France—resounded all day with the roar of cannon, anti-aircraft and [illegible]-gun fire.

Kept From European Resorts by War, American Tourist Trade Strays Home, Starts "Back - to - the - Farm" Trend

"I feed 'em right," says smiling Mrs. Neil Warren, who charges only $10 a week for room and board.

Central Press Writer

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 8—Because Americans can't stroll down Picadilly Circus or wander around Montmartre this summer, due to bombs and gas and blackouts and Hitler's campaign to see Europe, doesn't mean that they aren't going to have any fun in their two-week playtime.

Resourceful inhabitants of the North American continent are opening up their backyards and asking the travelers in. Take the region around Watertown, N. Y., for example. For years the farmers have depended on alfalfa and dairy products for their living.

That's over now. More than 20,000 farmers in this one section of one state have been papering their spare bedrooms and greasing the porch swings in anticipation of the board-and-lodging trade that is now well underway.

Indians Live Like Indians

Or if you aren't interested in mowing hay and gathering eggs, you can journey up to Quebec to the Indian village on the outskirts of Caughwanaga where real Indians beat real toms toms, build fires, cook, dance, and live in tepees.

The idea for the Indian village had it origin eight years ago when Chief Poking Fire, a full-blooded Iroquois living with 5,000 fellow Indians on the Quebec government reservation 20 miles from Montreal, decided an Indian village would boost tourist trade. For five years he tried to sell the idea to his Indian colleagues. But they shut the doors of their frame houses to the idea and went right on having American hair-cuts.

Three years ago 10 Indians came over to his side, and the next year 52 signed. This summer 24 families, including 150 full-blooded Iroquois, have moved to the outskirts of Caughwanaga to live as their ancestor did some hundred years ago.

"My biggest job," Chief Poking Fire says, "is to lure the younger tribesmen from the $1.90 an hour steel working jobs in the States to come home and dance. Then, too, I have to teach them to beat toms toms, cook, act like Indians used to."

In the winter the Indians stay in their houses—houses as conventional as your own abode—let their hair grow long, make beads for decorations, study Indian lore, plan the summer, and generally try to reproduce a real Indian village.

Work for Fun

Maurice Humphrey of Cape Vincent is one of the spoksmen for the farm group seeking the tourist trade. He says, "Here we've been working from 16 to 18 hours a day to squeeze a living from the earth in the summer and now we find that by taking in boarders and letting the city folk do the work for fun, we make money."

Humphrey often has as many as 45 people at his farm-boarding table. Fruit juices, all kinds of cereal, bacon, eggs, toast, doughnuts and coffee comprise the usual breakfast at the summer farms. Also, there is unlimited milk for drinking. The other meals are rich in cream, butter, vegetables, fruits, meats—anything you want. All the farmers serve the same type of meals.

Incidentally, it pays to take a fishing rod along if you're heading north, for, in addition to its natural supply of fish, the St. Lawrence river has received a generous gift from the federal hatchery. It consists of more than 3,000,000 whitefish, rainbow trout and small mouth bass.

Good Fishing

A good fishing season is predicted everywhere, though. Game Warden J. M. Corbin of Jefferson county, New York, explains that during April he saw a stream near Black Lake filled with walleyed pike four and five deep, going up to spawn.

Then there are always the mountains and seashores, the Dionne sisterhood, and the Fairs on both costs are repeating. But for something new, old-fashioned farming—not at all like dude ranching—heads the list.

Here are a few don'ts if you want to stand in well with the farmer's daughter:

Don't be socially superior at the table. The food is good and it's been prepared to eat, so enjoy it.

Don't mention the city's bright lights. You can get a much nicer view of the moon and the stars from the country.

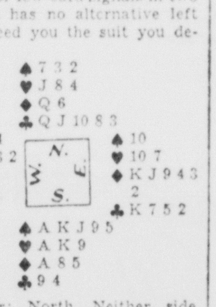

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

NO SIGNAL EXPENSIVE

YOU CANNOT afford to use for signaling purposes a card which probably will be needed later to take a trick. But then there is almost never any need to do such a thing. A low discouraging card in some other suit will generally tell your partner you don't want that suit led, and by indirection convey to him the idea that you prefer something else. And, if you get a chance for low-card signals in two suits, he has no alternative left but to feed you the suit you desire.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

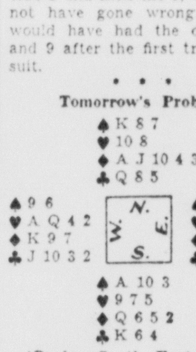

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 NT

West led the heart 3 to the J. Declarer had a hunch from East's 10 play that the spade finesse wouldn't work, so took two high spades and then led the J to West's Q. East had a chance to discard twice on these tricks. He gave a high-low in diamonds with the 9 and 2. So, when West took the third spade, he obeyed instructions by leading his diamond 10. The dummy's Q covered it, so did East's K and declarer ducked, since he now held a "tourchette" of the A-8 over the J-4.

East returned a heart, which declarer won with the A. South then led a club to East's K, and the latter exited with another club to the A. West could now have set the contract with a heart lead to the K; declarer, after two spades, would have had to lead from his last two diamonds, giving East the setting trick. But West, having another diamond, thought East wanted the suit led again, expecting him to have the J-9-8. This bad bridge gave South two tricks in the suit and game. If East, instead of signaling with his diamond 9, had tossed off the club 2 and then the 5, West could not have gone wrong, as East would have had the diamond J and 9 after the first trick in the suit.

Samuel T. Lewis Succumbs at 65 At Eckhart Home

Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce Endorses Conscription

FROSTBURG, Aug. 8—Samuel T. Lewis, 65, prominent resident of Eckhart, died this morning at his home of heart ailment after being ill two weeks.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Lewis; and the following children: Reuben, Charles and Harry Lewis, Eckhart, and Mrs. James Selt, Cumberland; five sisters, Mrs. Stanley Parker, Pittsburgh; Mrs. James R. Carter, Cumberland; and Mrs. Allen Stewart, Mrs. Edward Carter and Miss Mary Lewis, Eckhart; and six grandchildren.

Mr. Lewis was employed by the Consolidation Coal Company for many years.

Conscription Endorsed By Junior Chamber

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night, the resolution on national defense adopted at the recent national convention of that organization was unanimously endorsed. The resolution demanded that the young men of our country and its material and financial resources be organized for defense and that compulsory military training which treated everyone alike should immediately be instituted.

The local group wired word of their action to Senators Tydings and Radcliffe and to Congressman Byrnes urging them to support any practical legislation looking to the early training of future soldiers.

Several activities for fall were discussed, and committees were appointed by President Robert S. Elias as follows:

To organize Frostburg's participation in the annual state picnic at Frederick in September, Chairman Charles N. Hill, Gerald Groves and Bert Parise; committee to investigate the possibility of beautifying the approaches to Frostburg, Benjamin Myers, chairman; Arthur Roe, J. Edgar McMannis and Kenneth James.

Pool Lease Approved

John Lewis, a resident of Consolidation Village who resides near the community swimming pool, appeared before the mayor and city commissioners Monday evening and applied for a five-year lease on the property, stating that he would make extensive improvements providing he secured the lease with the privilege of renewing the same for an additional five-year period.

After some discussion in which it was pointed out that the city could not afford to operate the pool, the city attorney was instructed to draw up a lease with an annual rental fee of $75, to be paid in two payments each year.

Frostburg Briefs

The Men's Bible class of St. Paul's Lutheran church is making plans to entertain a large number of guests Tuesday evening at a corn roast to be held at Pleasant Valley, Garrett county.

Transportation will be provided, the cars leaving the church at 5:15 o'clock. Reservations should be made with Prof. Joseph Downey no later than Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Skidmore announce the birth of a son July 7 at a Brunswick hospital. Mr. Skidmore, a former resident of Borden Mines, is principal of the Barkettsville school, Washington county.

Mrs. Horace G. Evans is having improvements made to her home on West Main street. While the work is under way, members of the household are vacationing at Atlantic City.

The annual reunion of the Crowe family of Western Maryland will be held Sunday at the New Colonial Inn, Route 40, five miles west of here.

Frostburg Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Keating, Washington, former residents of this city, are spending their vacation in Cumberland with Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Rowan and daughter Mary Jo. They were dinner guests last evening at "Guntertown".

Mrs. Chester Stewart and Miss Margaret Stewart are home from Atlantic City.

TURN YOUR CAR INTO A TANK!

Here's the "minute-man tank," which is just an ordinary automobile chassis bearing a tank body of one-inch steel which can speedily replace the regular automobile body. The inventors visualize the possibility of turning America's motor cars into such tanks in the event of invasion. If that were done the United States would have 29,000,000 tanks!

Dawson To Open Campaign Aug. 15 At Convention

W. Va. GOP Gubernatorial Candidate Promises Surprises in Talk

CHARLESTON, Aug. 8 (Special)—Mayor Daniel Boone Dawson, Republican candidate for governor, announced here today that he would make the first major address of his campaign for election this fall at the Republican state convention in Charleston August 14 and 15.

Mayor Dawson will share the program of the final session of the convention with his running mate, State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney of Wheeling, GOP candidate for the United States Senate.

The Republican gubernatorial candidate has been traveling over the state since the primary election, attending rallies, homecomings and family reunions. Up until now, Dawson has continued to compaign on his primary program of taking the "farmers out of the mud, the schools out of politics and the cities out of the red."

Mayor Dawson indicated that his speech before the delegates to the judicial convention may hold some surprises for the Republicans in attendance. He indicated that he will expand upon his program of the primary campaign to include an interpretation of the platform to be adopted during the convention but asserted that the three points of his original program will remain as the nucleus of his campaign this fall.

The Charleston chief executive is preparing his address in the seclusion of his home and has said that it will not be released before its delivery to the convention.

Dawson stuck the first hard blow of the campaign when he virtually dared his opponent, M. M. Neely, to stay in the race this November. In a statement last week, the Charleston mayor commented on reports that Neely would withdraw as a candidate by saying that he hoped that the senator would keep in there "pitching." He pointed out that Neely was neither "indispensable nor unbeatable" and declared that the state and nation would dispense with both the New Deal and Neely this fall.

The GOP candidate backed up his assertion that Neely was not unbeatable by declaring that the senator was defeated in 1928. Although not mentioned by Dawson himself, his asscociates have been showing the strength of the Charleston mayor as a winning candidate be pointing to the long record of victories in Charleston, despite heavy majorities registered against him. Dawson has never been defeated in a primary or general election campaign.

Mayor Dawson has been clearing his desk as chief executive of the state's capital city and putting his affairs in order so that he may launch a vigorous, fighting, full-time campaign for election starting about the first of September.

Eightieth Division Opens Reunion

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—Twenty-one years after the A. E. F.'s Eightieth division helped make it "all over, over there," the veterans of the World war opened tonight a convention which three governors may attend.

As the gavel dropped for the first session, General Chairman H. R. Connell of Bluefield counted a registration of approximately 600 from the two Virginias and Pennsylvania.

National Commander Edwin Dobson of Pittsburgh appeared before the veterans, responding to addresses of welcome by the mayors of Bluefield, W. Va., and Bluefield, Va.

Two thousand veterans and guests are expected for the four-day meeting.

Governor Holt of West Virginia is to speak Saturday morning, while other addresses, officials said, may be made by Governors James H. Price of Virginia and Stark of Missouri.

Democrats Expected To Name Rose, Lovins

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—More than one high Democratic source predicted tonight the nomination of H. H. Rose of Fairmont and Col. W. T. Lovins of Huntington for the State Supreme Court but there was no lack of other candidates on the eve of the 1940 judicial convention.

The possibilities remained for a stiff floor fight at nominating time tomorrow, although supporters of Rose and Lovins were claiming nomination on the first ballot.

Some of the Democratic leaders were saying this was a "likely eventuality" despite the large field of aspirants.

Lexington, Ky., is the world's largest burley tobacco market.

Water Consumers Of Mt. Savage Won't Pay Bills

Supply Inadequate, Residents Say; Ask PSC To Send Investigator

MT. SAVAGE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Property owners of this community, convinced their water supply is inadequate, have notified the Maryland Public Service Commission they won't pay their bills until the commission sends an investigator to settle the issue.

In a communication to the commission today, eighty residents set forth their complaint of poor water pressure and unsatisfactory supply. The name of Henry J. Sweene headed the petition.

The complaint asserted that the Mt. Savage Water Company, which purchased the water rights from the Union Mining Company two years ago, had failed to carry out its promise to prospect for more water, lay new lines and improve the service in general.

"Regardless of the amount of rainfall," the complaint said, many users find that the pressure is insufficient to force the water to the second floor of their residences. Property owners in the Callon Hill section, with an additional complaint, said that in some homes it was necessary to carry water from the basement, where the pressure was greatest, to the first and second floors.

Devil's Island Fugitive Finds Peace in the Bahamas

AP Feature Service

NASSAU, Bahamas—Henri DeBoyn, a man without a country who says he spent 34 years in the Devil's Island penal colony, has found peace at last in these semi-tropical islands.

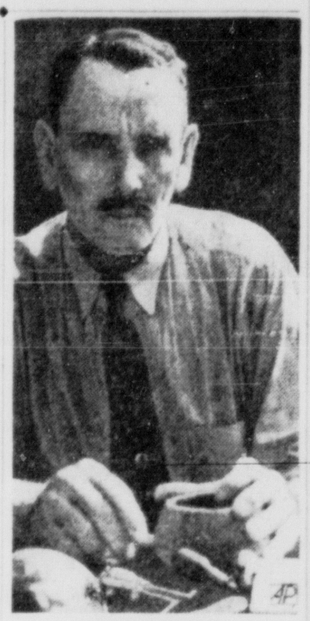

Born in French Algeria of Irish political exiles, DeBoyn joined the Foreign Legion at 18, but was sentenced to the penal colony for striking an officer. The sentence was prolonged as he tried again and again to escape.

Finally, on his 21st attempt, DeBoyn and several companions escaped in a boat and came here. He had never renounced his nationality, and British sympathy helped him combat efforts to repatriate him to French soil. The collapse of France apparently decided that question.

DeBoyn says he had hoped, before France was conquered by Germany, to recover and sell family property in Algeria. During his imprisonment he became skillful at carving. He has made a living here by selling carved coconut shell curios.

The refugee, now 53, hopes to marry a planter's daughter.

"I want children of my own," he says.

on Italy "is a matter solely for the Egyptians themselves." He pointed out that "at the moment Egypt is a non-belligerent ally."

While the Italians pushed with but little opposition from Ethiopia into British Somaliland, royal air force planes kept up their daily bombing of Italian troop concentrations and communications in North Africa.

A British communique said the Italians captured te port of Zeila, just below Jibuti, in French Somaliland, and halted "as anticipated" after occupying the towns of Oadweina and Hargeisa.

Fascists in Rome said the Zeila occupation constituted the first step of a campaign to incorporate British and French Somaliland into Italian East Africa.)

who watched the great battle over the channel said bombs dropped almost continuously from daybreak on.

"The fighters," said one, "kept the Germans so busy, though, that all the bombs I saw fell into the sea. We saw planes dropping, too. I myself saw one crash into the sea in flames. Two others came down further along the coast.

"There was a burst of raiding in the morning and then again in the early afternoon. Then there was a lull.

"But just when we were getting ready for tea a third raid started on a convoy in the channel.

"We saw a British fighter and a German plane circle around each other at a great height, and soon the Nazi began to turn and spin down. It crashed in flames into the sea.

"We saw a dive bomber suddenly appear overhead with its starboard wing damaged. A British fighter roared down and forced the German to land in a field. The crew was captured."

Torpedo Boats Attack

The raids followed a series of darting attacks by Nazi torpedo boats upon channel shipping.

In these stealthy assaults the British acknowledged the loss of three coastal vessels and damage to several others—an overture to the subsequent bombing attacks on British convoys in which several ships were damaged—but reported they had sunk one speedboat and damaged another.

In a prelude to it all, British fliers last night bombed the vital German naval base at Kiel, dropping their explosives through the mists and setting off a series of fires and explosions. They also attacked the Nazi-held French port of Cherbourg.

But today was such a day of aerial warfare as never had been known before.

The Germans arrived in great waves, dive bombers escorted by single and twin-engined fighters. Scarcely had one attack been beaten off by the Royal Air Force than another developed.

The British figure of fifty-three German aircraft destroyed was described as the minimum Nazi loss; it was declared that more complete reports might send the total upward. A third of the German losses were Junkers-87 dive bombers, the remainder fighters.

Much of the southeast coast area—that lying nearest to German-held France—resounded all day with the roar of cannon, anti-aircraft and machine-gun fire.

Bolden Resigns From Oakland City Council

Street Committee Chairman Retires on Account of Ill Health

OAKLAND, Aug. 8-Emory Bolden, member of the city council since April, 1937, has tendered his resignation to that body, it has been announced. The resignation was accepted with regret by the council.

Mr. Bolden said he was compelled to "take this step with deep regret," and thanked the officials for their kind cooperation and assistance during his period of service to the community. He said he was resigning because of the condition of his health, which has not been of the best for several months.

Mr. Bolden was chairman of the street committee of Council and had been much interested in the improvement of streets in all parts of the town.

The report of clerk-collector, Arthur Lawton for July showed receipts of $4,394.52, which included water collections of $1,888.72; taxes $1,609.30; golf course $424; intangible property tax $300. Bills paid were $3,628.45, which included payment of a short-term loan of $1,414.70 from the First National Bank.

Mr. Lawton stated that $794.90 had been received from the golf course thus far with expenses of $825.23. August receipts had more than made up the deficit. Movie tax for the previous month was $38.50, the lowest amount since this tax became effective several years ago.

The Knights of Pythias Labor Day picnic committee was given permission to have a fireworks display in the Community Park Monday, September 2.

Co-Op Pays Dividends

A dividend of six percent on capital stock of Southern States Oakland Service, a farmer-owned and controlled cooperative, has just been declared by the board of directors, according to Truman C. Bittinger, Oakland, a member of the board.

This dividend is in addition to a three percent patronage dividend on purchases, paid half in cash and half in stock, and to a special cash patronage dividend on fertilizer amounting to $434.65. The patronage dividend checks on fertilizer are now at the office of the service.

Man Turns Nudist during Heat Wave Sentenced to 20 Days in 'Cooler'

KEYSER, W. Va., Aug. 8—Jacob R. "Jake" Feaster, 38-year-old Ridgeleyite, spent the first of twenty days in the Mineral county jail here today, where he is serving sentences on a double-barrelled charge, imposed by Justice of the Peace C. A. Jewell.

As he was apparently suffering from the heat when he "did unlawfully expose his person in the nude in the Town of Ridgeley" Tuesday, Justice Jewell this morning meted out a ten-day sentence in the "cooler" to Feaster. A second ten-day sentence was imposed on a charge of drunkenness in a public place, and a fine of $10 for each offense was also levied by the Justice.

Feaster was brought to the jail here this afternoon by Ridgeley Police Chief C. V. Barncord.

Plans Completed For Garrett Co. Picnic Tomorrow

Fourth Annual Outing To Be Held near Bittinger; Many Contests

OAKLAND, Aug. 8 — Plans have been completed for the fourth annual Garrett county picnic conducted by the Extension service, which will include the distribution of a number of prizes for winners in games contests, County Agent John H. Carter stated.

The picnic is to be held Saturday at the recreation area on the Cunningham tract near Bittinger.

The day will begin with preliminary games in the morning, with the group having a basket dinner from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. This will be followed by group singing until 1:30 p. m., when greetings will be brought from the State Grange, the Maryland Farm Bureau and the Homemakers' clubs. At 2 o'clock L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, will deliver the principal address.

The contests will be conducted at the conclusion of the address, with awarding of prizes. Contests and awards for first prize winners include rolling pin contest, 2-gallon aluminum kettle; nail driving, hammer; speed ball, a speed ball and bat; volley ball, five-pound box of candy; hog calling, 100-pound pig and hog feed; husband calling, 24-pound bag flour; horseshoe pitching (single) five quarts of oil; horseshoe pitching (double), ten quarts of oil; peanut hunt, a large bag of peanuts; balloon blowing contest (children ages 9 to 12) an ice cream bar for each entry, with a school kit the grand prize; turkey calling (as hunter calls), one bag turkey feed.

Two candidates for judges of the state Supreme Court are to be named at the convention.

Teacher Granted Leave

Miss Madalyn Bazzle, teacher in the Mineral county schools and vice-president of the West Virginia Young Republican League, has been granted a leave of absence for the first two months of school, it was announced here today.

It was thought that Miss Bazzle, who is active in political circles, applied for the leave in order to take part in the Republican campaign. The leave expires shortly after the November election.

Permission was granted at a meeting of the board of education here Tuesday night. County Superintendent of Schools Paul C. Rouzer said today he did not know why the application was made.

Miss Bazzle, who was granted a leave last year to form Young Republican clubs throughout the state, was out of town today and could not be reached for a statement.

WOULD LIMIT DRAFT

Senator Josh Lee

Despite plea of Army chiefs for an immediate draft, Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, has proposed to further limit compulsory military service to only 1,000,000 men in the 21-31 age group. The proposal is intended to curb the president's power to train men without further authorization from Congress.

Keyser Briefs

Samuel T. Lewis Succumbs at 65 At Eckhart Home

Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce Endorses Conscription

FROSTBURG, Aug. 8—Samuel T. Lewis, 65, prominent resident of Eckhart, died this morning at his home of heart ailment after being ill two weeks.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Lewis; and the following children: Reuben, Charles and Harry Lewis, Eckhart, and Mrs. James Bell, Cumberland; five sisters, Mrs. Stanley Parker, Pittsburgh; Mrs. James R. Carter, Cumberland; and Mrs. Allen Stewart, Mrs. Edward Carter and Miss Mary Lewis, Eckhart; and six grandchildren.

Mr. Lewis was employed by the Consolidation Coal Company for many years.

Conscription Endorsed By Junior Chamber

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night, the resolution on national defense adopted at the recent national convention of that organization was unanimously endorsed. The resolution demanded that the young men of our country and its material and financial resources be organized for defense and that compulsory military training which treated everyone alike should immediately be instituted.

The local group wired word of their action to Senators Tydings and Radcliffe and to Congressman Byrnes urging them to support any practical legislation looking to the early training of future soldiers.

Several activities for fall were discussed, and committees were appointed by President Robert S. Elias as follows:

To organize Frostburg's participation in the annual state picnic at Frederick in September, Chairman Charles N. Hill, Gerald Groves and Bert Parise; committee to investigate the possibility of beautifying the approaches to Frostburg, Benjamin Myers, chairman; Arthur Roe, J. Edgar McMannis and Kenneth Jones.

Pool Lease Approved

John Lewis, a resident of Consolidation Village who resides near the community swimming pool, appeared before the mayor and city commissioners Monday evening and applied for a five-year lease on the property, stating that he would make extensive improvements providing he secured the lease with the privilege of renewing the same for an additional five-year period.

After some discussion in which it was pointed out that the city could not afford to operate the pool, the city attorney was instructed to draw up a lease with an annual rental fee of $75, to be paid in two payments each year.

TURN YOUR CAR INTO A TANK!

Here's the "minute-man tank," which is just an ordinary automobile chassis bearing a tank body of one-inch steel which can speedily replace the regular automobile body. The inventors visualize the possibility of turning America's motor cars into such tanks in the event of invasion. If that were done the United States would have 29,000,000 tanks!

Dawson To Open Campaign Aug. 15 At Convention

W. Va. GOP Gubernatorial Candidate Promises Surprises in Talk

CHARLESTON, Aug. 8 (Special)—Mayor Daniel Boone Dawson, Republican candidate for governor, announced here today that he would make the first major address of his campaign for election this fall at the Republican state convention in Charleston August 14 and 15.

Mayor Dawson will share the program of the final session of the convention with his running mate, State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney of Wheeling, GOP candidate for the United States Senate.

The Republican gubernatorial candidate has been traveling over the state since the primary election, attending rallies, homecomings and family reunions. Up until now, Dawson has continued to compaign on his primary program of taking the "farmers out of the mud, the schools out of politics and the cities out of the red."

Mayor Dawson indicated that his speech before the delegates to the judicial convention may hold some surprises for the Republicans in attendance. He indicated that he will expand upon his program of the primary campaign to include an interpretation of the platform to be adopted during the convention but asserted that the three points of his original program will remain as the nucleus of his campaign this fall.

The Charleston chief executive is preparing his address in the seclusion of his home and has said that it will not be released before its delivery to the convention.

Dawson stuck the first hard blow of the campaign when he virtually dared his opponent, M. M. Neely, to stay in the race this November. In a statement last week, the Charleston mayor commented on reports that Neely would withdraw as a candidate by saying that he hoped that the senator would keep in there "pitching." He pointed out that Neely was neither "indispensable nor unbeatable" and declared that the state and nation would dispense with both the New Deal and Neely this fall.

The GOP candidate backed up his assertion that Neely was not unbeatable by declaring that the senator was defeated in 1928. Although not mentioned by Dawson himself, his associates have been showing the strength of the Charleston mayor as a winning candidate be pointing to the long record of victories in Charleston, despite heavy majorities registered against him. Dawson has never been defeated in a primary or general election campaign.

Mayor Dawson has been clearing his desk as chief executive of the state's capital city and putting his affairs in order so that he may launch a vigorous, fighting, full-time campaign for election starting about the first of September.

Eightieth Division Opens Reunion

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—Twenty-one years after the A. E. F.'s Eightieth division helped make it "all over, over there," the veterans of the World war opened tonight a convention which three governors may attend.

As the gavel dropped for the first session, General Chairman H. R. Connell of Bluefield counted a registration of approximately 600 from the two Virginias and Pennsylvania.

National Commander Edwin Dobson of Pittsburgh appeared before the veterans, responding to addresses of welcome by the mayors of Bluefield, W. Va., and Bluefield, Va.

Two thousand veterans and guests are expected for the four-day meeting.

Governor Holt of West Virginia is to speak Saturday morning, while other addresses, officials said, may be made by Governors James H. Price of Virginia and Stark of Missouri.

100 Children Attend Barton Church Picnic

BARTON, Aug. 8—More than 100 children, accompanied by their parents, today left by truck to attend the annual Sunday school picnic of the Presbyterian church. The picnic was held on the K of P. Grounds, Burlington, W. Va.

William Chappel, WPA leader, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cooper, supervisor of recreation of Allegany county, attended and assisted in the games and supervision of the play grounds for the children. Mrs. Alex Cross, Mrs. Maude Kirk and Mrs. Mildred Kirkpatrick also helped with the activities.

The picnickers returned late this evening.

Rodeheaver Reunion To Be Held Aug. 25

OAKLAND, Aug. 8—The annual reunion and basket picnic of the Rodeheaver clan and their relatives will be held Sunday, August 25, at Paugh's Reunion Park, on U. S. Route 219, five miles north of Oakland, according to an announcement by Miss Lillian Harvey, of Oakland, secretary.

Christian Church Plans Convention

Hyndman Congregation May Send Delegate to Conference in Fall

HYNDMAN, Pa., Aug. 8—Announcement has been received by the Rev. H. W. Van Voorhis, pastor of the Hyndman Christian church, of the approaching North American Christian convention to be held at Indianapolis October 9 to 13. Many speakers of nation-wide note will be heard during the five-day program. The Hyndman church hopes to be represented at this nation-wide convention.

Dr. U. S. Bikell Dies

Word has been received here of the death of Dr. Ulysses S. Bikell, Sunday at his home at Stonehurst, Delaware county.

Older residents will recall that Dr. Bikell practiced medicine in Hyndman from 1918 to 1923. He served overseas in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army during the first World war, leaving the service with the rank of captain. He was 75.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Bikell, and two sons survive. He was buried Wednesday in Arlington cemetery, Drexel Hill.

Hyndman Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bingham, Cleveland street, announce the birth of a son Wednesday at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norton and son, Harold, and Miss Goldie Hoffman, all of Akron, Ohio, have returned home after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. C. Palmer Gaster.

Mrs. Bernard Hoffman, Buffalo Mills, is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shaffer, Sr., Schellsburg street.

Mrs. Edmond Tayman, and daughter, Kathryn, Uniontown, spent Sunday with the former's sisters, Mrs. Minnie Pensyl, Mrs. Z. A. Green, Mrs. Mahlon Evans and Mrs. Ed Corley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Winter, Cumberland, were Sunday guests of their son and daughter-in-law, the Rev. and Mrs. George Raymond Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Shroyer, Johnstown, are spending several days with their son, William Shroyer, Mill street.

Donald Gaumer, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. A. W. Markwood, Fairhope, were Sunday visitors here.

Democrats Expected To Name Rose, Lovins

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—More than one high Democratic source predicted tonight the nomination of H. H. Rose of Fairmont and Col. W. T. Lovins of Huntington for the State Supreme Court but there was no lack of other candidates on the eve of the 1940 judicial convention.

The possibilities remained for a stiff floor fight at nominating time tomorrow, although supporters of Rose and Lovins were claiming nomination on the first ballot.

Some of the Democratic leaders were saying this was a "likely eventuality" despite the large field of aspirants.

Named to Law Board

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—The Supreme Court announced today the appointment of Selden S. McNeer of Huntington to membership on the five-man state board of law examiners. He succeeds J. W. Vandervort of Parkersburg, who resigned after nineteen years' service because he still is suffering from the effects of a fall on the ice last winter.

Lexington, Ky., is the world's largest burley tobacco market.

Water Consumers Of Mt. Savage Won't Pay Bills

Supply Inadequate, Residents Say; Ask PSC To Send Investigator

MT. SAVAGE, Aug. 8 (AP)—Property owners of this community, convinced their water supply is inadequate, have notified the Maryland Public Service Commission they won't pay their bills until the commission sends an investigator to settle the issue.

In a communication to the commission today, eighty residents set forth their complaint of poor water pressure and unsatisfactory supply. The name of Henry J. Sweene headed the petition.

The complaint asserted that the Mt. Savage Water Company, which purchased the water rights from the Union Mining Company two years ago, had failed to carry out its promise to prospect for more water, lay new lines and improve the service in general.

"Regardless of the amount of rainfall," the complaint said, many users find that the pressure is insufficient to force the water to the second floor of their residences. Property owners in the Callon Hill section, with an additional complaint, said that in some homes it was necessary to carry water from the basement, where the pressure was greatest, to the first and second floors.

Parties Are Held At Grantsville

Mrs. Harvey Gortner and Mrs. O. J. Glotfelty among Hostesses

GRANTSVILLE, Aug. 8 — Mrs. Harvey Gortner invited a few friends to her home here last evening for an informal evening of bridge. Her guests included Mrs. P. A. Connolly, New York City; Mrs. Ella B. Keller, Mrs. Daniel W. Hershberger, Mrs. Charles S. Zeller, Mrs. Thomas D. Maurer, and Misses Ethel and Viola Broadwater. The game was concluded at midnight when luncheon was served. Mrs. Keller was awarded the high score honors and Mrs. Maurer received the floating prize.

Guests Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando J. Glotfelty enterained a small group of friends last evening in honor of Mr. Glotfelty's borther and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Glotfelty, Middletown, N. Y., who came yesterday to spend a week as their guests. Among those in attendance were Mrs. Thelma Shearer, Russell Shearer and Benny McIlwee, Cumberland, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Paul, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glotfelty and Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer, Grantsville.

Ladies Aid Meets

The August meeting of the Mt. Zion Ladies Aid Society was held last night at the home of Mrs. Ralph Mazer, who was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. George Durst, Avilton. Guests in addition to the twenty-three members present, were Mrs. Harvey Croft, Mrs. Jacob Ross, and Miss Ruth Croft.

With the exception of a short article read by Mrs. Charles Layman, much of the time was given to making plans for a lawn fete they are sponsoring. This is scheduled to be held on the Mt. Zion church lawn Saturday, August 17. The meeting was concluded with a social hour during which refreshments were served.

The next meeting of the Society was set for Wednesday evening, September 4, and will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Michael.

Grantsville Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Rodamer entertained Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dotts at dinner last evening at the National hotel.

Advocacy of Government Overthrow Should Be Crime, Lawyers Hear

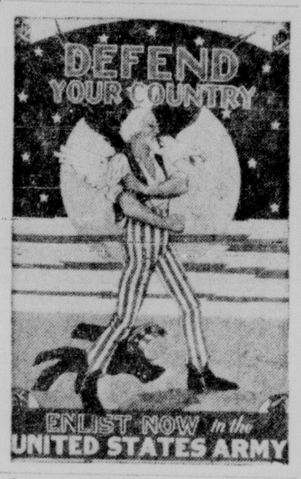

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 8(AP)—State Senator Robert O. Norris, of Lively, Va., suggested to the Virginia and West Virginia Bar associations tonight enactment of laws to make it a crime to advocate "the overthrow of our government by force and violence."

Speaking as president of the Virginia association at the opening session of the joint convention, Norris questioned why anyone, except those actually desiring to overthrow government by force, should fail to appreciate "the obvious necessity of this limitation upon the freedom of speech.

"Perhaps the best explanation that can be given," he declared, "is that the public has not been sufficiently educated as to what is meant by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.

Many seem to think that it is unbridled and unrestricted license and console their conscience with the idea that the exercise of this license will serve more or less as a safety valve which permits the escape of excess steam from a boiler. Let them beware, however, for the steam may be poison gas which in time will poison the minds of a large number of people and ultimately result in disorder and bloodshed that may cause the best government the world has ever known to totter upon its foundation.

"In this day and time when a political party, which numbers among its adherents thousands of the voters of the nation, is openly advocating the overthrow of our government by force and violence, it would not be amiss to have laws enacted making this advocacy a crime."

In his presidential address at the first joint bar convention of the two Virginias, the Beckley attorney asserted:

"In trials by a court the judge is too apt to be full of theories and lacking in practical knowledge and experience as applied to the everyday life of the average litigant."

Asserting that proponents and opponents of the right to trial by jury differ principally in their concept of justice, he contended:

"A knowledge and sympathetic understanding of the mode of living, the passions and the prejudices, and the joys and sorrows of the average suitor, are as essential to a fair administration of justice as knowledge of the law applicable to the controversy between the parties."

Because white ants destroy wooden telegraph poles in India, many iron poles are used there.

Aerial Drills Are Tops in Shows At Panama's Outdoor Night Spots

By W. H. MOBLEY
AP Feature Service

PANAMA—Officially the Canal Zone has been on war footing since September 6, 1939, when President Roosevelt proclaimed a state of limited emergency and placed the commanding general of the Canal Department in full charge.

Actually effects on civilians have been relatively few.

In the eyes of the Panama man in the street, the war is something for Europeans to worry about.

While defense measures move faster and faster, the visible reaction among civilians is little more than an extra flick of the polishing rag over the cash register and three enthusiastic cheers.

And why not? Hasn't the defense program turned what might have been a serious depression into a mild boom?

'And Why Not?'

The atmosphere is a good deal more grim at military and naval headquarters. But even there the greatest emphasis is laid on the difference between precaution and preparation.

Unofficially—nobody in authority will talk for publication—the whole situation is dismissed as a case of oiling up the shotgun on the offchance of a burglar.

The stock answer of military and naval spokesmen to inquiries runs about like this:

"So what? Don't they run signal drills and even hold scrimmages with football teams? Hasn't the necessity for such preparation of the team increased with the development of razzle-dazzle play?"

Most spectacular of the defense activities visible to civilian eyes are the periodic practice sessions of the great mobile anti-aircraft searchlight batteries.

Even that has become a source of civilian profit. Panama's moderately well-to-do take their dining out al fresco in beer gardens. Whether by design or not, the three most popular beer gardens are situated on hills commanding an excellent view of the fortification-ringed waters.

Tough On Taxis

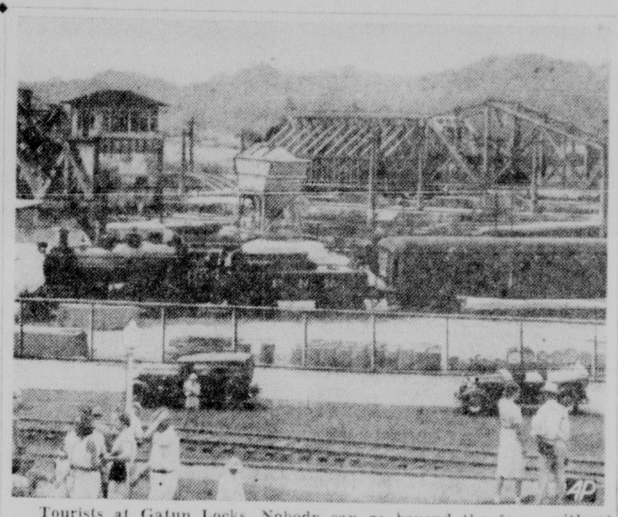

Those centers of the city's night life fill most rapidly on evenings when beams slash the cloud-studded sky of the tropical rainy season, cutting swift geometric patterns, catching and losing the glint of silver wings. Nobody but the participants knows in advance when such a show will be put on.

Taxi drivers catering to tourists weep more loudly about restrictions than anybody else. Polite but determined sentries bar the gates at military posts that once constituted the high points of the profitable sight-seeing trade.

It takes a pass or word from a ranking officer now to gain entry to even the semi-public areas of military reservations.

What sentries and fences do not hide, the jungle conceals. Few persons go down the frequent new trails branching off roadways in the Zone to see what they may lead to in the dense growth near the ship channel.

It is tacitly understood one does not go far without credentials.

Trouble Starts when Duck Gets Oiled

TULSA, Okla., (AP) — There's trouble when a duck gets oiled (literally).

They do that when they come down on the waters hereabouts for a rest. The waters are covered with a film of oil.

"This oil gets into the duck's feathers and dissolves the normal protective oil," says Hugh Davis, curator at Mohawk zoo. "Then the water soaks in and the ducks bog down. They can't fly, and they starve to death unless someone helps them."

Davis said the "cure" is to wash the ducks in gasoline, then feed them until they can moult and grow new feathers.

The highest volcanic peak in the world is Sahama in Bolivia, which is 21,000 feet high.

Bolden Resigns From Oakland City Council

Street Committee Chairman Retires on Account of Ill Health

OAKLAND, Aug 8-Emory Bolden, member of the city council since April, 1937, has tendered his resignation to that body, it has been announced. The resignation was accepted with regret by the council.

Mr. Bolden said he was compelled to "take this step with deep regret," and thanked the officials for their kind cooperation and assistance during his period of service to the community. He said he was resigning because of the condition of his health, which has not been of the best for several months.

Mr. Bolden was chairman of the street committee of Council and had been much interested in the improvement of streets in all parts of the town.

The report of clerk-collector, Arthur Lawton for July showed receipts of $4,394.52, which included water collections of $1,888.72; taxes $1,609.30; golf course $424; intangible property tax $300. Bills paid were $3,628.45, which included payment of a short-term loan of $1,414.70 from the First National Bank.

Mr. Lawton stated that $794.90 had been received from the golf course thus far with expenses of $825.23. August receipts had more than made up the deficit. Movie tax for the previous month was $38.50, the lowest amount since this tax became effective several years ago.

Co-Op Pays Dividends

A dividend of six percent on capital stock of Southern States Oakland Service, a farmer-owned and controlled cooperative, has just been declared by the board of directors, according to Truman C. Bittinger, Oakland, a member of the board.

This dividend is in addition to a three percent patronage dividend on purchases, paid half in cash and half in stock, and to a special cash patronage dividend on fertilizer amounting to $434.65. The patronage dividend checks on fertilizer are now at the office of the service.

Miss Virginia Murrill To Become Bride of Rev. J. C. Jeffries

PARSONS, W. Va., Aug. 8—Several Parsons residents have received invitations to the wedding of Miss Virginia McDaniel Murrill, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Murrill, Prestonsburg, Ky., to the Rev. John Campbell Jeffries of the same city. The wedding will take place August 21.

The Murrills lived in Parsons several years, while Mr. Murrill was pastor of Central Avenue Methodist church. Miss Murrill was very active in school and social circles while she lived here.

Girl Scouts at Camp

The first annual encampment of the Parsons Girl Scouts started yesterday and will continue until Wednesday, August 14, at Horseshoe Forest Camp at Leadmine, W. Va. This troop was organized in April, and the girls are making great progress on their Scout advancement, most of the girls hoping to pass at least one rank while in camp.

They are camping under the leadership of their captain, Mrs. Richard E. Evans; Miss Eloise Flanagan, lieutenant; and Mrs. Emma Jean Smith, recreational and music director.

The following are enrolled: Ruth Morris, Jaxine Shrader, Catherine Swearingen, Imogene Swearingen, Lenora Armstrong, Betty Griffith, Mildred Bowley, Barbee Jarvis, June Marie Felton, Wanda Stemple, Nina Burns, Alma Belle Evans, Eloise Flanagan, Emma Jean Smith, and Mrs. Richard E. Evans.

Camp stunt night will be held Friday night. Visitors are invited to visit the camp Friday night and Sunday.

Family Reunions

The Higgs family will hold its first family reunion at the Horseshoe Camp Sunday.

The Sayre reunion will be held in the city park at Terra Alta Sunday.

Homecoming Sunday

Porterwood will celebrate its fourth annual home-coming day Sunday, August 18. A program will be given at the Porterwood church at 10 a. m. and a picnic dinner will be served at 1 p. m. on the grounds adjoining the church. The public is invited.

Man Turns Nudist during Heat Wave Sentenced to 20 Days in 'Cooler'

KEYSER, W. Va., Aug. 8—Jacob R. "Jake" Feaster, 38-year-old Ridgeleyite, spent the first of twenty days in the Mineral county jail here today, where he is serving sentences on a double-barreled charge, imposed by Justice of the Peace C. A. Jewell.

As he was apparently suffering from the heat when he "did unlawfully expose his person in the nude in the Town of Ridgeley" Tuesday, Justice Jewell this morning meted out a ten-day sentence in the "cooler" to Feaster. A second ten-day sentence was imposed on a charge of drunkenness in a public place, and a fine of $10 for each offense was also levied by the Justice.

Feaster was brought to the jail here this afternoon by Ridgeley Police Chief C. V. Barncord.

Fourth Annual Outing To Be Held near Bittinger; Many Contests

OAKLAND, Aug. 8 — Plans have been completed for the fourth annual Garrett county picnic conducted by the Extension service, which will include the distribution of a number of prizes for winners in games contests, County Agent John H. Carter stated.

The picnic is to be held Saturday at the recreation area on the Cunningham tract near Bittinger.

The day will begin with preliminary games in the morning, with the group having a basket dinner from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. This will be followed by group singing until 1:30 p. m., when greetings will be brought from the State Grange, the Maryland Farm Bureau and the Homemakers' clubs. At 2 o'clock L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, will deliver the principal address.

The contests will be conducted at the conclusion of the address, with awarding of prizes. Contests and awards for first prize winners include rolling pin contest, 2-gallon aluminum kettle; nail driving, hammer; speed ball, a speed ball and bat; volley ball, five-pound box of candy; hog calling, 100-pound pig and hog feed; husband calling, 24-pound bag flour; horseshoe pitching (single) five quarts of oil; horseshoe pitching (double), ten quarts of oil; peanut hunt, a large bag of peanuts; balloon blowing contest (children ages 9 to 12) an ice cream bar for each entry, with a school kit the grand prize; turkey calling (as hunter calls), one bag turkey feed.

Clyde Bonar Heads W. Va. Farm Bureau

Clyde Bonar, Burlington, was elected president of the West Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, which would up its annual three-day meeting yesterday at Jackson's Mill.

Representatives from fifty counties of the state included four Mineral county delegates: Clyde Bonar, Burlington; R. R. Kuykendall, Reeses Mill; J. W. Carskadon Jr., Headsville; and J. E. Prettyman, county agricultural agent, Keyser.

Go to Convention

Sheriff Harley O. Staggers, Attorney William MacDonald and Newton B. Carskadon left this afternoon for Huntington, where they will represent Mineral county at the Democratic judicial convention tomorrow.

Two candidates for judges of the state Supreme Court are to be named at the convention.

Teacher Granted Leave

Miss Madalyn Bazzle, teacher in the Mineral county schools and vice-president of the West Virginia Young Republican League, has been granted a leave of absence for the first two months of school, it was announced here today.

It was thought that Miss Bazzle, who is active in political circles, applied for the leave in order to take part in the Republican campaign. The leave expires shortly after the November election.

Permission was granted at a meeting of the board of education here Tuesday night. County Superintendent of Schools Paul C. Rouzer said today he did not know why the application was made.

Miss Bazzle, who was granted a leave last year to form Young Republican clubs throughout the state, was out of town today and could not be reached for a statement.

WOULD LIMIT DRAFT

Senator Josh Lee

Despite plea of Army chiefs for an immediate draft, Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, has proposed to further limit compulsory military service to only 1,000,000 men in the 21-31 age group. The proposal is intended to curb the president's power to train men without further authorization from Congress.

Keyser Briefs

Seven Mineral county members are attending the boys' state 4-H camp at Jackson's Mill this week, Miss Florence Howard, county club agent, said today. They are: Paul Umstot, Gate; Guy Stewart, Keyser; Jimmy Preskorn, Ridgeley; and Louis Welch, Richard Fleek, Ray Umstot and Arthur Kuykendall, Reeses Mill.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given by members of the Havener Bible Class of First Methodist church for Mrs. Truman Schwinabart at her home on Willlow avenue last night. Before her recent marriage, Mrs. Schwinabart was Miss Glennie Dayton.

Keyser Personals

Dr. and Mrs. James A. Newcome are spending a week at Lake Erie. They are accompanied by their two sons, Jimmie and Hal.

Miss Dorothy Appleton, Lexington, Ky., is visiting Mrs. Walter Shearer, North Main street.

Miss Pearl Howard, Newark, Ohio, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Holtzman, St. Cloud street.

To Dedicate Theater

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution memorial theater at Jackson's Mill will be dedicated October 19 as part of the DAR's fiftieth anniversary jubilee, Mrs. W. H. S. White, state regent, said today. Speakers will include Mrs. William A. Becker, honorary president-general of the national society.

Gains and Losses About Even in Small Turnover in Stock Market

Fear of British Defeat Keeping Many on the Sidelines

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—The stock market put on another dog-day crawl today and the net result was virtually a cipher. At the close, minor gains and losses were fairly well divided.

The turnover was 206,390 shares.

The consensus of brokerage opinion was that today's snail-like performance, like those of past weeks, was due to the persistent dislike of speculative forces to take on any sizable commitments pending more assurances the British can repel a Nazi invasion.

Doubts regarding a national tax program still were seen as a buying restraint. Business news, including highly favorable earnings statements, dividends and armament awards, failed to stimulate the market.

Modest improvement was retained by such stocks as Republic Steel, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Studebaker, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Sperry, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Standard Oil of N. J., and American Telephone.

On the offside a trifle were Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Kennecott, North American, Westinghouse, du Pont and Southern Railway.

In the curb modest advances were posted for Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share, Brewster Aero and Pennroad. Declining were Humble Oil, Glen Alden Coal, Pantepec and American Light and Traction. About 53,000 shares were traded.

A CUP OF COFFEE AND SOME ADVICE

There's nothing like a cup of Mother Hardy's coffee, along with her comforting advice, to remove the worry lines from Judge Hardy's brow. Lewis Stone and Fay Holden, as Mr. and Mrs. Hardy, make their latest appearance on the Maryland screen this week in "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," and when Mickey Rooney, as Andy, has love trouble with the year's Glamour Girl, you can be sure that his ma and pa become involved in the complications.

CLASSIC SCENES ARE STREAMLINED

Theaters Today

Maryland Is Showing Andy Hardy Picture

The Hardys, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" is bringing laughs to audiences at the Maryland Theater.

Comedy, of course, is an important goal of all the Hardy pictures but it is a brand of comedy which is as natural and homey as the typical family which the pictures portray, and it is always pointed up by contrast with the disappointments, embarrassments and near-tragedies to which any average family is the prey. "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" does not fall short of this ideal and there is never a moment when the onlooker loses his sympathy with Andy Hardy and his family no matter how comic their misfortunes may seem.

Many Screen Comics In 'Syracuse' Farce

"Greco gag grappling" with no holds barred is the main event at the New Liberty theater where "The Boys From Syracuse" is currently playing.

A half-dozen comics and several converted "straight" players inject comedy into Mayfair Productions' film version of the farce, with ancient Greek background, based on the Broadway success of the same title.

Top-line players include Allan Jones, Irene Hervey and Rosemary Lane, all successful in so-called "straight" roles and all now essaying a new style of comedy.

Martha Raye contributes antics to the film and as a contrast, Joe Penner is present to portray a wistful, under-pup type of human punching bag.

Also important in the cast is Charles Butterworth, whose "deadpan" is his fortune. Alan Mowbray and Eric Blore are on hand and so is Samupel S. Hinds, the tobacco-chewing comedy mayor of "Destry Rides Again."

Donahue's Orchestra Is Playing at the Strand

The four final showings will take place at 2:44; 7:00; 9:02 and 11:04 p. m. today. The last stage and screen show starting at 10 p. m.

The screen show is Universal's comedy "Sandy Is A Lady" starring Baby Sandy, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Mischa Auer, Billy Gilbert and Eugene Pallette.

In "The Return of Frank James" Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production which opens at the Strand tomorrow, Tyrone Power plays one of the strangest roles in the history of the screen.

In "The Return of Frank James" there is only sixty feet of film on which Power appears, the briefest moment. It is the beginning of the film, where the thread of the last moment in "Jesse James" is picked up.

Power's back is to the audience. They see him shot, fall, and from then on, the film goes on to detail the manner in which Henry Fonda as "Frank James" takes revenge for his brother's murder.

Garden Offers a Starrett Western

A Charles Starrett Western, "Two-Fisted Rangers," heads the double feature program at the Garden today. Iris Meredith is also in the cast.

Peggy Moran has the romantic lead in Universal's "Danger on Wheels," auto-racing drama co-starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine, which is also at the Garden.

Peggy was born in Clinton, Ia. At the age of five she moved with her family to Los Angeles, where she attended public schools. After graduation she turned to acting.

Eventually she was placed under long-term contract to Universal and was given an assignment in a Deanna Durbin production.

"Frontier Crusader" Is Playing at Embassy

Tim McCoy makes a return to the scenes of his old triumphs today at the Embassy Theater in another of the outdoor pictures which have made this former Indian agent, and U. S. Army officer one of the outstanding characters of what was once America's far-flung frontier. His vehicle is "Frontier Crusader."

In "Frontier Crusader," Tim enacts the role of a "trigger man," who is brought to Monument City, a border cattle and mining town, to run down and punish a band of desperate high-graders, mining claim-jumpers and all around crooks, who have successfully set at defiance all efforts of the local authorities to curb their sinister activities.

The second feature is Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Saps At Sea." In addition to the two features there will be the third chapter of "Terry And The Pirates."

IN TECHNICOLOR FILM

Henry Fonda and Gene Tierney, as they appear in "The Return of Frank James," Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production, which has its World Premier at the Strand Theater Saturday.

Advocacy of Government Overthrow Should Be Crime, Lawyers Hear

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—State Senator Robert O. Norris, of Lively, Va., suggested to the Virginia and West Virginia Bar associations tonight enactment of laws to make it a crime to advocate "the overthrow of our government by force and violence."

Speaking as president of the Virginia association at the opening session of the joint convention, Norris questioned why anyone, except those actually desiring to overthrow government by force, should fail to appreciate "the obvious necessity of this limitation upon the freedom of speech.

"Perhaps the best explanation that can be given," he declared, "is that the public has not been sufficiently educated as to what is meant by the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.

"Many seem to think that it is unbridled and unrestricted license and console their conscience with the idea that the exercise of this license will serve more or less as a safety valve which permits the escape of excess steam from a boiler. Let them beware, however, for the steam may be poison gas which in time will poison the minds of a large number of people and ultimately result in disorder and bloodshed that may cause the best government the world has ever known to totter upon its foundation.

"In this day and time when a political party, which numbers among its adherents thousands of the voters of the nation, is openly advocating the overthrow of our government by force and violence, it would not be amiss to have laws enacted making this advocacy a crime."

In his presidential address at the first joint bar convention of the two Virginias, the Beckley attorney asserted:

"In trials by a court the judge is too apt to be full of theories and lacking in practical knowledge and experience as applied to the everyday life of the average litigant."

Asserting that proponents and opponents of the right to trial by jury differ principally in their concept of justice, he contended:

"A knowledge and sympathetic understanding of the mode of living, the passions and the prejudices, and the joys and sorrows of the average suitor, are as essential to a fair administration of justice as knowledge of the law applicable to the controversy between the parties."

Because white ants destroy wooden telegraph poles in India, many iron poles are used there.

Aerial Drills Are Tops in Shows At Panama's Outdoor Night Spots

By W. H. MOBLEY

AP Feature Service

PANAMA—Officially the Canal Zone has been on war footing since September 6, 1939, when President Roosevelt proclaimed a state of limited emergency and placed the commanding general of the Canal Department in full charge.

Actually effects on civilians have been relatively few.

In the eyes of the Panama man in the street, the war is something for Europeans to worry about.

While defense measures move faster and faster, the visible reaction among civilians is little more than an extra flick of the polishing rag over the cash register and three enthusiastic cheers.

And why not? Hasn't the defense program turned what might have been a serious depression into a mild boom?

'And Why Not?'

The atmosphere is a good deal more grim at military and naval headquarters. But even there the greatest emphasis is laid on the difference between precaution and preparation.

Unofficially—nobody in authority will talk for publication—the whole situation is dismissed as a case of oiling up the shotgun on the off-chance of a burglar.

The stock answer of military and naval spokesmen to inquiries runs about like this:

"So what? Don't they run signal drills and even hold scrimmages with football teams? Hasn't the necessity for such preparation of the team increased with the development of razzle-dazzle play?"

Most spectacular of the defense activities visible to civilian eyes are the periodic practice sessions of the great mobile anti-aircraft searchlight batteries.

Even that has become a source of civilian profit. Panama's moderately well-to-do take their dining out al fresco in beer gardens. Whether by design or not, the three most popular beer gardens are situated on hills commanding an excellent view of the fortification-ringed waters.

Tough On Taxis

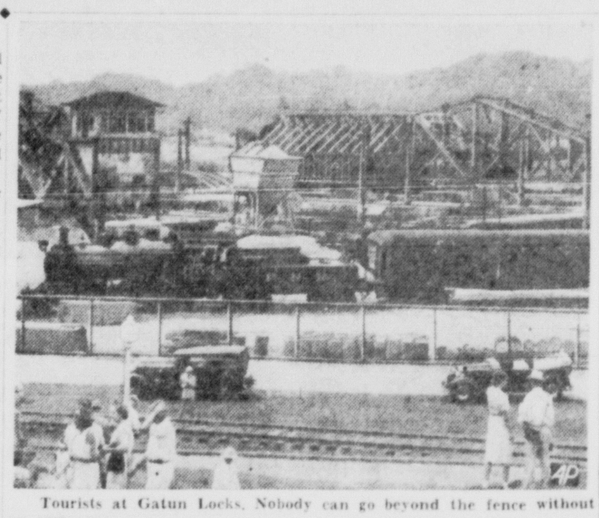

Those centers of the city's night life fill most rapidly on evenings when beams slash the cloud-studded sky of the tropical rainy season, cutting swift geometric patterns, catching and losing the glint of silver wings. Nobody but the participants knows in advance when such a show will be put on.

Taxi drivers catering to tourists weep more loudly about restrictions than anybody else. Polite but determined sentries bar the gates at military posts that once constituted the high points of the profitable sight-seeing trade.

It takes a pass or word from a ranking officer now to gain entry to even the semi-public areas of military reservations.

What sentries and fences do not hide, the jungle conceals. Few persons go down the frequent new trails branching off roadways in the Zone to see what they may lead to in the dense growth near the ship channel.

It is tacitly understood one does not go far without credentials.

Trouble Starts when Duck Gets Oiled

They do that when they come down on the waters hereabouts for a rest. The waters are covered with a film of oil.

"This oil gets into the duck's feathers and dissolves the normal protective oil," says Hugh Davis, curator at Mohawk zoo. "Then the water soaks in and the ducks bog down. They can't fly, and they starve to death unless someone helps them."

Davis said the "cure" is to wash the ducks in gasoline, then feed them until they can moult and grow new feathers.

War Hits Royal Children, Too

To Quebec to escape the war went Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, whose two little Dutch girls—Princess Irene, nine months old, and Princess Beatrix, 2 years—play on a blanket under the summer sun.

Princess Elizabeth, 14 (above) and Princess Margaret Rose, 8 (below) are carrying on at home in best English tradition. They knit, save tinfoil, conserve on food, help raise funds.

Reports recur that Crown Prince Michael, once a boy king, again may rule Rumania, with Carol abdicating in his favor. Michael (or Mihai) is 18, mature, sturdy, and an army lieutenant.

Three royal waifs—Princess Josephine Charlotte, 12, Crown Prince Baudoin, 9, and Prince Albert, 6—have been offered sanctuary in Spain. Originally their father, Leopold III of Belgium, intended to send them to Portugal.

Old Huppy Makes History Repeat at Fairgo

Veteran Comes Through To Take Last Race on Card

Goes Through Same Antics as Before Winning Final of 1939

Dohoev Sets Track Record in Seventh--Jockey Scocca Hurt

You cannot tell those fans who held true to an old love and bet on Huppy in the last race of yesterday's card at Fairgo that "history doesn't repeat" with some little differentials.

In the last race last year old Huppy, the nine year old chestnut gelding by Donnacona-Blink, trained by J. C. Davis and owned by S. C. Bailey went to the post as just another also ran to be. He had disappointed in two earlier starts at the 1938 meet. But Bailey and Davis had faith in Huppy. He paraded postward for a final fling at his favorite course. And on the way there as the band struck up, "Maryland My Maryland" old Huppy stopped dead, then cantered a few steps and stopped dead again.

Outrider Happy Gordon had to come back and lead Huppy to the starting stalls. Huppy put on his same act, enroute to the post yesterday, and everything went the same as last year, except the band wasn't playing, probably because as yet there's no band at Fairgo.

And yesterday as a year ago Huppy came through and won over a field in which he was held at 7 to 1. W. Kirk rated the veteran off the sizzling pace set by Tee Off the favorite, then made his move in the turn into the backstretch. Huppy had what it took as he overhauled the rest of the field and went after Tee Off. He caught him on the stretch turn and moved along in a thrilling finish to take the top honors. Tee Off came again but Huppy had what was needed and staved off the favorite as Caffeine, a long-price in the mutuels, moved up with a rush in Huppy's wake and took third.

Huppy paid $16.90, $5.50 and $4.00; Tee Off returned $3.10 and $2.60 and Caffeine paid $9.60.

Channing Scores

Another favorite of Cumberland fans crashed the winner's circle as most of the 8,000 fans on hand hoped even if all didn't bet on Channing, owned by Mrs. C. E. Wilson of Hagerstown and trained by her husband. Channing ran a well-rated race from the start under Jockey J. Hernandez who went to the top in the winning jockey point score with two winners, a second and two thirds yesterday. The Single Foot gelding broke in front and set all the pace to win driving by three lengths with Chaltaur taking the place from Congo Prince. Channing paid $9.40, $3.90 and $3.20.

The fifth and feature Monarch Handicap for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs was won by Double Back, ridden by A. Martinez with the second choice, Walter Light, second, and the third choice in the close betting, Gay Prank, third. The mutuel equivalents were $2.70, for $1 on Double Back, $2.90 for $1.00 on Walter Light and $3.00 for $1 on Gay Frank, indicating the close wagering of the fans in the one,two, three finishers.

Double Back paid $7.40, $4.40 and $2.10; Walter Light $4.00 and $2.90 and Gay Prank $3.00.

Dohoev Sets Record

A new track record was set when Dohoev took the mile and one-quarter seventh from Blox the heavily played favorite. The M. B. Goss gray mare got a capable ride from Sammy Palumbo who rated her off the pace set by Blox then weaved through the field in the back stretch and came on to win by three lengths going away. She ran the distance in 1:32 flat clipping two-fifths seconds off the old mark set by Bosopi. Blox held on for second with Stop Light third.

The winner paid $12.90, $4.80 and $3.90; Blox returned $3.10 and $2.70 and Stop Light's backers for $5.70 for show.

Favorites Score in Double

Rippling On with a great stretch drive accounted for the five furlong first. After being held in the stall at the start, the Omar Khayam filly followed the fast pace of Distant Star and Quest D'Or then came in on the inside of the stretch turn and won by a half-length in a fast drive to the wire. Quest D'Or held on for third. D. Scocca was up on the winner which paid off at $3.40, $2.70 and $2.50. Distant Star returned $3.30 and $2.90 and Quest D'Or paid $4.50. The time was 56.1 for the distance.

Another stretch runner came through to take the second when Anya under a capable ride by E. Churchill moved up on the stretch turn and took command moving to a length lead at the finish with Lady Buck barely holding on for the place as Veritas moved up and was closing fast on the tiring Lady Buck. Anya paid $6.40, $3.30 and $2.50. Lady Buck returned $3.80 and $3.00 and Veritas $3.10.

The daily double of Rippling On and Anya returned $12.00.

A couple of spills marked the steeplechase sponsored by F. Brooke Whiting and won by Edgemont, second choice in the betting. The early pace was set by Sirford which fell at the seventh jump, throwing Cruz who lay prone as the rest of the field passed over him, with Edgemont taking the lead at this point. Walli fell after the twelfth when he hit against the pylon. N. Brooks aboard the odds-on favorite Judge's Bid rated the gelding off the early pace then did not have what it took to catch the flying Edgemont which won by about three lengths. Gnomie was third.

Edgemont paid $11.40, $3.60 and $2.80. Judges Bid paid $2.80 and $2.50 and Gnomie paid $2.70.

Tennis which ran in the rear then finished sixth was ridden by its owner Louis Hanckel III.

Royal Dot coupled with Lady Solace as the Christmas-George entry raced to a length victory in the fourth, the Scotch Broom filly going to the front at the start and having enough in reserve to stave off the stretch drive of Riotous, the favorite. The winner paid $10.00, $3.70 and $3.00 while Riotous paid $3.00 and $2.60. Barraca was third to pay $5.10. The time was 1:22.

Jockey D. Scocca on Albert D. was thrown at the first turn after the start and was removed to the Allegany Hospital after it was discovered his right arm was broken below the elbow. Scocca fell and rolled over several times. He got up and walked to the side of the track before again falling to the ground. He was taken from the track in an automobile which beat the ambulance to the scene.

Mrs. Ellen Horst sold Snobbish Lady to A. A. Daly who turned it over to Kelly Childress to train.

Joe's Aces of Coney Lengthen Win Streak

LONACONING, Aug. 8—Joe's Aces of Lonaconing took two softball games from the Pekin Indians here this week to extend their winning streak to 12 battles. The scores were 5-1 and 2-1.

Woods pitched two-hit ball in the opener while Lemons allowed only two blows in the nightcap. Included in the Aces' string of victories are wins over the three top Keyser clubs and Rockwood, Pa. For games with the Aces, write Charles Cook, Lonaconing, or phone Lonaconing 86-W.

Hudson's Showing With Washington Boost for Rookies

Florida Class D. Hurler Going Good Against Major Clubbers

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Sid Hudson has pitched another one-hitter for the Washington Senators, and the boys in the Class D leagues are taking another hitch in their plus-fours, smoothing back their ears, and getting big league haircuts. You never can tell who might be next.

Sid Hudson is exhibit A in the theory that you can ignore your a-b-c's as long as you do all right in D. He went from Class D to the majors without a stop for refueling, and Bucky Harris is quite enthused about it.

When we first saw Bucky down South this spring he was trying to learn Spanish with one hand to deal with his Cuban rookies, and singing the praises of Sid Hudson with the other, which is quite a trick, at that.

Had to Sing Praises

Bucky had little alternative than to sing Hudson's praises, as Clark Griffith had paid $7,500 for the lanky lad who had finished 28 of 28 games for Sanford of the Florida league, winning 24, and for $7,500 Griffith would expect Bucky not only to sing praises, but be a one-man quartet.

Hudson has made good with a wallop, and if that isn't enough encouragement for the Class D boys they might consider another, now pitching for Detroit, who just two years ago was in Class D ball.

His name is John Gorsica, and his history is even more astonishing than Hudson's in that up to about three years ago he was a knobby-kneed first baseman with no bad habits excepta weakness for a low curve outside.

Beckley, W. Va., which was the jumping off place for a goodly number of the Cincinnati Reds, also provided the springboard for Gorsica, who journeyed from the sandlots of his native Bayonne, N. J. to Charleston, W. Va., in 1937 with a first-baseman's glove in his hip pocket and hope in his eyes.

Came From Beckley

The Mountain State League had just been organized, and Beckley had a working agreement with Detroit, which also was doing business with Charleston.

Charleston decided Gorsica wasn't ready for its Class C ball, and when Jack Zellers of Detroit notified owner Colonel J. Lewis Bumgardner and Manager Eli Harris of Beckley that the sheep were about to be separated from the goats at Charleston and advised them to "come on down and get your goats," big John Gorsica was in the chinwhisker class.

Gorsica didn't do so badly, hitting .299 for Beckley in 1937, but Harris saw that the curve ball weakness would prevent the lad from going very far. He also saw that Gorsica whipped the ball around the infield with dazzling speed, and Harris had an idea. This kid could be a pitcher.

Arrangements were made to send Gorsica to Beaumont's training camp for the spring of 1938—as a pitcher. He might have stuck around there, but Harris had insisted that his protege be returned, so he came back to pitch for Beckley in 1938.

Record Not so Hot

Last year he was with Beaumont, and although his won and lost record—nine wins against 17 defeats—wasn't so hot, the Tigers thought enough of his potentialities to bring him up, and right now he's doing quite all right, thanks.

The cases of Hudson and Gorsica offer encouragement to many a lean-shanked youngster toiling on baseball's kerosene circuits for their sixty bucks a month, with the majors apparently a distant mirage. It doesn't happen often, but when it does—wow!

Padlock Pete Goes Off His Feet to Jumps

Dear S. S.:

Something always happens. That "Tee Off" yesterday had the last race in his pocket and then flip - flopped into the second hole.

You can have the flats today. I'll take the jumps. Pal of mine from Baltimore, by the name of Gibby Gibson, says War Port in the jumping third is just like having money in the bank—whatever that means.

Here's hoping he don't get his hurdles mixed up and jump into the Potomac!

Yours,

PPPPP

Saddle Strap Sam

Dear P. P.:

I see where you went to the jumps for today and figure you like the idea a brewery is sponsoring that one.

Three seconds yesterday left me "flat" anyhow, until Channing and Huppy picked me up.

Just to show you I'm no piker I'm going to Disraeli in the seventh. They tell me a guy of the same name once saved the Bank of England. . . . I'll let you know how it feels to have money in the bank and not the bank of the Potomac, which you're worried about with your War Port.

S. S. S.

HORSES TO WATCH

WAHCOO: Been breaking nicely from stall gate, since refusing to leave August 7; therefore grab this one next out.

WORTHOWNING: Forget that last effort. This can will show to better next out, especially if the racing strip is fast.

MARIYAH: Pitched too high recently. Belongs with those $600 top and bottom platers, where she will show her true ability.

GOLD D'OR: Looks like a certain winner when the distance is stretched beyond six and one-half furlongs.

LEICESTESHIRE: Appeared to need that last race. Will make a cheap field of jumpers sorry whenever he catches one in the near future.

CRIMSON LANCER: Been raced into condition. Going to be hard to whip from now on, that is, if sent over a distance of ground.

VEEPEE: Bore out badly at turns in debut. Now that this one has had a try at the course, you can look for steady improvement rest of meeting.

STAR ON: Tired as if short in recent jumping race. Is bound to improve if kept among same kind.

KITTIAWAKE: Looks and acts well. Appears ready for brackets.

PANDORAMINT: Kept in deep footing throughout last Wednesday's race. Will beat same kind if track comes up fast.

CLYMENE: Ran fine race last start. Should be a money factor from now on.

SCHLEY AL: Consistent trick, who is always worth figuring in the money.

Dodgers Continue Jinx for Giants

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers maintained their mastery over the Giants today with a 6 to 3 victory on Dolph Camilli's 12th home run with two on and two out in the 12th inning.

It was the ninth triumph in 12 games for the Dodgers against the Giants and continued their record of not having lost a game in the Polo Grounds this year.

Two of Brooklyn's other runs also came on a homer, a blast by Peewee Reese with one on to tie the score in the seventh inning, while Nick Witek accounted for two of New York's runs with a four-master in the second.

CCC Caddies Defeat Hagerstown Golfers

Cumberland Country Club caddies easily defeated Fountain Head Country Club golf bag toters of Hagerstown here Wednesday, winning three of five foursomes and the lone twosome for a total of 13 points to the visitors' five.

Gerald Nye of Hagerstown and Gerald Barb of Cumberland had low gross 80's. It was announced that qualifying rounds for the annual CCC caddies' tournament will start next Monday. Forty or more boys are expected to compete. The summary:

Gerald Nye and George Barr, Hagerstown, defeated Gerald Barb and Jack Beck, 2½ and ½.

Jack Carnell and Ralph Michaels, CCC, and L. Lushbaugh and R. Smith, tied, 1½ and 1½.

Orville Clark and Ken Teeter, CCC, defeated G. Snyder and W. Lewis, 2½ and ½.

D. Bennett and C. Barnes, CCC, defeated G. Heller and S. Shaffer, 3 and 0.

Earl Willison, CCC, defeated Frank Ward, 3 and 0.

STABLED AT FAIRGO

Black Brigade, the six year old son of the high priced Broadway Jones out of Shirley Louise, is stabled at the Cumberland Fair Grounds with the string of J. O. Hay. Jockey Stavella is shown with the Hay hay-burner which was shipped here from Hambleton, Ohio, along with Lady Peg, Art Cooper, Westy Gal, Just Macy and Leo S. Hay looks for Black Brigade to score over the Fairgo oval, and race fans can keep an eye peeled on the other entries from this string which enjoyed a successful stand at Wheeling and in Ohio.

FAIRGO RACE NOTES

Sammy Palumbo, who was taken ill with cramps, and who cancelled his last two mounts Wednesday, resumed riding yesterday—(Aug. 8).

Willie Kelly with four winners, one second and a fourth; a total of 25 points, led during the first two day's for the gold watch offered to the leading winning rider during the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting. However, Buddy Root was right on Kelly's heels with 24 points, as a result of one winner, three seconds, two third and a fourth.

Ned Gaines and Dan Chamblin went to the front in the race for the trainer award when they each saddled a pair of winners, the first two days.

Six favorites scored in the first sixteen races run. However the average should ascend next week, at which time horse players will have a much better line on the thoroughbreds.

Four No. 7 horses won purses the first two days in sprint races, with one 7-7 daily double clicking.

George Watson, who is riding here, weighed 140 last spring at Pimlico. Watson can now do 112 pounds. He is considered one of the best money riders on the grounds.

P. H. Faulconer's speedy Roman Boy has been training briskly over this strip. Stands a royal chance of winning a five eighths sprint before many days elapse.

President Al J. Boyle is having shed row torn down at Charles Town, W. Va. He is also having a steeplechase course erected in the Charles Town infield.

E. A. Stone, placing judge at Charles Town, motors over daily. Will send several horses to the Marlboro meeting, which opens August 21.

Jockeys planning on riding at Marlboro are mighty pleased over General Manager Joe Farrell's decision to eliminate the stationary stalls at the Southern Maryland track, and use the Bahr gate. This means all fields will leave straight and thus eliminate the crowding which occured when the stationary stalls, located on the outside of the racing strip, were used.

Tomorrow (Aug. 10) features will be the Algonquin Hotel Handicap, mile and one sixteenth; and the Duvall Steeplechase Handicap, two miles. Race Secretary Eddie Brennan has attracted capacity fields for both events.

Talbot County Yacht Clubs Stage Regatta

OXFORD, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Talbot County's oldest and its youngest yacht clubs will stage three-day regattas starting tomorrow on the Tred Avon river.

Their races will be run independently of each other, with two committee boats and over two courses.

One is the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club, holding its forty-eighth annual sailing races, the other the Tred Avon Yacht Club, the county's youngest boating unit.

Entry lists this year are larger than normal, committees reported, and a record crowd is expected for the events.

Red Sox Jump on Yanks To Win 6-5

BOSTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Red Sox crowded seven of their 13 hits into the last two innings today to overtake the New York Yankees and nail down their fourth victory of the five-game series, 6 to 5.

Johnny Murphy, relief pitcher converted into a starter today by the desperate Joe McCarthy, held the slugging Sox to two runs in the first seven innings—both coming on Jimmie Foxx' 26th homer in the sixth.

But in the eighth Boston pounced on Murphy and Bump Hadley for two runs off three singles and a double and in the ninth added two more on a walk and three singles, the payoff blow being a single by Manager Joe Cronin off Lefty Gomez.

Gains and Losses About Even in Small Turnover in Stock Market

Fear of British Defeat Keeping Many on the Sidelines

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—The stock market put on another dog-day crawl today and the net result was virtually a cipher. At the close, minor gains and losses were fairly well divided.

The turnover was 206,390 shares.

The consensus of brokerage opinion was that today's snail-like performance, like those of past weeks, was due to the persistent dislike of speculative forces to take on any sizable commitments pending more assurances the British can repel a Nazi invasion.

Doubts regarding a national tax program still were seen as a buying restraint. Business news, including highly favorable earnings statements, dividends and armament awards, failed to stimulate the market.

Modest improvement was retained by such stocks as Republic Steel, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, Studebaker, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Sperry, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Standard Oil of N. J., and American Telephone.

On the offside a trifle were Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Kennecott, North American, Westinghouse, du Pont and Southern Railway.

In the curb modest advances were posted for Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share, Brewster Aero and Pennroad. Declining were Humble Oil, Glen Alden Coal, Pantepec and American Light and Traction. About 53,000 shares were traded.

A CUP OF COFFEE AND SOME ADVICE

There's nothing like a cup of Mother Hardy's coffee, along with her comforting advice, to remove the worry lines from Judge Hardy's brow. Lewis Stone and Fay Holden, as Mr. and Mrs. Hardy, make their latest appearance on the Maryland screen this week in "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," and when Mickey Rooney, as Andy, has love trouble with the year's Glamour Girl, you can be sure that his ma and pa become involved in the complications.

CLASSIC SCENES ARE STREAMLINED

Maryland Is Showing Andy Hardy Picture

The Hardys, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" is bringing laughs to audiences at the Maryland Theater.

Comedy, of course, is an important goal of all the Hardy pictures but it is a brand of comedy which is as natural and homey as the typical family which the pictures portray, and it is always pointed up by contrast with the disappointments, embarrassments and near-tragedies to which any average family is the prey. "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" does not fall short of this ideal and there is never a moment when the onlooker loses his sympathy with Andy Hardy and his family no matter how comic their misfortunes may seem.

Many Screen Comics In 'Syracuse' Farce

"Greco gag grappling" with no holds barred is the main event at the New Liberty theater where "The Boys From Syracuse" is currently playing.

A half-dozen comics and several converted "straight" players inject comedy into Mayfair Productions' film version of the farce, with ancient Greek background, based on the Broadway success of the same title.

Top-line players include Allan Jones, Irene Hervey and Rosemary Lane, all successful in so-called "straight" roles and all now essaying a new style of comedy.

Martha Raye contributes antics to the film and as a contrast, Joe Penner is present to portray a wistful, under-pup type of human punching bag.

Also important in the cast is Charles Butterworth, whose "deadpan" is his fortune. Alan Mowbray and Eric Blore are on hand and so is Samupel S. Hinds, the tobacco-chewing comedy mayor of "Destry Rides Again."

Donahue's Orchestra Is Playing at the Strand

Al Donahue and his orchestra with the singing stars Dee Keating and Phil Brito opens at the Strand yesterday.

The four final showings will take place at 2:44; 7:00; 9:02 and 11:04 p. m. today. The last stage and screen show starting at 10 p. m.

The screen show is Universal's comedy "Sandy Is A Lady" starring Baby Sandy, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Mischa Auer, Billy Gilbert and Eugene Pallette.

In "The Return of Frank James" Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production which opens at the Strand tomorrow, Tyrone Power plays one of the strangest roles in the history of the screen.

In "The Return of Frank James" there is only sixty feet of film on which Power appears, the briefest moment. It is the beginning of the film, where the thread of the last moment in "Jesse James" is picked up.

Power's back is to the audience. They see him shot, fall, and from then on, the film goes on to detail the manner in which Henry Fonda as "Frank James" takes revenge for his brother's murder.

Garden Offers a Starrett Western

A Charles Starrett Western, "Two-Fisted Rangers," heads the double feature program at the Garden today. Iris Meredith is also in the cast.

Peggy Moran has the romantic lead in Universal's "Danger on Wheels," auto-racing drama co-starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine, which is also at the Garden.

Peggy was born in Clinton, Ia. At the age of five she moved with her family to Los Angeles, where she attended public schools. After graduation she turned to acting.

Eventually she was placed under long-term contract to Universal and was given an assignment in a Deanna Durbin production.

"Frontier Crusader" Is Playing at Embassy

Tim McCoy makes a return to the scenes of his old triumphs today at the Embassy Theater in another of the outdoor pictures which have made this former Indian agent, and U. S. Army officer one of the outstanding characters of what was once America's far-flung frontier. His vehicle is "Frontier Crusader."

In "Frontier Crusader," Tim enacts the role of a "trigger man," who is brought to Monument City, a border cattle and mining town, to run down and punish a band of desperate high-graders, mining claim-jumpers and all around crooks, who have successfully set at defiance all efforts of the local authorities to curb their sinister activities.

The second feature is Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Saps At Sea." In addition to the two features there will be the third chapter of "Terry And The Pirates."

IN TECHNICOLOR FILM

Henry Fonda and Gene Tierney, as they appear in "The Return of Frank James," Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production, which has its World Premier at the Strand Theater Saturday.

Reds Make Six Hits Count To Trim Cubs

Cincinnati Wins First Game since Sunday by 3 to 1

Bucky Walters Credited with 16th Victory of Season

Rhinelanders Beat French To Gain Break in Series

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8 (AP)—Southpaw Larry French allowed two hits in each of three frames today and the champion Reds made all but one count to defeat Chicago 3 to 1, gain an even break in the series and Bucky Walters his 16th triumph of the year.

It was the Reds' first decision since Sunday in Boston and their third win in nine games.

The Cubs got away to a lead—and their only scoring—in the first as Walters gave the first of his three walks to Stan Hack and the third baseman advanced on an infield out and Jim Gleeson's single.

But the Rhinelands promptly tied things up on two walks and Ernie Lombardi's single after Bill Werber had opened with a safety but died stealing.

With two away in the fifth, they garnered a run on two more singles and a walk, and in the eighth two singles sandwiching Frank McCormick's third pass and a hit batsman, produced another.

Three times the Cubs got to Walters for pairs of safeties but twice the rallies were cut down by double plays.

Play started at 2 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual, in order that the game might be over by the time funeral services were conducted (5 p. m., Cincinnati time) in Visalia, Calif., for the Reds' late second-string catcher, Willard Hershberger, who killed himself in Boston Saturday.

Umpires' Social Life Blossoming Out Fast

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—A prize-fight edges the European catch-as-catch-can off the editorial page for the first time this year, as the voice of The Scranton Tribune, of Scranton, Pa., demands to know what is wrong with boxing and why there is no justice for its favorite fighting son, William Soose.

"The average boxing fan," says The Scranton Tribune, "who long has been wondering why the game has reached such a low ebb which finds shameful stinkeroos being staged in New York, center of the boxing trust, may find a ray of explanation for the situation in the writings of the crowd of ring experts who came to this city on Wednesday for the Billy Soose-Ken Overlin bout.

"For if the boys from the big city aren't more honest in their reporting of conditions generally in the boxing business than they were in their accounts of the Soose-Overlin contest, then it's easily understandable why the boxing game has become a racket and the public is taken for a sleigh ride time after time, let it be added, to the tune of extravagant praise articles on bums who shouldn't be let inside the ropes in the first place."

Soose Has No Title

I don't know if you followed the details of the Soose-Overlin fight with much attention. Mr. Overlin, a cunning fellow formerly employed by the United States Navy, is the world's middleweight champion of Mr. Michael Jacob's widely-famed trust. The other champion is Anthony Zale, who got his title in Seattle, where a Jacobs championship is not even good on street cars.

Mr. Soose is a good, workmanlike middleweight, the pride of Scranton. He has no title whatever. In order to insure the permanence of this state of affairs, which is satisfactory to several parties, Mr. Overlin did not put his bauble on the line when he went to Scranton to fight Mr. Soose. It was over the weight. No title at stake.

I didn't see the glorious battle, but several of the "big city" writers to whom The Scranton Tribune refers were there. Soose got the decision, two votes to one. Some of the "boys," returning from Scranton, were inclined to describe it as a home-town decision, with Mr. Soose the beneficiary.

That is what makes The Scranton Tribune mad, and I do not blame The Tribune. Why take it away from Soose? If he won cleanly, as the folks in Scranton seem to think, then it is a dirty trick on him to speak of home-town decisions. If the fight was close, then Mr. Overlin failed to prove what every champion ought to prove—real superiority—and deserves no sympathy.

It is kind of hard to sympathize with Mr. Overlin, anyway. It's not as though Kenneth were a naive youth, an easy mark, a sucker for frameups. Ken is a cute man who has spent most of his professional life fighting in other fellows' home towns.

Kids His Way to Victory

He went to Scranton with no illusions—and, if he'll pardon me for saying so, very little championship equipment. Mr. Overlin is a deft slapper and a shifty target who kids his way to many a victory. He once won a kidding decision over Fred Apostoli, though Apostoli, then in his prime, was a better fighter than Overlin by three to one.

Kenneth plies his trade the best way he knows how, and does it well, but his way of doing it exposes him to decisions like the Soose thing. After all, if he doesn't beat his man like a champion, you can excuse the other guy's admirers for arguing that he didn't beat him at all.

Then there is always the distinct possibility that Soose won the fight as recorded. The experts are sometimes wrong. Oh, yes, they are, Marmaduke. Put away that straightjacket. I know what I'm doing.

In justice to those experts, though, I would like to assure the voice of The Scranton Tribune that ther is nothing sinister about this. The boys don't do it on purpose. They call 'em as they see 'em. The Tribune admits that some called it one way, some another. That will happen in every close fight.

You have not been deceived by fight reports coming out of New York. Usually the boys are right. Usually they call a bum a bum. The trouble is that Mr. Jacobs and other promoters produce bums so fast that it is hard to keep track of them.

Mr. Overlin is not a bum. But his best friends wouldn't call him a great fighter, and his best friends never have.

Annual W. Md. Net Tourney To Open At Mountain Lake

Play Starts Next Monday with Select Field of Entries

OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 8—With several new clubs announcing entries, and with at least four states represented, the twenty-first annual Western Maryland championship will get under way next Monday morning, August 12, on the tournament courts at Mountain Lake Park. The meet is sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Entries are being received daily from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and just yesterday Mrs. W. N. Skyles, in charge of entries, received notification that an entire club from Fairmont, W. Va., was entering the tournament. Baltimore is also planning to be well represented with a large group, as Frank Roberts, secretary of the Middle Atlantic League, has already assured tournament officials that he is bringing a promising group of individuals in addition to those who were here last year.

Joy Hartman, Pittsburgh; and Price Colvin, Baltimore, winners last year in the women's and men's singles, evnts, will return to defend their titles. Miss Hartman has won twice and needs only one more win to get permanent possession of the women's trophy. The men's cup has been in competition sice 1929. Congressman Jennings Randolph, who participated in the first tournament, will be here to compete and will also probably present trophies to winners and runners-up as he has done for the past several years.

Cups and other suitable prizes will be awarded. There will be competition in men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and in mixed doubles. Finals in singles events will be held on Saturday, August 17. Season tickets are now available from members of the Women's Civic Club of Mountain Lake Park, who sponsor the tournament.

Social events during the week will include a reception on Monday evening at the club house, with another dance at the Mountain Lake Hotel on Wednesday, August 14, with a well known orchestra furnishing music. Season tickets to the tennis matches also admit one to the social functions.

Al Davis Reinstated By N. Y. Ring Board

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Al Davis, slugging Brooklyn welterweight, was reinstated by the State Athletic Commission after several month's suspension due to his failure to go through with a scheduled fight against Tony Martellano in Madison Square Garden.

Davis had compiled a sensational record before Lou Ambers, then lightweight champion, whipped him last winter. He will start his projected comeback against Johnny Rinaldi here next week.

Lucky Teter's Hell Drivers To Perform at Fairgo Monday

Brand new automobile and motorcycle stunts which Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers recently worked out for the movies will be attempted here Monday afternoon when the automobile test pilots open the Cumberland Fair. The first of the 28 high-speed thrillers will start at 2:30 p. m. and the program will last two hours.

The Rocket-car leap, said to be the most sensational thriller ever attempted by Teter in his seven years of stunting, will be attempted here just as it was negotiated by Lucky during filming of Grantland Rice's latest Sportlight movie. This is the stunt in which Lucky races a stock sedan up a steep incline rampway at a mile-minute, plunges 15 to 20 feet high in the air to jump over his big transport truck, then crashes the car on the other side at the end of the 100-foot leap. Lucky suffered a fracture of the chest in this stunt at Atlanta, Ga., recently, but he has recovered and said he would definitely attempt the thriller here Monday.

Motorcycles also have "taken to the air" in the new Hell Driver show. In the Aerial Criss-cross, Harry Woolman will plunge his motorcycle off a steep incline and plunge through open space as Daring Daniels, veteran Hell Driver, swerves his motorcycle beneath Woolman's spinning wheels. In the Suicide Leap, Woolman will plunge a motorcycle off a steep incline, race through a burning hoop in mid-air, and attempt to land on a narrow receiving rampway while blinded by the flames and debris.

The Cyclone Driving will send three Hell Drivers up and down steep inclines in stock sedans a moment before they criss-cross in front of each other at a mile a minute. In the Hurricane Driving, Lucky Teter will send an automobile up on two wheels and to display his masterful driving skill will attempt to man-handle the car to bring it back on all four wheels again.

One of the favorite stunts of past years which the public demands that Lucky and the Hell Drivers repeat this year is the head-on collision between two automobiles at an impact of 80 miles per hour. The drivers will attempt to remain inside the cars throughout the perilous wreck.

Joe Burk Quits Singles Sculls Championships

Steps Aside To Give Other Fellows Chance at Titles

BRIDGEBORO, N. J., Aug. 8 (AP)—Handsome Joe Burk stepped down voluntarily today from the pedestal he has occupied for nearly three years as world amateur rowing champion.

"There is nothing to look forward to unless the international situation brightens unexpectedly," the red-headed fruit farmer declared.

Besides, he wants to give the "other fellows" a chance at the Diamond sculls, Canadian single sculls, and Gold Challenge Cup titles he holds.

"I think it is a good thing for me and for the rowing game that I quit now," the former University of Pennsylvania sculler said at the farm where he now is devoting most of this time to attempts to develop champion apples and peaches.

"Having one man at the top for so long discourages other fellows from going into the sport or following it seriously after going in."

Burk captured his third Canadian single sculls championship at St. Catherines, Ont., two weeks ago after scoring his fourth consecutive victory in the national championships a week before at Red Bank, N. J. He won the Diamond sculls in the English Henley in 1938 and 1939.

In his possession is the $5,000 Philadelphia gold challenge cup denoting the world's amateur singles title.

For the present, Burk intends to continue sculling up and down Rancocas Creek which flows through the family farm. But that's "just for a sort of tapering off exercise."

He said there was little likelihood he would turn professional. The only available competition in that field is Bob Pearce, a Canadian, who, Burke said, is not in position to accept a challenge because of the war.

Old Huppy Makes History Repeat at Fairgo

Veteran Comes Through To Take Last Race on Card

Goes Through Same Antics as Before Winning Final of 1939

Dohoev Sets Track Record in Seventh--Jockey Scocca Hurt

You cannot tell those fans who held true to an old love and bet on Huppy in the last race of yesterday's card at Fairgo that "history doesn't repeat" with some little differentials.

In the last race last year old Huppy, the nine year old chestnut gelding by Donnacona-Blink, trained by J. C. Davis and owned by S. C. Bailey went to the post as just another also ran to be. He had disappointed in two earlier starts at the 1938 meet. But Bailey and Davis had faith in Huppy. He paraded postward for a final fling at his favorite course. And on the way there as the band struck up, "Maryland My Maryland" old Huppy stopped dead, then cantered a few steps and stopped dead again.

Outrider Happy Gordon had to come back and lead Huppy to the starting stalls. Huppy put on his same act, enroute to the post yesterday, and everything went the same as last year, except the band wasn't playing, probably because as yet there's no band at Fairgo.

And yesterday as a year ago Huppy came through and won over a field in which he was held at 7 to 1. W. Kirk rated the veteran off the sizzling pace set by Tee Off the favorite, then made his move in the turn into the backstretch. Huppy had what it took as he overhauled the rest of the field and went after Tee Off. He caught him on the stretch turn and moved along in a thrilling finish to take the top honors. Tee Off came again but Huppy had what was needed and staved off the favorite as Caffeine, a long-price in the mutuels, moved up with a rush in Huppy's wake and took third.

Huppy paid $16.90, $5.50 and $4.00; Tee Off returned $3.10 and $2.60 and Caffeine paid $9.60.

Channing Scores

Another favorite of Cumberland fans crashed the winner's circle as most of the 8,000 fans on hand hoped even if all didn't bet on Channing, owned by Mrs. C. E. Wilson of Hagerstown and trained by her husband. Channing ran a well-rated race from the start under Jockey J. Hernandez who went to the top in the winning jockey point score with two winners, a second and two thirds yesterday. The Single Foot gelding broke in front and set all the pace to win driving by three lengths with Chaltaur taking the place from Congo Prince. Channing paid $9.40, $3.90 and $3.20.

The fifth and feature Monarch Handicap for three year olds and up at six and one-half furlongs was won by Double Back, ridden by A. Martinez with the second choice. Walter Light, second, and the third choice in the close betting, Gay Prank, third. The mutuel equivalents were $2.70, for $1 on Double Back, $2.90 for $1.00 on Walter Light and $3.00 for $1 on Gay Frank, indicating the close wagering of the fans in the one,two, three finishers.

Double Back paid $7.40, $4.40 and $2.10; Walter Light $4.00 and $2.90 and Gay Frank $3.00.

Dohoev Sets Record

A new track record was set when Dohoev took the mile and one-quarter seventh from Blox the heavily played favorite. The M. B. Goss gray mare got a capable ride from Sammy Palumbo who rated her off the pace set by Blox then weaved through the field in the back stretch and came on to win by three lengths going away. She ran the distance in 1:32 flat clipping two-fifths seconds off the old mark set by Bosopi. Blox held on for second with Stop Light third.

The winner paid $12.90, $4.80 and $3.90; Blox returned $3.10 and $2.70 and Stop Light's backers for $5.70 for show.

Favorites Score in Double

Rippling On with a great stretch drive accounted for the five furlong first. After being held in the stall at the start, the Omar Khayyam filly followed the fast pace of Distant Star and Quest D'Or then came in on the inside of the stretch turn and won by a half-length in a fast drive to the wire. Quest D'Or held on for third. D. Scocca was up on the winner which paid off at $3.40, $2.70 and $2.50. Distant Star returned $3.30 and $2.90 and Quest D'Or paid $4.50. The time was :56.1 for the distance.

Another stretch runner came through to take the second when Anya under a capable ride by E. Churchill moved up on the stretch turn and took command moving to a length lead at the finish with Lady Buck barely holding on for the place as Veritas moved up and was closing fast on the tiring Lady Buck. Anya paid $6.40, $3.30 and $2.50. Lady Buck returned $3.80 and $3.00 and Veritas $3.10.

The daily double of Rippling On and Anya returned $12.00.

A couple of spills marked the steeplechase sponsored by F. Brooke Whiting and won by Edgemont, second choice in the betting. The early pace was set by Sirford which fell at the seventh jump, throwing Cruz who lay prone as the rest of the field passed over him, with Edgemont taking the lead at this point. Walli fell after the twelfth when he hit against the pylon. N. Brooks aboard the odds-on favorite Judge's Bid rated the gelding off the early pace then did not have what it took to catch the flying Edgemont which won by about three lengths. Gnomie was third.

Edgemont paid $11.40, $3.60 and $2.80. Judges Bid paid $2.80 and $2.50 and Gnomie paid $2.70.

Tennis which ran in the rear then finished sixth was ridden by its owner Louis Hanckel III.

Royal Dot coupled with Lady Solace as the Christmas-George entry raced to a length victory in the fourth, the Scotch Broom filly going to the front at the start and having enough in reserve to stave off the stretch drive of Riotous, the favorite. The winner paid $10.00, $3.70 and $3.00 while Riotous paid $3.00 and $2.60. Barraca was third to pay $5.10. The time was 1:22.

Jockey D. Scocca on Albert D. was thrown at the first turn after the start and was removed to the Allegany Hospital after it was discovered his right arm was broken below the elbow. Scocca fell and rolled over several times. He got up and walked to the side of the track before again falling to the ground. He was taken from the track in an automobile which beat the ambulance to the scene.

Mrs. Ellen Horst sold Snobbish Lady to A. A. Daly who turned it over to Kelly Childress to train.

Joe's Aces of Coney Lengthen Win Streak

LONACONING, Aug. 8—Joe's Aces of Lonaconing took two softball games from the Pekin Indians here this week to extend their winning streak to 12 battles. The scores were 5-1 and 2-1.

Woods pitched two-hit ball in the opener while Lemons allowed only two blows in the nightcap. Included in the Aces' string of victories are wins over the three top Keyser clubs and Rockwood, Pa. For games with the Aces, write Charles Cook, Lonaconing, or phone Lonaconing 86-W.

Hudson's Showing With Washington Boost for Rookies

Florida Class D. Hurler Going Good Against Major Clubbers

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Sid Hudson has pitched another one-hitter for the Washington Senators, and the boys in the Class D leagues are taking another hitch in their plus-fours, smoothing back their ears, and getting big league haircuts. You never can tell who might be next.

Sid Hudson is exhibit A in the theory that you can ignore your a-b-c's as long as you do all right in D. He went from Class D to the majors without a stop for refueling, and Bucky Harris is quite enthused about it.

When we first saw Bucky down South this spring he was trying to learn Spanish with one hand to deal with his Cuban rookies, and singing the praises of Sid Hudson with the other, which is quite a trick, at that.

Had to Sing Praises

Bucky had little alternative than to sing Hudson's praises, as Clark Griffith had paid $7,500 for the lanky lad who had finished 28 of 28 games for Sanford of the Florida league, winning 24, and for $7,500 Griffith would expect Bucky not only to sing praises, but be a one-man quartet.

Hudson has made good with a wallop, and if that isn't enough encouragement for the Class D boys they might consider another, now pitching for Detroit, who just two years ago was in Class D ball.

His name is John Gorsica, and his history is even more astonishing than Hudson's in that up to about three years ago he was a knobby-kneed first baseman with no bad habits excepta weakness for a low curve outside.

Beckley, W. Va., which was the jumping off place for a goodly number of the Cincinnati Reds, also provided the springboard for Gorsica, who journeyed from the sandlots of his native Bayonne, N. J., to Charleston, W. Va., in 1937 with a first-baseman's glove in his hip pocket and hope in his eyes.

Came From Beckley

The Mountain State League had just been organized, and Beckley had a working agreement with Detroit, which also was doing business with Charleston.

Charleston decided Gorsica wasn't ready for its Class C ball, and when Jack Zellers of Detroit notified owner Colonel J. Lewis Bumgardner and Manager Eli Harris of Beckley that the sheep were about to be separated from the goats at Charleston and advised them to "come on down and get your goats," big John Gorsica was in the chin-whisker class.

Gorsica didn't do so badly, hitting .299 for Beckley in 1937, but Harris saw that the curve ball weakness would prevent the lad from going very far. He also saw that Gorsica whipped the ball around the infield with dazzling speed, and Harris had an idea. This kid could be a pitcher.

Arrangements were made to send Gorsica to Beaumont's training camp for the spring of 1938—as a pitcher. He might have stuck around there, but Harris had insisted that his protege be returned, so he came back to pitch for Beckley in 1938.

Record Not so Hot

Last year he was with Beaumont, and although his won and lost record—nine wins against 17 defeats—wasn't so hot, the Tigers thought enough of his potentialities to bring him up, and right now he's doing quite all right, thanks.

The cases of Hudson and Gorsica offer encouragement to many a lean-shanked youngster toiling on baseball's kerosene circuits for their sixty bucks a month, with the majors apparently a distant mirage. It doesn't happen often, but when it does—wow!

Padlock Pete Goes Off His Feet to Jumps

Dear S. S.:

Something always happens. That "Tee Off" yesterday had the last race in his pocket and then flip - flopped into the second hole.

You can have the flats today. I'll take the jumps. Pal of mine from Baltimore, by the name of Gibby Gibson, says War Port in the jumping third is just like having money in the bank—whatever that means.

Here's hoping he don't get his hurdles mixed up and jump into the Potomac!

Yours,

PPPPP

Saddle Strap Sam

Dear P. P.:

I see where you went to the jumps for today and figure you like the idea a brewery is sponsoring that one.

Three seconds yesterday left me "flat" anyhow, until Channing and Huppy picked me up.

Just to show you I'm no piker I'm going to Disraeli in the seventh. They tell me a guy of the same name once saved the Bank of England. . . . I'll let you know how it feels to have money in the bank and not the bank of the Potomac, which you're worried about with your War Port.

S. S. S.

HORSES TO WATCH

WAHCOO: Been breaking nicely from stall gate, since refusing to leave August 7; therefore grab this one next out.

WORTHOWNING: Forget that last effort. This can will show to better next out, especially if the racing strip is fast.

MARIYAH: Pitched too high recently. Belongs with those $600 top and bottom platers, where she will show her true ability.

GOLD D'OR: Looks like a certain winner when the distance is stretched beyond six and one-half furlongs.

LEICESTESHIRE: Appeared to need that last race. Will make a cheap field of jumpers sorry whenever he catches one in the near future.

CRIMSON LANCER: Been raced into condition. Going to be hard to whip from now on, that is, if sent over a distance of ground.

VEEPEE: Bore out badly at turns in debut. Now that this one has had a try at the course, you can look for steady improvement rest of meeting.

STAR ON: Tired as if short in recent jumping race. Is bound to improve if kept among same kind.

KITTIAWAKE: Looks and acts well. Appears ready for brackets.

PANDORAMINT: Kept in deep footing throughout last Wednesday's race. Will beat same kind if track comes up fast.

CLYMENE: Ran fine race last start. Should be a money factor from now on.

SCHLEY AL: Consistent trick, who is always worth figuring in the money.

Dodgers Continue Jinx for Giants

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers maintained their mastery over the Giants today with a 6 to 3 victory on Dolph Camilli's 12th home run with two on and two out in the 12th inning.

It was the ninth triumph in 12 games for the Dodgers against the Giants and continued their record of not having lost a game in the Polo Grounds this year.

Two of Brooklyn's other runs also came on a homer, a blast by Peewee Reese with one on to tie the score in the seventh inning, while Nick Witek accounted for two of New York's runs with a four-master in the second.

CCC Caddies Defeat Hagerstown Golfers

Cumberland Country Club caddies easily defeated Fountain Head Country Club golf bag loters of Hagerstown here Wednesday, winning three of five foursomes and the lone twosome for a total of 13 points to the visitors' five.

Gerald Nye of Hagerstown and Gerald Barb of Cumberland had low gross 80's. It was announced that qualifying rounds for the annual CCC caddies' tournament will start next Monday. Forty or more boys are expected to compete. The summary:

Gerald Nye and George Barr, Hagerstown, defeated Gerald Barb and Jack Beck, 2½ and ½.

Jack Carnell and Ralph Michaels, CCC, and L. Lushbaugh and R. Smith, tied, 1½ and 1½.

Orville Clark and Ken Teeter, CCC, defeated G. Snyder and W. Lewis, 2½ and ½.

D. Bennett and C. Barnes, CCC, defeated G. Heller and S. Shaffer, 3 and 0.

Earl Willison, CCC, defeated Frank Ward, 3 and 0.

STABLED AT FAIRGO

Black Brigade, the six year old son of the high priced Broadway Jones out of Shirley Louise, is stabled at the Cumberland Fair Grounds with the string of J. O. Hay. Jockey Stavella is shown with the Hay hay-burner which was shipped here from Hambleton, Ohio, along with Lady Peg, Art Cooper, Westy Gal, Just Macy and Leo S. Hay looks for Black Brigade to score over the Fairgo oval, and race fans can keep an eye peeled on the other entries from this string which enjoyed a successful stand at Wheeling and in Ohio.

FAIRGO RACE NOTES

Sammy Palumbo, who was taken ill with cramps, and who cancelled his last two mounts Wednesday, resumed riding yesterday—(Aug. 8)

Willie Kelly with four winners, one second and a fourth; a total of 25 points, led during the first two days for the gold watch offered to the leading winning rider during the Cumberland Fair Association's 10-day meeting. However, Buddy Root was right on Kelly's heels with 24 points, as a result of one winner, three seconds, two third and a fourth.

Ned Gaines and Dan Chamblin went to the front in the race for the trainer award when they each saddled a pair of winners, the first two days.

Six favorites scored in the first sixteen races run. However the average should ascend next week, at which time horse players will have a much better line on the thoroughbreds.

Four No. 7 horses won purses the first two days in sprint races, with one 7-7 daily double clicking.

George Watson, who is riding here, weighed 140 last spring at Pimlico. Watson can now do 112 pounds. He is considered one of the best money riders on the grounds.

P. H. Faulconer's speedy Roman Boy has been training briskly over this strip. Stands a royal chance of winning a five eighths sprint before many days elapse.

President Al J. Boyle is having shed row torn down at Charles Town, W. Va. He is also having a steeplechase course erected in the Charles Town infield.

F. A. Stone, placing judge at Charles Town, motors over daily. Will send several horses to the Marlboro meeting, which opens August 21.

Jockeys planning on riding at Marlboro are mighty pleased over General Manager Joe Farrell's decision to eliminate the stationary stalls at the Southern Maryland track, and use the Bahr gate. This means all fields will leave straight and thus eliminate the crowding which occured when the stationary stalls, located on the outside of the racing strip, were used.

Tomorrow (Aug. 10) features will be the Algonquin Hotel Handicap, mile and one sixteenth; and the Duvall Steeplechase Handicap, two miles. Race Secretary Eddie Brennan has attracted capacity fields for both events.

Talbot County Yacht Clubs Stage Regatta

OXFORD, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Talbot County's oldest and its youngest yacht clubs will stage three-day regattas starting tomorrow on the Tred Avon river.

Their races will be run independently of each other, with two committee boats and over two courses.

One is the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club, holding its forty-eighth annual sailing races, the other the Tred Avon Yacht Club, the county's youngest boating unit.

Entry lists this year are larger than normal, committees reported, and a record crowd is expected for the events.

Red Sox Jump on Yanks To Win 6-5

BOSTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Red Sox crowded seven of their 13 hits into the last two innings today to overtake the New York Yankees and nail down their fourth victory of the five-game series, 6 to 5.

Johnny Murphy, relief pitcher converted into a starter today by the desperate Joe McCarthy, held the slugging Sox to two runs in the first seven innings—both coming on Jimmie Foxx' 26th homer in the sixth.

But in the eighth Boston pounced on Murphy and Bump Hadley for two runs off three singles and a double and in the ninth added two more on a walk and three singles, the payoff blow being a single by Manager Joe Cronin off Lefty Gomez.

Clever Fields in Eight Events on Fourth Day Card

P. J. Arendes Purse and Queen City Brewery 'Chase Features

Maidens Meet in Fourth Event of Card--Crowd Expected

There promises to be a banner betting crowd at the Cumberland racing strip this afternoon what with pay days at hand, and Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan has listed some of the best half-milers about this summer for the fourth day's race card of the local meet.

The program is topped by the Philip J. Arendes Purse of five furlongs the fifth event of the day. Ten are entered with Bud's Light and Mariyah on the also eligible list. The event may bring forth a long-prize winner with the eight eligibles offering little or no wide preference for any one or two horses.

Red Wings is figured to cop this event with Bernhart up. Accidental is taken to place with Navigation, which disappointed Wednesday, third.

The Queen City Brewing Company sponsors the Steeplechase at about two miles with a field of eight eligibles, all new with the exception of War Port which finished second Tuesday to Tam O'Shanter. War Port is the handicapper's choice with Flashing Steel second and Star On third.

The opening five furlong dash for two year olds brings out Asunder, which will probably be an odds-on choice but will have plenty of opposition from Morolee, Oddree and Satin Marie. Little is known of the rest of the band but the selector goes down into the eligibles and picks Mr. Jim to win if he breaks in. Holland will be aboard. Morolee is selected second with Asunder getting the call for third money.

Another fast field of sprinters goes postward in the second with the popular Small Devil, Bank Note, Happy Miracle and Depinard known to local race followers. There are six on the also eligible list and scratches in the top eight can muddle up the overnight selections.

Dark Ace, coupled with Princess Lady, is given the nod in the second but probably will not get in. Small Devil gets the call of the first eight with Bank Note figured to chase them in.

The fourth at six and one half furlongs which brings out three and four year old maidens should see Lady Doctor graduate. Poker Dice, way down on the list could be up in the contention if it gets in the race, with Camela figured a money chance.

The sixth at six and one half furlongs sees Exhort on top with Baliris second and Spout Run third. Democracy may break through to take all the money.

In the seventh Bellthorn may come through if able to get into the field with Sunny Rose second and Kei-Min third. Disraeli is capable of arguing, with Flybalk due consideration after a great stretch run on opening day.

Welsh Lad should snare the eighth if able to get in. However Kenner rates tops of the eligibles with Abbot's Lark, first among the also eligibles, picked to show.

Yesterday's attendance probably reached 8,000 and today's crowd is expected to be larger than that. With pay day in the local plants, Cumberland's well known fever for following the ponies is expected to give itself expression in the mutuels.

Yesterday the iron men clicked to the tune of $65,584 for the first six races, almost as much as was done on the full eight race card opening day.

Each day's mutual play has shown an increase over the same day last year. Tuesday the play was $69,482 as compared with $62,851 opening day last year, and Wednesday's play was $80,203 compared with $69,901 for the second day of the 1939 card.

Scratched—Rhythmical, Maho, Carls Choice.
Overweight—Marhran, two and a half; Caffeine, three; Sealoch, four.
Winner entered to be claimed for $500.

Huppy kept right with pace for mile, moved up gamely under urging and came away at end. Tee Off kept on rail throughout, was in trouble several times, tired after getting to lead in stretch. Caffeine hard urged from start, had no excuses. Sealoch closed well from slow beginning. Western Run had fine early speed, but ran out at turns and tired. Others showed nothing.

Cleveland Bounds Into Tie for Lead Then Bounces Out

Indians Win from St. Louis 7 to 4 then Lose 2 to 1

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians bounced into co-leadership of the American League—and right out again — today as they split a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns to remain a half game behind Detroit.

The pace-setting Tigers were idle and the Indians caught them by snapping through a 7 to 4 victory over the Brownies in the opener, but kicked away the chance to move out in front by dropping the night-cap, 2 to 1.

The goat of the defeat was Cleveland's pitcher, Johnny Humphries, who was charged with the loss despite the fact he set the Browns down with a mere three hits.

The run that eventually spelled victory for the Browns came in the hitless sixth inning on Don Heffner's long fly to left field with the bases loaded.

Credit for the win went to Elden Auker, his ninth of the season, against 8 defeats.

Bobby Feller scored his nineteenth victory of the year in the first game. He yielded ten hits, but coasted to an easy triumph after his comrades gave him a healthy early lead.

Ken Keltner hit a homer in the sixth inning to give Cleveland a 6-0 lead and Rip Radcliff hit a four-bagger in the home half of the same inning for the Browns' first run.

Phillies Phlop Again As Fans Chant Hymn, "We Want a Hit"

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8 (AP)—To the crowd's chant of "we want a hit," the Phillies fumbled around again today and bowed to the Boston Bees for the fourth consecutive time. The score was 6-2.

With Jim Tobin portioning them out one at a time for the most part, the Phillies got seven hits, only two for extra bases.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Jimmy Foxx left his first basing job with the Red Sox the other day to plant his chunky frame behind home plate and do a job of catching.

That item seems casual enough until it is considered that Foxx, who hasn't done any catching to speak of for several years, and at an age—32—when the average citizen begins to think of ways to tie his shoe without bending over too far, was taking over the meanest, toughest, most unsung job in baseball. It makes you tired just to think about it.

If he had been catching steadily it would have been tough enough, but that unaccustomed squatting, stooping and squinting must have left his legs in knots and his hands bundles of fire.

The more the catcher's job is considered the more you marvel at Gabby Hartnett, the old man river of the Chicago Cubs. He's going on 40 now and his bulky shoulders are bowed under managerial cares, but he still gets out there now and then to take them off the bats.

For nearly a score of years now—he started with Worcester in 1921 and moved to Chicago the next year—Gabby has been watching them come and go while squatting on his shanks and sandwiched between batter and umpire. The toughest job of all, yet with the exception of a couple of players in less-strenuous jobs, he has outlasted them all.

With notable exceptions, such as Lombardi, Danning, Cochrane, catchers are notoriously poor hitters, but Hartnett has a lifetime average a shade under .300. In 1937 he hit .354 after booming along close to .400 until well in August.

At first thought it might be expected that catchers would be great hitters. They see enough pitches, know what to expect of the balls.

But at the plate they are seeing the ball from a different angle, and that isn't the half of it.

—o—

Inning after inning they squat down there, sheathed in armor which on sultry days must generate an unbearable heat. They handle every pitch, peering through a bird cage at the bullets fired at them, never knowing when the next pitch might mean a broken thumb or a split hand.

Up and down, up and down they bob ceaselessly, with occasional interludes provided by galloping out like stuffed turkeys to back up the bases or chase a high foul which may seem like a shimmering white blob against a blue background.

When the side is out they come to the dugout dog-tired. It's their turn to bat. They shed their harness and trude to the plate. It's a wonder they can lift a bat, much less swing one.

—o—

The fans hand all the glory to the pitchers, but it's probably slightly more than an accident that championship teams have catchers of more than average ability—Lombardi, Dickey, Cochrane, Hartnett himself, just to name a few.

In addition to their physical trials, they must call the pitches, play nursemaid to the hurler when he begins to get the heebie-jeebies, watch the bases.

It's a tough, unsung job, and when the heroes are listed the name of Gabby Hartnett will be right up there at the top. Twenty years up there with the best, and still going, although maybe not quite as strong. The marvel of it is that he's able to go at all.

Parker Is Bumped Out of Eastern Grass Court Meet

Hank Prussoff Stages Another Step in Comeback

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP) — Frankie Parker, of Pasadena, Calif., a finalist in the eastern grass court championships last year, was bumped out of the tournament in the quarter-final round today by Hank Prusoff, Seattle, giant, whose tennis career seemed finished five years ago after he broke his back in an elevator accident.

Prusoff had hardly completed his masterful 6-4, 6-3, conquest of the nation's second ranking player when Brayan (Bitsy) Grant, another veteran on the down grade turned in another upset by eliminating Joe Hunt of Annapolis, fifth ranking player of 1939, unranked this year because of insufficient play.

The parade of surprises seemed destined to reach a dizzy peak when Frank Shields, of New York won the first set of his match against defending champion Bobby Riggs, but Riggs staged one of his characteristic rallies and downed the former internationalist 6-8, 6-4, 6-2.

Marble Drops Set

The last semi-final berth was taken by steady, unspectacular Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, who came through at 6-2, 9-7 over Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla. The semi-final pairings put McNeill against Grant tomorrow and Prussoff against Riggs Saturday.

A touch of minor hysteria marked the women's tournament when Alice Marble in her second match of the day, dropped her fourth set of the year to Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles and then spurted to win at 3-6, 6-0, 6-2, to lead the advance into the semi-final round.

Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, with a 6-1, 6-3, triumph over Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., and Sarah Palsrey of Reno, Nev., with a 6-3, 6-0 margin over Virginia Wolfenden, of San Francisco, occupied spots in the upper-bracket semi-final. Miss Marble's lower-bracket rival will be Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, who won at 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, from Helen Bernhard, of New York.

Reds Make Six Hits Count To Trim Cubs

Cincinnati Wins First Game since Sunday by 3 to 1

Bucky Walters Credited with 16th Victory of Season

Rhinelanders Beat French To Gain Break in Series

CINCINNATI, Aug. 8 (AP)—Southpaw Larry French allowed two hits in each of three frames today and the champion Reds made all but one count to defeat Chicago 3 to 1, gain an even break in the series and Bucky Walters his 16th triumph of the year.

It was the Reds' first decision since Sunday in Boston and their third win in nine games.

The Cubs got away to a lead—and their only scoring—in the first as Walters gave the first of his three walks to Stan Hack and the third baseman advanced on an infield out and Jim Gleeson's single.

But the Rhinelands promptly tied things up on two walks and Ernie Lombardi's single after Bill Werber had opened with a safety but died stealing.

With two away in the fifth, they garnered a run on two more singles and a walk, and in the eighth two singles sandwiching Frank McCormick's third pass and a hit batsman, produced another.

Three times the Cubs got to Walters for pairs of safeties but twice the rallies were cut down by double plays.

Play started at 2 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual, in order that the game might be over by the time funeral services were conducted (5 p. m., Cincinnati time) in Visalia, Calif., for the Reds' late second-string catcher, Willard Hershberger, who killed himself in Boston Saturday.

Umpires' Social Life Blossoming Out Fast

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—A prize-fight edges the European catch-as-catch-can off the editorial page for the first time this year, as the voice of The Scranton Tribune, of Scranton, Pa., demands to know what is wrong with boxing and why there is no justice for its favorite fighting son, William Soose.

"The average boxing fan," says The Scranton Tribune, "who long has been wondering why the game has reached such a low ebb which finds shameful stinkeroos being staged in New York, center of the boxing trust, may find a ray of explanation for the situation in the writings of the crowd of ring experts who came to this city on Wednesday for the Billy Soose-Ken Overlin bout.

"For if the boys from the big city aren't more honest in their reporting of conditions generally in the boxing business than they were in their accounts of the Soose-Overlin contest, then it's easily understandable why the boxing game has become a racket and the public is taken for a sleigh ride time after time, let it be added, to the tune of extravagant praise articles on bums who shouldn't be let inside the ropes in the first place."

Soose Has No Title

I don't know if you followed the details of the Soose-Overlin fight with much attention. Mr. Overlin, a cunning fellow formerly employed by the United States Navy, is the world's middleweight champion of Mr. Michael Jacob's widely-famed trust. The other champion is Anthony Zale, who got his title in Seattle, where a Jacobs championship is not even good on street cars.

Mr. Soose is a good, workmanlike middleweight, the pride of Scranton. He has no title whatever. In order to insure the permanence of this state of affairs, which is satisfactory to several parties, Mr. Overlin did not put his bauble on the line when he went to Scranton to fight Mr. Soose. It was over the weight. No title at stake.

I didn't see the glorious battle, but several of the "big city" writers to whom The Scranton Tribune refers were there. Soose got the decision, two votes to one. Some of the "boys," returning from Scranton, were inclined to describe it as a home-town decision, with Mr. Soose the beneficiary.

That is what makes The Scranton Tribune mad, and I do not blame The Tribune. Why take it away from Soose? If he won cleanly, as the folks in Scranton seem to think, then it is a dirty trick on him to speak of home-town decisions. If the fight was close, then Mr. Overlin failed to prove what every champion ought to prove—real superiority—and deserves no sympathy.

It is kind of hard to sympathize with Mr. Overlin, anyway. It's not as though Kenneth were a naive youth, an easy mark, a sucker for frameups. Ken is a cute man who has spent most of his professional life fighting in other fellows' home towns.

Kids His Way to Victory

He went to Scranton with no illusions—and, if he'll pardon me for saying so, very little championship equipment. Mr. Overlin is a deft slapper and a shifty target who kids his way to many a victory. He once won a kidding decision over Fred Apostoli, though Apostoli, then in his prime, was a better fighter than Overlin by three to one.

Kenneth plies his trade the best way he knows how, and does it well, but his way of doing it exposes him to decisions like the Soose thing. After all, if he doesn't beat his man like a champion, you can excuse the other guy's admirers for arguing that he didn't beat him at all.

Then there is always the distinct possibility that Soose won the fight as recorded. The experts are sometimes wrong. Oh, yes, they are, Marmaduke. Put away that straightjacket. I know what I'm doing.

In justice to those experts, though, I would like to assure the voice of The Scranton Tribune that ther is nothing sinister about this. The boys don't do it on purpose. They call 'em as they see 'em. The Tribune admits that some called it one way, some another. That will happen in every close fight.

You have not been deceived by fight reports coming out of New York. Usually the boys are right. Usually they call a bum a bum. The trouble is that Mr. Jacobs and other promoters produce bums so fast that it is hard to keep track of them.

Mr. Overlin is not a bum. But his best friends wouldn't call him a great fighter, and his best friends never have.

Annual W. Md. Net Tourney To Open At Mountain Lake

Play Starts Next Monday with Select Field of Entries

OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 8—With several new clubs announcing entries, and with at least four states represented, the twenty-first annual tennis tournament for Western Maryland championship will get under way next Monday morning, August 12, on the tournament courts at Mountain Lake Park. The meet is sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Entries are being received daily from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, and just yesterday Mrs. W. N. Skyles, in charge of entries, received notification that an entire club from Fairmont, W. Va., was entering the tournament. Baltimore is also planning to be well represented with a large group, as Frank Roberts, secretary of the Middle Atlantic League, has already assured tournament officials that he is bringing a promising group of individuals in addition to those who were here last year.

Joy Hartman, Pittsburgh; and Price Colvin, Baltimore, winners last year in the women's and men's singles, evnts, will return to defend their titles. Miss Hartman has won twice and needs only one more win to get permanent possession of the women's trophy. The men's cup has been in competition sice 1929. Congressman Jennings Randolph, who participated in the first tournament, will be here to compete and will also probably present trophies to winners and runners-up as he has done for the past several years.

Cups and other suitable prizes will be awarded. There will be competition in men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and in mixed doubles. Finals in singles events will be held on Saturday, August 17. Season tickets are now available from members of the Women's Civic Club of Mountain Lake Park, who sponsor the tournament.

Social events during the week will include a reception on Monday evening at the club house, with another dance at the Mountain Lake Hotel on Wednesday, August 14, with a well known orchestra furnishing music. Season tickets to the tennis matches also admit one to the social functions.

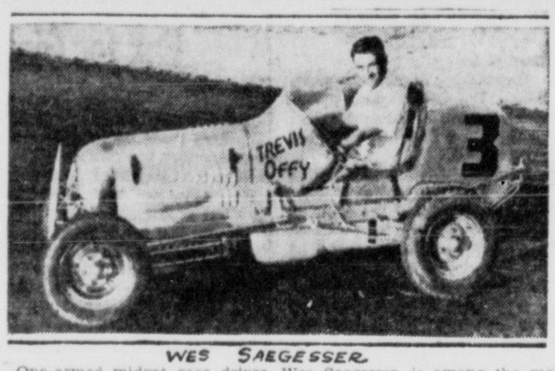

Al Davis Reinstated By N. Y. Ring Board

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Al Davis, slugging Brooklyn welterweight, was reinstated by the State Athletic Commission after several month's suspension due to his failure to go through with a scheduled fight against Tony Martellano in Madison Square Garden.

Davis had compiled a sensational record before Lou Ambers, then lightweight champion, whipped him last winter. He will start his projected comeback against Johnny Rinaldi here next week.

Lucky Teter's Hell Drivers To Perform at Fairgo Monday

Brand new automobile and motorcycle stunts which Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers recently worked out for the movies will be attempted here Monday afternoon when the automobile test pilots open the Cumberland Fair. The first of the 28 high-speed thrillers will start at 2:30 p. m. and the program will last two hours.

The Rocket-car leap, said to be the most sensational thriller ever attempted by Teter in his seven years of stunting, will be attempted here just as it was negotiated by Lucky during filming of Grantland Rice's latest Sportlight movie. This is the stunt in which Lucky races a stock sedan up a steep incline rampway at a mile-minute, plunges 15 to 20 feet high in the air to jump over his big transport truck, then crashes the car on the other side at the end of the 100-foot leap. Lucky suffered a fracture of the chest in this stunt at Atlanta, Ga., recently, but he has recovered and said he would definitely attempt the thriller here Monday.

Motorcycles also have "taken to the air" in the new Hell Driver show. In the Aerial Criss-cross, Harry Woolman will plunge his motorcycle off a steep incline and plunge through open space as Daring Daniels, veteran Hell Driver, swerves his motorcycle beneath Woolman's spinning wheels. In the Suicide Leap, Woolman will plunge a motorcycle off a steep incline, race through a burning hoop in mid-air, and attempt to land on a narrow receiving rampway while blinded by the flames and debris.

The Cyclone Driving will send three Hell Drivers up and down steep inclines in stock sedans a moment before they criss-cross in front of each other at a mile a minute. In the Hurricane Driving, Lucky Teter will send an automobile up on two wheels and to display his masterful driving skill will attempt to man-handle the car to bring it back on all four wheels again.

One of the favorite stunts of past years which the public demands that Lucky and the Hell Drivers repeat this year is the head-on collision between two automobiles at an impact of 80 miles per hour. The drivers will attempt to remain inside the cars throughout the perilous wreck.

Joe Burk Quits Singles Sculls Championships

Steps Aside To Give Other Fellows Chance at Titles

BRIDGEBORO, N. J., Aug. 8 (AP)—Handsome Joe Burk stepped down voluntarily today from the pedestal he has occupied for nearly three years as world amateur rowing champion.

"There is nothing to look forward to unless the international situation brightens unexpectedly," the red-headed fruit farmer declared.

Besides, he wants to give the "other fellows" a chance at the Diamond sculls, Canadian single sculls, and Gold Challenge Cup titles he holds.

"I think it is a good thing for me and for the rowing game that I quit now," the former University of Pennsylvania sculler said at the farm where he now is devoting most of this time to attempts to develop champion apples and peaches.

"Having one man at the top for so long discourages other fellows from going into the sport or following it seriously after going in."

Burk captured his third Canadian single sculls championship at St. Catherines, Ont., two weeks ago after scoring his fourth consecutive victory in the national championships a week before at Red Bank, N. J. He won the Diamond sculls in the English Henley in 1938 and 1939.

In his possession is the $5,000 Philadelphia gold challenge cup denoting the world's amateur singles title.

For the present, Burk intends to continue sculling up and down Rancocas Creek which flows through the family farm. But that's "just for a sort of tapering off exercise."

He said there was little likelihood he would turn professional. The only available competition in that field is Bob Pearce, a Canadian, who, Burke said, is not in position to accept a challenge because of the war.

Maidens Meet in Fourth Event of Card--Crowd Expected

There promises to be a banner betting crowd at the Cumberland racing strip this afternoon what with pay days at hand, and Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan has listed some of the best half-milers about this summer for the fourth day's race card of the local meet.

The program is topped by the Philip J. Arendes Purse of five furlongs the fifth event of the day. Ten are entered with Bud's Light and Mariyah on the also eligible list. The event may bring forth a long-prize winner with the eight eligibles offering little or no wide preference for any one or two horses.

Red Wings is figured to cop this event with Bernhart up. Accidental is taken to place with Navigation, which disappointed Wednesday, third.

The Queen City Brewing Company sponsors the Steeplechase at about two miles with a field of eight eligibles, all new with the exception of War Port which finished second Tuesday to Tam O'Shanter. War Port is the handicapper's choice with Flashing Steel second and Star On third.

The opening five furlong dash for two year olds brings out Asunder, which will probably be an odds-on choice but will have plenty of opposition from Morolee, Oddree and Satin Marie. Little is known of the rest of the band but the selector goes down into the eligibles and picks Mr. Jim to win if he breaks in. Holland will be aboard. Morolee is selected second with Asunder getting the call for third money.

Another fast field of sprinters goes postward in the second with the popular Small Devil, Bank Note, Happy Miracle and Depinard known to local race followers. There are six on the also eligible list and scratches in the top eight can muddle up the overnight selections.

Dark Ace, coupled with Princess Lady, is given the nod in the second but probably will not get in. Small Devil gets the call of the first eight with Bank Note figured to chase them in.

The fourth at six and one half furlongs which brings out three and four year old maidens should see Lady Doctor graduate. Poker Dice, way down on the list could be up in the contention if it gets in the race, with Camela figured a money chance.

The sixth at six and one half furlongs sees Exhort on top with Bahris second and Spout Run third. Democracy may break through to take all the money.

In the seventh Bellthorn may come through if able to get into the field with Sunny Rose second and Kei-Min third. Disraeli is capable of arguing with Flybalk due consideration after a great stretch run on opening day.

Welsh Lad should snare the eighth if able to get in. However Kenner rates tops of the eligibles with Abbot's Lark, first among the also eligibles, picked to show.

Yesterday's attendance probably reached 8,000 and today's crowd is expected to be larger than that. With pay day in the local plants, Cumberland's well known fever for following the ponies is expected to give itself expression in the mutuels.

Yesterday the iron men clicked to the tune of $65,584 for the first six races, almost as much as was done on the full eight race card opening day.

Each day's mutual play has shown an increase over the same day last year. Tuesday the play was $69,482 as compared with $62,851 opening day last year, and Wednesday's play was $80,203 compared with $69,901 for the second day of the 1939 card.

Caffeine hard urged from start, had no excuses. Sealoch closed well from slow beginning. Western Run had fine early speed, but ran out at turns and tired. Others showed nothing.

Cleveland Bounds Into Tie for Lead Then Bounces Out

Indians Win from St. Louis 7 to 4 then Lose 2 to 1

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians bounced into co-leadership of the American League—and right out again — today as they split a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns to remain a half game behind Detroit.

The pace-setting Tigers were idle and the Indians caught them by snapping through a 7 to 4 victory over the Brownies in the opener, but kicked away the chance to move out in front by dropping the night-cap, 2 to 1.

The goat of the defeat was Cleveland's pitcher, Johnny Humphries, who was charged with the loss despite the fact he set the Browns down with a mere three hits.

The run that eventually spelled victory for the Browns came in the hitless sixth inning on Don Heffner's long fly to left field with the bases loaded.

Credit for the win went to Elden Auker, his ninth of the season, against 8 defeats.

Bobby Feller scored his nineteenth victory of the year in the first game. He yielded ten hits, but coasted to an easy triumph after his comrades gave him a healthy early lead.

Ken Keltner hit a homer in the sixth inning to give Cleveland a 6-0 lead and Rip Radcliff hit a four-bagger in the home half of the same inning for the Browns' first run.

Phillies Phlop Again As Fans Chant Hymn, "We Want a Hit"

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8 (AP)—To the crowd's chant of "we want a hit," the Phillies fumbled around again today and bowed to the Boston Bees for the fourth consecutive time. The score was 6-2.

With Jim Tobin portioning them out one at a time for the most part, the Phillies got seven hits, only two for extra bases.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP)—Jimmy Foxx left his first basing job with the Red Sox the other day to plant his chunky frame behind home plate and do a job of catching.

That item seems casual enough until it is considered that Foxx, who hasn't done any catching to speak of for several years, and at an age—32—when the average citizen begins to think of ways to tie his shoe without bending over too far, was taking over the meanest, toughest, most unsung job in baseball. It makes you tired just to think about it.

If he had been catching steadily it would have been tough enough, but that unaccustomed squatting, stooping and squinting must have left his legs in knots and his hands bundles of fire.

The more the catcher's job is considered the more you marvel at Gabby Hartnett, the old man river of the Chicago Cubs. He's going on 40 now and his bulky shoulders are bowed under managerial cares, but he still gets out there now and then to take them off the bats.

For nearly a score of years now—he started with Worcester in 1921 and moved to Chicago the next year—Gabby has been watching them come and go while squatting on his shanks and sandwiched between batter and umpire. The toughest job of all, yet with the exception of a couple of players in less-strenuous jobs, he has outlasted them all.

With notable exceptions, such as Lombardi, Danning, Cochrane, catchers are notoriously poor hitters, but Hartnett has a lifetime average a shade under .300. In 1937 he hit .354 after booming along close to .400 until well in August.

At first thought it might be expected that catchers would be great hitters. They see enough pitches, know what to expect of the balls.

But at the plate they are seeing the ball from a different angle, and that isn't the half of it.

—o—

Inning after inning they squat down there, sheathed in armor which on sultry days must generate an unbearable heat. They handle every pitch, peering through a bird cage at the bullets fired at them, never knowing when the next pitch might mean a broken thumb or a split hand.

Up and down, up and down they bob ceaselessly, with occasional intreludes provided by galloping out like stuffed turkeys to back up the bases or chase a high foul which may seem like a shimmering white blob against a blue background.

When the side is out they come to the dugout dog-tired. It's their turn to bat. They shed their harness and trude to the plate. It's a wonder they can lift a bat, much less swing one.

—o—

The fans hand all the glory to the pitchers, but it's probably slightly more than an accident that championship teams have catchers of more than average ability—Lombardi, Dickey, Cochrane, Hartnett himself, just to name a few.

In addition to their physical trials, they must call the pitches, play nursemaid to the hurler when he begins to get the heebie-jeebies, watch the bases.

It's a tough, unsung job, and when the heroes are listed the name of Gabby Hartnett will be right up there at the top. Twenty years up there with the best, and still going, although maybe not quite as strong. The marvel of it is that he's able to go at all.

Parker Is Bumped Out of Eastern Grass Court Meet

Hank Prussoff Stages Another Step in Comeback

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP) — Frankie Parker, of Pasadena, Calif., a finalist in the eastern grass court championships last year, was bumped out of the tournament in the quarter-final round today by Hank Prusoff, Seattle, giant, whose tennis career seemed finished five years ago after he broke his back in an elevator accident.

Prusoff had hardly completed his masterful 6-4, 6-3 conquest of the nation's second ranking player when Brayan (Bitsy) Grant, another veteran on the down grade turned in another upset by eliminating Joe Hunt of Annapolis, fifth ranking player of 1939, unranked this year because of insufficient play.

The parade of surprises seemed destined to reach a dizzy peak when Frank Shields, of New York won the first set of his match against defending champion Bobby Riggs, but Riggs staged one of his characteristic rallies and downed the former internationalist 6-8, 6-4, 6-2.

Marble Drops Set

The last semi-final berth was taken by steady, unspectacular Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, who came through at 6-2, 9-7 over Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla. The semi-final pairings put McNeill against Grant tomorrow and Prussoff against Riggs Saturday.

A touch of minor hysteria marked the women's tournament when Alice Marble in her second match of the day, dropped her fourth set of the year to Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles and then spurted to win at 3-6, 6-0, 6-2, to lead the advance into the semi-final round.

Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, with a 6-1, 6-3, triumph over Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., and Sarah Palfrey of Reno, Nev., with a 6-3, 6-0 margin over Virginia Wolfenden, of San Francisco, occupied spots in the upper-bracket semi-final. Miss Marble's lower-bracket rival will be Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, who won at 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, from Helen Bernhard, of New York.

Rentch Will Coach At Martinsburg High

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP)—Kenneth Rentch was named by the Berkeley county board of education as assistant to Coach John C. Coburne at Martinsburg high school. He will be the first man to hold such a post in ten years.

NOTICE OF DIVISIONS OF ELECTION DISTRICT NO. 20, OF ALLEGANY COUNTY, MARYLAND, INTO TWO PARTS, THE SAME TO BE KNOWN AND DESIGNATED HEREAFTER AS ELECTION PRECINCT NO. 1, DISTRICT NO. 20, AND AS ELECTION PRECINCT NO. 2, DISTRICT NO. 20.

Under and by virtue of the power and authority conferred upon it in Article 33, Section 137, of the Annotated Code of Maryland, the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Allegany County, Maryland, has determined that it is expedient for the convenience of the voters to divide Election District No. 20 of Allegany County, Maryland, into two parts, the same to be known and designated hereafter as Election Precinct No. 1, District No. 20, and as Election Precinct No. 2, District No. 20, and the said Board does hereby declare that Election District No. 20 has been divided into two parts as aforesaid, and a description of the boundaries of said two parts are hereinafter stated and will hereafter be known and designated as hereinafter stated:

ELECTION PRECINCT NO. 1, DISTRICT NO. 20

BEGINNING on the top of Wills Mountain on the Pennsylvania line, it being the end of the third line of District No. 5 in Cumberland, and running thence with District No. 5, along the top of Wills Mountain;

1. Southwesterly 1.6 miles; then,
2. Westerly parallel to the Pennsylvania State Line five miles to a point 1-10 of a mile East of the road leading from Barrellsville, Maryland, to Wellersburg, Pa., then parallel to and distant 1-10 of a mile East of the said last named road.
3. Northerly 1.5 miles to the Pennsylvania State Line, then with it,
4. East 5.4 miles to the top of Wills Mountain to the place of beginning.

The polling place for this Precinct in the 1940 Elections and thereafter until further notice will be Community Hall, Ellerslie, Maryland.

ELECTION PRECINCT NO. 2, DISTRICT NO. 20

Beginning for the same at a point along the top of Wills Mountain 1.6 miles measured in a Southwesterly direction from the Pennsylvania State Line, and running thence with District No. 5, along the top of Wills Mountain,

1. Southwesterly 2 miles, then
2. West 1 mile crossing the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad bridge above the Paper Mill to the Western Maryland Railroad then up the Western Maryland Railroad
3. Westerly five miles to the top of Piney Mountain and with it,
4. Northerly ½ mile to the Mt. Savage Road at a point on the said road 1-10 of a mile East of the road from Barrellsville, Maryland, to Wellersburg, Pa., then parallel to and 1-10 of a mile East of said last named road.
5. Northwesterly to a point 1.5 miles Southerly of the Pennsylvania line thence parallel and Southerly of the Pennsylvania Line,
6. East five miles to the top of Wills Mountain, the place of beginning.

The Polling Place for this Precinct in the 1940 Elections and thereafter until further notice will be Corrigan's Store, Corrigansville, Maryland.

Opening of Civilian Pilot School Seems Certain

Training Program To Be Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce, Smith Says

Announcement is Made Following Conference Here with Aeronautical Inspector for CAA and William Rannells, Local Pilot and Instructor; Will Be Open to Young Men and Women

Establishment of a Civilian Pilot Training Program in Cumberland for young men and women from 18 to 26-years old seems almost certain H. W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, reported yesterday.

The announcement was made following a conference between Smith, E. A. Goff, Jr., aeronautical inspector for the CAA in this district, and William Rannells, Cumberland pilot-instructor.

According to tentative plans, the Cumberland chamber will be asked to sponsor the civilian training school and an application will be made to the CAA.

Goff told Smith and Rannells that he was certain the application would be passed on favorably by the commission after he checked Rannels' equipment at the local port.

Chamber in Charge

According to plans released yesterday, the chamber would be responsible for the designation of instructors and would have charge of the ground school work.

The selection of applicants will also be the responsibility of the chamber. One instructor would be needed for every 49 students and instructors selected will have to pass a rigid examination to qualify.

There will be no educational requirements for students who apply for admission in the six-weeks courses, Smith said. Each prospective student will be asked to fill out a blank which the chamber will prepare.

Physical Checkup

Prospects who appear to have no noticeable physical handicaps will deposit $6 for a physical examination. The physical checkup will be very thorough. In the event a student wins a scholarship, the $6 will be refunded later in the course.

After receiving a physician's O. K., the students will be enrolled in the ground school. The groups will consist of units of 49.

Men who meet the requirements must not be less than five feet four inches in height and weigh less than 118 pounds or over 225 pounds. Women must be at least five feet two inches tall and weigh at least 100 pounds.

The ground school work will require seventy-two hours with students attending three-hour class periods four nights a week for six weeks. Text books will be supplied free by the CAA.

Two Examinations

At the end of the six-weeks ground work period, students will be given two examinations. The first will be given on the subjects covered in the course, and will be given by the instructor who will also grade the papers.

The second examination will be given by the CAA and will be on CAA air regulations and meteorology.

Both tests will be weighed and ten scholarships will be awarded to the ten highest students. The ten students who qualify for scholarships will then be enrolled in the flight school and trained free of charge.

$325 Scholarships

The number of scholarships awarded may be increased above ten providing local groups want to sponsor them. The government will sponsor one additional scholarship for every scholarship provided by local groups or persons up to a total of ten. The value of one scholarship is $325.

No military obligations will be attached to students who take the course. However, students who successfully pass the civilian course will be allowed to take advanced work and, if they pass the second phase, will be eligible to enroll in the nation's military training schools.

Two Workers Here Are Slightly Injured

A. B. & O. boilermaker, Charles F. Moser, 56, of 619 Elm street, was treated yesterday afternoon, at Memorial hospital, for a lacerated right wrist, suffered when a piece of jaggered iron fell striking his wrist. After a clip was placed on the wound and a bandage applied he was discharged.

Dr. Frank E. Stamp Passes Pilot Test

Dr. Frank E. Stamp, of Forest Glen, LaVale, passed his private pilots test yesterday, at Mexico Farms airfield.

Two-Day-Old Twins Become Aunts

Dorothy Jean and Doris Virginia were born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shepherd, of Cresaptown.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox named their son Donald Roy. Someday, Donald Roy may possibly refer to the two twins as "Aunt Doris" and "Aunt Dorothy" although its rather doubtful.

At any rate, the two aunts and their nephew will be able to hold their birthday parties together.

Sixty Kiwanians Visit Youngsters In Sunshine Camp

Metal Flagpole Donated by William J. Edwards Is Raised

Sixty members of the Kiwanis Club motored to Sunshine Camp on Haystack mountain yesterday to pay a visit to the youngsters they are befriending these hot summer days.

Camp Leaders David Weiss, Charles A. Walton, Harold Hipsley and Ralph Roth gave reports on the development of the youngsters attending the camp, reported that the average increase in weight by the boys at the camp was five pounds. Hipsley gained thirteen pounds.

Some of the twenty-seven girls attending the present two-weeks camping period are so undernourished that it was decided to keep them in camp another two weeks.

The Kiwanis Club laid out $4,600 this year to send the children to the ten-acre camp that is well-wooded and a stream runs through it.

Harris Will Speak At Oldtown; Legion Band Will Play

The Oldtown Methodist church circuit of six churches will have an old-fashioned picnic, Saturday, at Nixon's grove on the Oldtown road.

The program will have two features of interest. States Attorney Morgan C. Harris will deliver an address at 7 p. m. using as his subject "America During These Days of World Crisis".

Following the address the American Legion band of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 will give a concert under the direction of Joseph M. Fradiska.

In the afternoon games and picnic suppers will be on the program. Both the speech and concert will be given in the Methodist church.

William Meek Completes Airplane Mechanic Course in Boston

A Cumberlander finished his work work yesterday in the United States Army airplane mechanic course at Boston, Mass.

He is Private William Meek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Meek, 218 Paca street. He enlisted here last October and was sent to the airplane school in January.

Mr. Meek will be stationed at Bolling Field, near Washington, D. C. His adopted brother, Corporal Richard Mulligan, is an army post librarian in Panama.

Leads Discussion

Dr. Charlotte B. Gardner, 126 Columbia street, of the First Presbyterial church, led the discussion in a study of the Bible at the mid-week service last night at the Moffatt Memorial Mission, Barrelville.

PENNSYLVANIA BLITZKRIEG—First Battalion of the mechanized One Hundred Eighth field artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, speeds along Pennsylvania's new $70,000,000 turnpike near Carlisle, Pa., in "blitzkrieg" designed to show military value of the highway. Below guardsmen pile aboard truck pulling 155mm gun at Indiantown Gap, Pa., for start of 135-mile trip that took eight hours, fifteen minutes.

Prospects Are Favorable for Fine Fruit Crop

Peaches Expected To Be Plentiful, Fruit Growers' Head Says

Prospects are favorable for an excellent peach and apple crop in this area, Stanley Fulton, newly elected president of the Appalachian Fruit Growers, Inc., reported yesterday.

The Appalachian concern, shippers for orchardists in Allegany and Washington counties in Maryland and Hampshire and Morgan counties in West Virginia, anticipate an unusually big peach crop and an apple crop that should compare favorably with that of last year.

According to the new president, between 200 and 300 carloads of fruit are shipped through the Cumberland offices of the fruit growers organization each year. Robert Powell is manager of the Cumberland office.

In being elected president of the well-known shipping firm, Fulton succeeds his father, M. W. Fulton in the office and the name has been well-known among the leading fruit producers and orchardists in Maryland for many years.

It is said authoritatively that Stanley Fulton is one of the growers who can pick No. 1 fruit as it is picked from the trees. His orchard and home is at Hancock.

Nominations in Beauty Contest Are Now Closed

Nominations have closed in the Queen's contest conducted by the Cumberland Fair Association and no further entries will be accepted for this event.

The pageant ensemble, including the contestants, their young men escorts, the parents of the tiny tots who have been invited to take part, and the tots themselves, will be special guests at the fair next week.

The first rehearsal will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, the entire group meeting at the contest headquarters near the grandstand.

Votes will be received daily next week at the headquarters on the fairgrounds, the contest closing promptly at 8:30 o'clock Friday night.

It will be seen from last night's scores that a new leader came into prominence when "Miss Cumberland", Hazel Wagner, forged into a first place tie with "Miss Frostburg", followed closely by "Miss Ridgeley" and "Miss Cresaptown" in third.

Votes will be counted again today.

The standings Wednesday were as follows: "Miss Cumberland", Hazel Wagner, 2160; "Miss Frostburg", Vera Rankin, 2160; "Miss Ridgeley", Dorothy Elkins, 2040; "Miss Cresaptown", Mary Lou Barton, 1920; "Miss Mt. Savage", Mary Sweene, 1680; "Miss Ellerslie", Wilma Stair, 1440; "Miss Midland", Emma Lee Fuller, 1440; "Miss Cumberland", Mary Ellen Ziler, 1440; "Miss Romney", Elaine Doman, 1400; "Miss Cumberland", Olive K. Robinette, 1320.

"Miss Lonaconing", Geraldine McIntyre, 1320; "Miss Cumberland", Louise Beckman, 1200; "Miss Cumberland", Betty Newberrey, 1200; "Miss Cumberland", Loretta Beckman, 960; "Miss Keyser", Anita Santmyer, 870; "Miss Piedmont", Mary Price, 810; "Miss Flintstone", Betty Twigg, 720; "Miss Green Spring", Elizabeth Duckworth, 540; "Miss Cumberland", Gloria Doris Stevens, 450; and "Miss Hyndman" Clarabelle Brant, 240.

Judge Sloan Dismisses Divorce Petition of William A. Spruill

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan yesterday dismissed the divorce petition of William A. Spruill with the tart declaration that "the plaintiff's testimony is about as fantastic a story as I ever had to listen to in this court house."

The opinion handed down by Judge Sloan climaxed the divorce proceedings which were first introduced into Circuit Court twelve years ago when Mrs. Mabel Spruill sued for a partial divorce and then abandoned the suit when both parties resumed their martial relations.

In 1930, a second bill was filed and a decree of divorce a mensa was filed. Thereafter, the parties agreed to resume and upon a petition, the divorce was rescinded.

Wife Obtains Divorce

Four years later in 1934, the wife again filed a bill and she was granted a divorce a mensa et thoro and the alimony fixed at $35 a month. That decree has been in effect ever since.

In the opinion filed in that case, Judge Doub, among other things, said, "the tantalizing demeanor of the defendant, even on the witness stand, evinces clearly something of the irritating conduct of the defendant from which the plaintiff has suffered."

From the time the bill was filed in that case until June 7, 1935, the defendant was hailed into court six times on orders to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failure to pay alimony.

Charges Adultery

On May 13, 1938, William A. Spruill filed a bill against his wife wherein he charged that on various days since she was divorced a mensa et thoro from him she had committed the crime of adultery with certain men whose names are unknown to him.

In commenting on the first charge of adultery, Spruill stated it was on Thursday, June 20, 1935, which he remembered because "I marked it down so that I would never forget it, besides it was stamped indellibly on my mind."

On that occasion, he claims he followed his wife to a certain building in Cumberland where she was met at the door by a man in shirt-sleeves who took her by the arm and led her into the building.

Spruill claims he and a friend went to the window of the building a few minutes later and peered through the window and saw his wife and the man inside. Spruill claims he and his friend alternated while looking in the window.

Other incidents were described by Spruill in his testimony and led Judge Sloan to comment in his opinion, "the testimony of the plaintiff alone covers twenty-one pages of the record and is about as fantastic a story as I have had to listen to in this court house."

Testimony is Contradictory

Judge Sloan declared Spruill's testimony "is so full of contradictions and evasions whenever anything might reflect on him as to discredit almost anything he might say. The testimony of this plaintiff himself is so unreliable and that of those whom he brings to corroborate him is so unimpressive that I am not going to rely on it to condemn the defendant.

"I am inclined, after this hearing, to agree with the statement in the answer of the defendant that the purpose of bringing this suit was for the plaintiff to get relief, if possible, from the decree of alimony, which he has so frequently resisted," Judge Sloan declared.

Edward J. Ryan acted as counsel for Mrs. Spruill throughout the long proceedings.

Celanese To Spend $14,000,000 for Improvements

Company Maps Out Program for Next Two Years

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—Celanese Corporation of America, New York, filed with the Securities Commission today a registration statement covering $25,000,000 of three per cent debentures, due Aug. 1, 1953.

The company said that $10,550,000 would be applied to the redemption at 105 1-2 per cent of $10,000,000 principal amount of 3 2-3 per cent sinking fund debentures due Sept. 1, 1948, and that the remainder of the proceeds would "initially" become a part of the corporation's funds.

The company said that it expected, during the next two years, to use approximately $14,000,000 from general funds for plant additions, machinery, improvements, facilities for producing and recovering chemicals, spinning and textile equipment, development of new products and acquisition of patents.

Dillon, Read & Company and Glore, Forgan and Company, botn of New York, were listed as principal underwriters.

Allegany County Boys Win 4-H Safety Contest

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—George Lechlider, of Montgomery county, was elected president of the Maryland State Council of 4-H Clubs today.

Walter Harmasen, of Talbot county, was elected vice-persident, and Martha Mary Virts, Frederick county, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Richard Fey and George Brant, of Allegany county, won the safety demonstration contest with a skit on the safe use of electricity. Louise Brown, of Carroll county, won the safety talk contest with a lecture on the safe use of electricity in the home.

Dr. R. G. Steinmeyer, professor of political science at the University of Maryland, advised the 638 delegates to the state convention to dedicate themselves "to building a better America."

"All over America we see men and women losing their heads in a time of crisis," he said. He urged the rural youth to "think problems through," and not be "trained to follow as cattle, as the youth of Germany are."

"Peeping Tom" Is Fined $25 in Police Court

James T. Widdows, 31, of 621 North Mechanic street, was arrested about 4:30 yesterday morning on a charge of peeping in windows and prowling.

Arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, in police court yesterday, he was fined $25 and when he was unable to pay the fine he was placed in the city jail, later in the day his fine was paid and he was released.

He was arrested by Lieut. James E. Van. Officers C. C. Roby and J. D. Whalley after several persons complained they saw a man sneaking around and peeping in windows.

L. G. McCubbin To Conduct Class in Life Saving Here

Instructors' and Examiners' Course Will Be Given at Park Pool

L. Grant McCubbin, field director for life saving of the American Red Cross, will direct an instructors' and examiners' training course next week at the Constitution park pool. McCubbin is well qualified to instruct in water safety methods, Elmer B. Gower, chairman of the life saving committee of the Allegany County Red Cross chapter, which is sponsoring the course, said yesterday.

For several years McCubbin has been a member of the faculty at the National Aquatic School, Narrowsburg, N. Y., and has conducted courses in water safety throughout the eastern part of the United States.

While residing in Jacksonville, Fla., McCubbin was a member of the volunteer life saving corps there for six years and later served as quartermaster of the corps for two years. He is also a member of the Seminole Canoe and Yacht Club.

Every day next week from 9 a. m. until 12 noon, McCubbin will direct a training course for persons who have completed the senior life saving requirements and who wish to obtain instructors' and examiners' certificates.

Persons wishing to take the course should register immediately with William H. Bouchholtz, pool superintendent.

Cumberland and Allegany county motorists who in the future are involved in automobile accidents in which there are no injuries, will soon be asked to drop a postcard to W Lee Elgin, chairman of the State Roads Commission advising him of the accident.

The postcard system has just been approved by the Maryland Traffic Safety Committee's executive body in the belief it will provide much statistical information for traffic surveys. So in the future if you are involved in an accident and are not hurt just drop the commissioner a card.

Jockey Scocca Breaks an Arm In Fourth Race

Taken to Allegany Hospital after Being Thrown By Albert D.

After booting home a winner in the first race, Jockey Dante C. Scocca, 25, bumped into some tough luck yesterday at Fairgo when his mount, Albert D., tossed him in the fourth.

Scocca was rushed to Allegany hospital in the Stein ambulance after his horse threw him as eight ponies came around the first turn in the six-and-a-half furlong race for three-year-olds and upward.

The jockey was admitted to the hospital where attendants said he had two bones broken in his right forearm and a badly bruised right hip. The rider will be on the shelf the rest of the meet, attendants said.

Scocca's luck reversed in the fourth race after he won the first event yesterday on P. H. Faulconer's "Rippling On," in a race for two-year-olds. The purse was $400.

Scocca was also scheduled to ride Mrs. A. Brown's "Statement" in yesterday's Monarch Handicap which followed right after the fourth race.

Spectators at the track reported that the 25-year-old jockey was thrown toward the outside of the track as the horses came around the first turn after starting on the back stretch for the six-and-a-half furlong event. After being tossed, the rider got up and stumbled to the outside of the track holding his right arm. There, he slumped down and waited for help to arrive.

Drought and Soil Erosion Discussed By Fruit Growers

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Drought, soil erosion, and soil fertility were reviewed today at the first annual conference of 125 fruit growers from a five-state area.

Advantages of terracing and cover crops were described by G. William Gardenhour, Smithsburg, and water conservation was emphasized by P. P. Cullinan of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Orchardists from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, and Pennsylvania attended.

Howard Anderson, York, Pa., was another orchardist urging terracing as a moisture-control method. Other speakers this morning were Paul Hawkins, Berkley Springs, W. Va., and Milt D. Moore, Washington county agent.

Another meeting will be held next year, the time and place to be announced by Wilbur Stevenson of the department of agriculture.

HUNDREDS OF GERMAN PLANES DRIVEN BACK IN WAR'S GREATEST ATTACK ON ENGLAND

Japanese Drive against British in East Asia Is Likely at an Early Date

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8—Japan, following her self-proclaimed destiny of dominance in "greater East Asia," was reported tonight to be hastening preparations for a lightning drive in the direction of French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies.

Trustworthy foreign sources, the sponsors of this report, predicted that Japan's big southward push would be geared to Germany's blitzkrieg machinery, now tuning up for the threatened invasion of The British Isles, and would begin within forty-eight hours after the Germans start.

The essence of such timing would be to take advantage of diversion of British attention to home defense. Britain stands as the only belligerent defender of the rich East Indies and Indo-China, territory of the German-vaanquished Netherlands and France.

Japanese Move Likely

If Adolf Hitler fails to move it was believed the Japanese would proceed more slowly and more cautiously, but further efforts to extend Japanese influence were regarded as inevitable.

Occasional premature reports of imminent Japanese action in past weeks have been traced to movements of warships and transports between Formosa and Hainan, islands off the southeastern and Southern China coasts.

Formosa, long Japanese-ruled, and Hainan, occupied in the three-year-old war against China, are likely springboards for thrusts against Indo-China and the Welter of islands that make up the Dutch East Indies.

Foreign informants in Shanghai said both the Japanese army and navy were speeding preparations for the southward push.

The Japanese "southward" fleet consists of thirty ships, mostly cruisers and destroyers, but with one aircraft carrier and several seaplane tenders.

Naval and land forces of both Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, a thousand miles south of Formosa, are almost negligible.

More than 100,000 soldiers are believed concentrated now in Hainan and Formosa. Hainan lies less than 100 miles off the central coastline of Indo-China, a potential troop and plane base.

The French have only a few cruisers and destroyers and eighteen obsolete warplanes in Indo-China. The main infantry forces consist of Annamite soldiers who recently have been subjected to strong doses of anti-French propaganda by Japanese agents.

Back of all the Japanese negotiations with Indo-China is the Japanese wish for a right-of-way through that French territory for transport of empire troops and supplies into China's Yunnan province, which the Japanese believe would hasten the end of the war in China. The precise attitude of the Tokyo government—as compared to the forthright expansionist clamor of

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—Britain appealed to India today to give her vast latent strength in the empire's fight for life against Axis forces striking both in west and east, and hold out to the 350,000,000 subject peoples of that fabulously wealthy possession the prospect of independence after the war.

In a statement announced simultaneously in the House of Commons by L. S. Amery, the British secretary of state for India, and in that far-off land by the Indian viceroy, the marquess of Linlithgow, the government proposed a "free and equal partnership" for India in the British commonwealth of nations for the future.

Cooperation Asked

But in the meantime, it was said, the government trusts "that for the period of the war all parties, communities and interests (in India) will combine and cooperate in making a notable Indian contribution to the world cause which is at stake."

The "partnership" thus offered was not outlined in detail, but it was interpreted authoritatively as going beyond even dominion status.

All this came while the British isles were awaiting the long-threatened German invasion from across the English channel and while the African troops of Italy were marching in British Somali-

Roosevelt Given Right To Call National Guard

Amendment To Limit Service to Home Defense Is Defeated

President also Given Power To Call 116,000 Reserve Officers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—By the overwhelming vote of seventy-one to seven, the Senate today passed and sent to the House the administration bill empowering the president to call out the national guard and army reserves for a twelve months period of duty anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possessions or the Philippine islands.

(Senator Holt (D-W. Va.) was one of the four Democrats who voted against the measure. Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) was not listed as voting.)

First, however, the chamber adopted an amendment permitting guardsmen with wives or children dependent on their salaries or wages to resign.

Just before the bill passed, it escaped being drastically altered by the narrowest of margins. On a vote of thirty-nine to thirty-eight, the chamber rejected an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) limiting the service of the guard to continental United States, American possessions and the Philippine islands.

Amendment Rejected

This would mean that the president could not send guardsmen to Latin America. The administration leaders, who have made on secret of their fear of German penetration in that area, were quick to fight the amendment. Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) said it would be "jolly" to serve notice on the world that all "our pious resolutions" on "democracy and solidarity in the western hemisphere are of no more effect than if adopted by a quilting bee."

Adams told the Senate that he would be willing to give the president complete freedom in time of war, but in peace-time he wanted

Doctor's Body Is Found in Ocean; Suicide Probable

Dr. Alfonso Moufang Believed To Have Killed Self with Revolver

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8 (AP)—State Police Sergeant John J. Cassidy said today a body found floating off Hooper's island this morning had been identified by Johnstown, Pa., police ask Dr. Abraham Moufang of Johnstown, who disappeared July 30 from the Old Bay Line steamer Warfield.

The body, with a bullet wound in the head, was clad in brown and white striped pajamas.

Cassidy said identification was made by telephoned descriptions given by police in Cambridge, Md., and Johnstown. Johnstown officers said the pajamas were the only clothes reported missing from Dr. Moufang's effects.

Dr. Moufang's dessing gown and slippers were found on the deck near his stateroom window by a watchman on the Warfield. Seven letters in his stateroom, Cassidy said, indicated suicide. The Warfield was enroute from Baltimore to Norfolk, Va.

The body was discovered near the mouth of the Potomac river—at about the point where Moufang was reported missing—by two crabbers, Mulberry Wingate, and Eugene Wheatley, and taken to Cambridge.

Cassidy said Johnstown police were sending a funeral director to Cambridge to claim the body.

Dr. Joseph K. Shriver, Dorchester county medical examiner, said a bullet had entered the right side of the man's head, coming out on the left side.

Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief state medical examiner, was called from Ocean City, Md., where he was vacationing, to make an autopsy.

Government To Probe Alleged Use Of "Slush Funds" by Big Utilities

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The justice department announced today that it would undertake grand jury investigations of the alleged use of political "slush funds" by public utilities companies at St. Louis, Springfield, Ill., Des Moines, Iowa, and perhaps in other federal judicial districts."

The companies to be investigated were listed by the department as Union Electric Company of Missouri, Illinois Iowa Power Company and Missouri Power and Light Company, all subsidiaries in the North American Company holding system.

Defer Other Probes

The Securities Commission announced at the same time that he had deferred for the present a proposed public investigation of the North American company and Union Electric pending the grand jury inquiry.

The justice department said the grand juries would investigate "information that Union Electric Company of Missouri and certain associated companies have violated provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Public Utility Holding Company Act, the maill fraud statute, the Federal Corrupt Practices Act and other federal criminal statutes by making and keeping false records for the purpose of cheating a so-called slush fund and using this fund to make contributions to candidates for election to federal and state offices.

Action Follows Inquiry

The department said that its action was based on information obtained during an SEC investigation of Union Electric and also on testomony at the trial in St. Louis on Frank J. Boehm, former vice president of the company, who was convicted of perjury and sentenced to five years in prison because of false testimony during the commission's inquiry."

GUARDS CHALLENGE THEIR KING

When King George VI inspected detachments of Home Guards near London, the guards demanded his identification papers, now carried by all Britons, according to the English censor. And here's a guard examing the monarch's papers, while a second guard aims his rifle at the king. He was passed.

U. S. Seeks Friendlier Relations with Russia

New Move Prompted by Japan's Plans To Seize East Asia

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The United States, disturbed by Japan's new "Greater East Asia" policy, appeared tonight to be seeking friendlier relations with Soviet Russia.

After two unusually long conferences with the Soviet ambassador, Constantine Oumansky, within a week, acting secretary of state Summer Welles said today they had discussed many questions involving relations between the two countries.

At the same time, Welles declined to comment in any way on Japanese press reports that the American government had asked Japan to define more clearly its attitude regarding French Indo-China.

Motor Gas for Russia

The Maritime Commission's action yesterday in authorizing two American-owned tankers to take cargoes of Motor gasoline to Russia was linked in some quarters with the government's apparent effort to smoothe out trade and other difficulties with Moscow.

The commission denied applications for two other vessels to take steel and oil to Japan.

Welles, when asked for comment on this, recalled that he told the press about ten days ago that he understood charters would be granted for American ships to go to ports where there was no danger involved.

Definite Turn at Hand

In other ways a definite turn was indicated in United States and

Explosions Near Genoa Are Unexplained; Inquiry under Way

By The Associated Press

ROME, Aug. 8—Two unexplained explosions killed thirty-nine workers and injured hundreds more today in the Tiatenza munitions works near Genoa as Italian officials heiled successes in the African campaign.

The munitions plant was almost demolished by the separate blasts that caused some destruction in nearby barracks and broke windows throughout the vicinity.

High officials left Rome hastily to investigate.

Authorities quickly organized first aid and began clearing away the debris within a short time after the blasts ended.

Italians Pleased

Meanwhile, officials here exultantly claimed that the Italian capture of the British Somaliland port of Zeila had opened the way to a consolidation of the British and French Somalilands under Fascists arms for an attack on Aden, Britain's protectorate 140 miles across the Gulf of that name.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

Fifty-three German planes were declared shot down by British fliers yesterday (Thursday) in the greatest Nazi aerial onslaught against the British island fortress and channel supply lines.

Nazi raiders roared over the channel in uncounted hundreds, attacking in groups of about eighty planes all day long. They rained thousands of bombs on channel shipping. Unofficial estimates said at least 100 German fliers died in the assault.

The British acknowledged the loss of sixteen planes in the fierce dog fights watched by thousands on the coast. Fighters and bombers were seen to plummet into the channel and crash against the rocky coast.

Berlin immediately disputed the claim, saying only three Nazi planes were lost and that thirty-four British planes fell. German spokesmen asserted fifteen ships totaling 72,000 tons were sunk by German bombs.

Ten German radio stations, including one in Berlin, went silent late last night (Thursday), indicating British air raiders were over the country.

Bomb German Base

British raiders bombed the German naval base at Kiel early yesterday. Pilots reported fires and explosions resulted. They also attacked the Nazi-held French port of Cherbourg in their attempts to smash German concentrations.

As the fighting raged along the coast British leaders in Parliament appealed to rich India for aid. They held forth the prospect of "free and equal partnership" in the British commonwealth of nations after the war if that vast multilingual territory would contribute in the fight for the "world cause at stake."

Indian nationalist leaders were silent. Hundreds of Indian potentates who hold their thrones through Britain already have made contributions to the Empire's war treasury.

Appeal to India

The appeal to India was made when Italian infantrymen were fighting their way across British Somaliland in East Africa toward Berbera, British port on the Gulf of Aden from British Aden in Asia.

In the last few days the Fascists, assisted by native troops occupied Zeila, British Somaliland port near French Somaliland, and other hinterland towns. Their object is to gain all Somaliland with a 2,500-mile coastline fronting on the southeastern entrance to the Red Sea which connects with the Suez canal.

British troops were ready to make a stand in mountain passes south of Berbera. They minimized the strategic importance of Italian gains, and kept another eye on Italians massed on the Libyan-Egyptian border.

Germany declared Britain is responsible for feeding the populations in German-occupied countries be-

James A. Farley Resigns Post in FDR's Cabinet

President Accepts It in Unusually Friendly Letter

SLATED TO BECOME PRESIDENT OF YANKEES

But May Take Position as President of Willys-Overland

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley handed in his portfolio as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet today, and a long political and official alliance between "Smiling Big Jim" and the chief he affectionately called "F.D." thus came to an end.

James A. Farley

To the big happy Irishman who twice led his campaigns for the White House President Roosevelt sent an exceedingly friendly letter accepting the resignation, effective Aug. 31.

Farley has persistently been reported planning to a head a syndicate to buy the New York Yankee baseball team, although other reports have linked him with the possible management of the Willys-Overland motors, Inc.

It was "Big Jim" who was the guiding genius of the campaign which put Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House in 1933. It was he who directed the highly successful 1936 campaign which brought the president four more years in ofice."

Differed with "The Boss"

But in recent months, when it became increasingly apparent that Mr. Roosevelt would accept renomination, Farley was reported frequently to have differed with "the boss" on the third term issue.

Then, at the Democratic convention in Chicago last month, he an-

Italians Likely To Attack Egypt, London Declares

Drive through Somaliland only a Feint, British Spokesmen Think

By LARRY ALLEN

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 8 (AP)—British spokesmen expressed the conviction tonight that the Italian drive through British Somaliland toward the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean was merely a feint to hide preparations for a grand assault on Egypt.

Admitting Fascist gains in Somaliland, Britons nevertheless said the Italians' main effort would be to break Britain's stranglehold on Mediterranean Sea routes by which water and other necessities must be carried to Italian Africa.

Also, as long as Britain holds Egypt and the Suez Canal, Italy has neither effective sea nor land connection with her Ethiopian empire.

The real big push, they said, would come in mid-August.

The Italians were reported facing a dwindling water supply in blockaded Libya, a land largely of burning deserts where water is as vital as bullets.

Water From Italy

Virtually all the water used by Italy's sand-whipped troops in eastern Libya has been transported from Italy, it was asserted, in specially-constructed water tankers, dodging the British blockade.

A deep thrust into Egypt would solve one of Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's problems by opening the way for new supplies of water and oil.

Egypt's position in the anticipated action remained a debated question.

Egypt May Declare War

53 Nazi Craft Downed By Defenders and More Than 100 Aviators Die

INVITED TO FIGHT

Richard Greene

A bid to Richard Greene, Hollywood actor, to enlist was extended by Col. Ronald Kingham, commander of the sixteenth Scottish Regiment, who accused Greene of "using the Canadian Army for publicity." Kingham declared Greene had applied for a commission to the only army unit which was not recruiting, and had shunned those looking for men.

Hundreds of Warplanes Attack in Fleets of 80 Each and Drop Many Thousands of Bombs

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion hurling 800 Nazi bombers and fighter planes against Britain's outer defenses was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of almost constant fighting.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 8—A mighty aerial invasion launched by uncounted hundreds of German planes was beaten back over the English channel today in fourteen hours of intermittent battle and at least fifty-three of the raiding Nazi craft were reported shot down.

More than 100 trained Nazi pilots, observers and air gunners were declared to have gone down to flaming death in the British counter-fire.

The Germans appeared in numbers unprecedented for this war, attacking over and over again all day long in forces of eighty each, and dropping thousands upon thousands of bombs.

British fighter planes, meeting the greatest assault ever made on these islands, threw up for the mainland a shield which was not broken.

Record Incomplete

Tonight, as the air ministry still was assembling the record of this gigantic engagement, German planes were reported again over the southeast coast, and also over Wales and two towns in the southwest of England.

In the last three of the day's main attacks—attacks concentrated on shipping in the channel—the Germans loosed 150 dive bombers and fighters at one convoy.

Of the tentative total of raiders shot down, nineteen were dive bombers and thirty-four fighters.

Each wave of bombers were screened by fighter planes—many of them the new Heinkels, Germany's counter-weapon to the British Spitfires and Hurricanes.

It was the heaviest one-day loss ever claimed against the Nazis in the war for Britain's skies. The previous high was on July 12, when the British announced the destruction of twenty-six German raiders.

But in this day-long series of thunderous, running and almost endless engagements along the southeast coast, the British suffered too, acknowledging that sixteen fighter pilots were missing, that "several ships" in the channel had received "considerable damage" and that "a number of survivors and injured" had been landed.

(The Germans claimed thirty-four British planes were destroyed and twelve ships totalling 55,000 tons were sunk. They acknowledged the loss of only three Nazi planes.)

15 British Ships Sunk in Channel, Germany Asserts

Seven Others Damaged by Fleets of German Planes and Ships

BERLIN, Aug. 8 (AP)—A tornadic attack on British shipping and airpower today by Germany's fliers and speedboats sank fifteen ships in the English channel, the high command announced tonight, damaged seven others and downed thirty-four British planes.

A speedboat raid on a "strongly protected enemy convoy" during the night sent to the bottom an 8,000-ton tanker and two steamers totaling 9,000 tons, a special communique said, while bombers swooping down on another convoy this afternoon sank twelve ships totaling 55,000 tons and damaged seven others.

Thus in the space of twenty-four hours an aggregate of 72,000 tons of British shipping space was reported destroyed.

Tanker Set Afire

During the speedboat raid, which the communique said was hotly contested by British destroyers, the tiny torpedo-carrying craft also set one tanker afire.

All of the speedboats were reported to have returned safely.

Five of the thirty-four British planes shot down were pursuit

U. S. May Seize Some of French Money "Frozen" in New York City

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—The first hope in many years of collecting a substantial sum on the $14,500,000,000 World War debt arose today when Secretary Morgenthau disclosed that the government was studying the question of seizing some of the French funds "frozen" in this country.

At a press conference, the secretary made it plain that the administration has not decided what to do with the frozen assets, but asserted that before they were released he wanted "to see what happens to American investments and debts over there."

Includes All Debts

He included the war debts owed to the government, with all business and other private debts, in this statement.

Previously he had discussed the chance that the frozen funds might be used to reimburse Americans for destruction of property in invaded countries, but today was the first time he acknowledged that war debt collection also was under study.

The frozen funds are unofficially estimated at $3,500,000,000. They belong to the invaded countries of Europe. France owes $4,200,000,000 on war debts, Poland $267,000,000 and Belgium $460,000,000.

This method, apparently, could not be used to collect the $5,600,000,000 owed by Great Britain, $2,025,000,000 owed by Italy, $1,300,000,000 owed by Germany, or $400,000,000 owed by Russia.

List Is Announced

The list of countries whose American assets have been impounded subject to special treasury license before they can be removed from this country includes France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Norway, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. Officials declined to say how much of each country's funds were held, or what they totaled.

Morgenthau, again emphasizing that he did not yet know what would be done with the funds said: "I am just sitting on them and waiting to see what will happen. I am sure no American will lose by it."

Opening of Civilian Pilot School Seems Certain

Training Program To Be Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce, Smith Says

Announcement is Made Following Conference Here with Aeronautical Inspector for CAA and William Rannells, Local Pilot and Instructor; Will Be Open to Young Men and Women

Establishment of a Civilian Pilot Training Program in Cumberland for young men and women from 18 to 26-years old seems almost certain H. W. Smith, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, reported yesterday.

The announcement was made following a conference between Smith, E. A. Goff, Jr., aeronautical inspector for the CAA in this district, and William Rannells, Cumberland pilot-instructor.

According to tentative plans, the Cumberland chamber will be asked to sponsor the civilian training school and an application will be made to the CAA.

Goff told Smith and Rannells that he was certain the application would be passed on favorably by the commission after he checked Rannels' equipment at the local port.

Chamber in Charge

According to plans released yesterday, the chamber would be responsible for the designation of instructors and would have charge of the ground school work.

The selection of applicants will also be the responsibility of the chamber. One instructor would be needed for every 49 students and instructors selected will have to pass a rigid examination to qualify.

There will be no educational requirements for students who apply for admission in the six-weeks courses, Smith said. Each prospective student will be asked to fill out a blank which the chamber will prepare.

Physical Checkup

Prospects who appear to have no noticeable physical handicaps will deposit $6 for a physical examination. The physical checkup will be very thorough. In the event a student wins a scholarship, the $6 will be refunded later in the course.

After receiving a physician's O. K., the students will be enrolled in the ground school. The groups will consist of units of 49.

Men who meet the requirements must not be less than five feet four inches in height and weigh less than 118 pounds or over 225 pounds. Women must be at least five feet two inches tall and weigh at least 100 pounds.

The ground school work will require seventy-two hours with students attending three-hour class periods four nights a week for six weeks. Text books will be supplied free by the CAA.

Two Examinations

At the end of the six-weeks ground work period, students will be given two examinations. The first will be given on the subjects covered in the course, and will be given by the instructor who will also grade the papers.

The second examination will be given by the CAA and will be on CAA air regulations and meteorology.

Both tests will be weighed and ten scholarships will be awarded to the ten highest students. The ten students who qualify for scholarships will then be enrolled in the flight school and trained free of charge.

$325 Scholarships

The number of scholarships awarded may be increased above ten providing local groups want to sponsor them. The government will sponsor one additional scholarship for every scholarship provided by local groups or persons up to a total of ten. The value of one scholarship is $325.

No military obligations will be attached to students who take the course. However, students who successfully pass the civilian course will be allowed to take advanced work and, if they pass the second phase, will be eligible to enroll in the nation's military training schools.

Two Workers Here Are Slightly Injured

Charles R. Allender, 34, of 412 Central avenue, suffered an injury to the second finger of his right hand, yesterday morning while at work for the Hazelwood Contracting Company. After treatment at Memorial hospital he was discharged.

A. B. & O. boilermaker, Charles F. Moser, 56, of 619 Elm street, was treated yesterday afternoon, at Memorial hospital, for a lacerated right wrist, suffered when a piece of jaggered iron fell striking his wrist. After a clip was placed on the wound and a bandage applied he was discharged.

Dr. Frank E. Stamp Passes Pilot Test

Dr. Frank E. Stamp, of Forest Glen, LaVale, passed his private pilots test yesterday, at Mexico Farms airfield.

Two-Day-Old Twins Become Aunts

Allegany hospital's prize twins became aunts Tuesday at the tender age of two days.

Dorothy Jean and Doris Virginia were born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shepherd, of Cresaptown.

The next day, Mrs. Shepherd's daughter, Mrs. Curtis Cox, gave birth to a son at the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Cox live at 303 Greene street.

In this way, two-day old Dorothy Jean and Doris Virginia became aunts with an age seniority over their nephew of one day.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox named their son Donald Roy. Someday, Donald Roy may possibly refer to the two twins as "Aunt Doris" and "Aunt Dorothy" although its rather doubtful.

At any rate, the two aunts and their nephew will be able to hold their birthday parties together.

Sixty Kiwanians Visit Youngsters In Sunshine Camp

Metal Flagpole Donated by William J. Edwards Is Raised

Sixty members of the Kiwanis Club motored to Sunshine Camp on Haystack mountain yesterday to pay a visit to the youngsters they are befriending these hot summer days.

Camp Leaders David Weiss, Charles A. Walton, Harold Hipsley and Ralph Roth gave reports on the development of the youngsters attending the camp, reported that the average increase in weight by the boys at the camp was five pounds. Hipsley gained thirteen pounds.

Some of the twenty-seven girls attending the present two-weeks camping period are so undernourished that it was decided to keep them in camp another two weeks.

The children who attend the camp are selected by the Associated Charities.

The Kiwanis Club laid out $4,600 this year to send the children to the ten-acre camp that is well-wooded and a stream runs through it.

Harris Will Speak At Oldtown; Legion Band Will Play

The Oldtown Methodist church circuit of six churches will have an old-fashioned picnic, Saturday, at Nixon's grove on the Oldtown road.

The program will have two features of interest. States Attorney Morgan C. Harris will deliver an address at 7 p. m. using as his subject "America During These Days of World Crisis".

Following the address the American Legion band of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 will give a concert under the direction of Joseph M. Fradiska.

In the afternoon games and picnic suppers will be on the program. Both the speech and concert will be given in the Methodist church.

William Meek Completes Airplane Mechanic Course in Boston

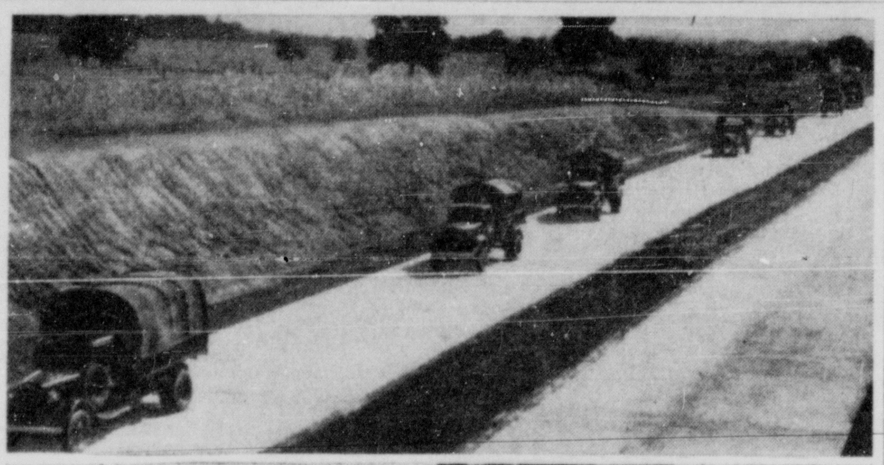

A Cumberlander finished his work work yesterday in the United States Army airplane mechanic course at Boston, Mass.

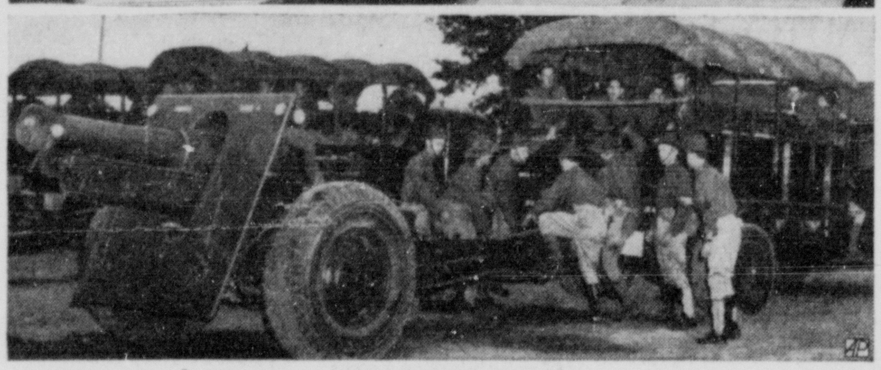

He is Private William Meek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Meek, 218 Paca street. He enlisted here last October and was sent to the airplane school in January.

Mr. Meek will be stationed at Bolling Field, near Washington, D. C. His adopted brother, Corporal Richard Mulligan, is an army post librarian in Panama.

Prospects Are Favorable for Fine Fruit Crop

Peaches Expected To Be Plentiful, Fruit Growers' Head Says

Prospects are favorable for an excellent peach and apple crop in this area, Stanley Fulton, newly elected president of the Appalachian Fruit Growers, Inc., reported yesterday.

The Appalachian concern, shippers for orchardists in Allegany and Washington counties in Maryland and Hampshire and Morgan counties in West Virginia, anticipate an unusually big peach crop and an apple crop that should compare favorably with that of last year.

According to the new president, between 200 and 300 carloads of fruit are shipped through the Cumberland offices of the fruit growers organization each year. Robert Powell is manager of the Cumberland office.

In being elected president of the well-known shipping firm, Fulton succeeds his father, M. W. Fulton in the office and the name has been well-known among the leading fruit producers and orchardists in Maryland for many years.

It is said authoritatively that Stanley Fulton is one of the growers who can pick No. 1 fruit as it is picked from the trees. His orchard and home is at Hancock.

Nominations in Beauty Contest Are Now Closed

Nominations have closed in the Queen's contest conducted by the Cumberland Fair Association and no further entries will be accepted for this event.

The pageant ensemble, including the contestants, their young men escorts, the parents of the tiny tots who have been invited to take part, and the tots themselves, will be special guests at the fair next week.

The first rehearsal will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, the entire group meeting at the contest headquarters near the grandstand.

Votes will be received daily next week at the headquarters on the fairgrounds, the contest closing promptly at 8:30 o'clock Friday night.

It will be seen from last night's scores that a new leader came into prominence when "Miss Cumberland", Hazel Wagner, forged into a first place tie with "Miss Frostburg", followed closely by "Miss Ridgeley" and "Miss Cresaptown" in third.

Votes will be counted again today.

The standings Wednesday were as follows: "Miss Cumberland", Hazel Wagner, 2160; "Miss Frostburg", Vera Rankin, 2160; "Miss Ridgeley", Dorothy Elkins, 2040; "Miss Cresaptown", Mary Lou Barton, 1920; "Miss Mt. Savage", Mary Sweene, 1680; "Miss Ellerslie", Wilma Stair, 1440; "Miss Midland", Emma Lee Fuller, 1440; "Miss Cumberland", Mary Ellen Ziler, 1440; "Miss Romney", Elaine Doman, 1400; "Miss Cumberland", Olive K. Robinette, 1320.

"Miss Lonaconing", Geraldine McIntyre, 1320; "Miss Cumberland", Louise Beckman, 1200; "Miss Cumberland", Betty Newberrey, 1200; "Miss Cumberland", Loretta Beckman, 960; "Miss Keyser", Anita Santmyer, 870; "Miss Piedmont", Mary Price, 810; "Miss Flintstone", Betty Twigg, 726; "Miss Green Spring", Elizabeth Duckworth, 540; "Miss Cumberland", Gloria Doris Stevens, 450; and "Miss Hyndman" Clarabelle Brant, 240.

Judge Sloan Dismisses Divorce Petition of William A. Spruill

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan yesterday dismissed the divorce petition of William A. Spruill with the tart declaration that "the plaintiff's testimony is about as fantastic a story as I ever had to listen to in this court house."

The opinion handed down by Judge Sloan climaxed the divorce proceedings which were first introduced into Circuit Court twelve years ago when Mrs. Mabel Spruill sued for a partial divorce and then abandoned the suit when both parties resumed their martial relations.

In 1930, a second bill was filed and a decree of divorce a mensa was filed. Thereafter, the parties agreed to resume and upon a petition, the divorce was rescinded.

Wife Obtains Divorce

Four years later in 1934, the wife again filed a bill and she was granted a divorce a mensa et thoro and the alimony fixed at $35 a month. That decree has been in effect ever since.

In the opinion filed in that case, Judge Doub, among other things, said, "the tantalizing demeanor of the defendant, even on the witness stand, evinces clearly something of the irritating conduct of the defendant from which the plaintiff has suffered."

From the time the bill was filed in that case until June 7, 1935, the defendant was hailed into court six times on orders to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failure to pay alimony.

Charges Adultery

On May 13, 1938, William A. Spruill filed a bill against his wife wherein he charged that on various days since she was divorced a mensa et thoro from him she had committed the crime of adultery with certain men whose names are unknown to him.

In commenting on the first charge of adultery, Spruill stated it was on Thursday, June 20, 1935, which he remembered because "I marked it down so that I would never forget it, besides it was stamped indelibly on my mind."

On that occasion, he claims he followed his wife to a certain building in Cumberland where she was met at the door by a man in shirt-sleeves who took her by the arm and led her into the building.

Spruill claims he and a friend went to the window of the building a few minutes later and peered through the window and saw his wife and the man inside. Spruill claims he and his friend alternated while looking in the window.

Other incidents were described by Spruill in his testimony and led Judge Sloan to comment in his opinion, "the testimony of the plaintiff alone covers twenty-one pages of the record and is about as fantastic a story as I have had to listen to in this court house."

Testimony is Contradictory

Judge Sloan declared Spruill's testimony "is so full of contradictions and evasions whenever anything might reflect on him as to discredit almost anything he might say. The testimony of this plaintiff himself is so unreliable and that of those whom he brings to corroborate him is so unimpressive that I am not going to rely on it to condemn the defendant.

"I am inclined, after this hearing, to agree with the statement in the answer of the defendant that the purpose of bringing this suit was for the plaintiff to get relief, if possible, from the decree of alimony, which he has so frequently resisted," Judge Sloan declared.

Edward J. Ryan acted as counsel for Mrs. Spruill throughout the long proceedings.

"Peeping Tom" Is Fined $25 in Police Court

James T. Widdows, 31, of 621 North Mechanic street, was arrested about 4:30 yesterday morning on a charge of peeping in windows and prowling.

Arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, in police court yesterday, he was fined $25 and when he was unable to pay the fine he was placed in the city jail, later in the day his fine was paid and he was released.

He was arrested by Lieut. James E. Van. Officers C. C. Roby and J. D. Whalley after several persons complained they saw a man sneaking around and peeping in windows.

L. G. McCubbin To Conduct Class in Life Saving Here

Instructors' and Examiners' Course Will Be Given at Park Pool

L. Grant McCubbin, field director for life saving of the American Red Cross, will direct an instructors' and examiners' training course next week at the Constitution park pool. McCubbin is well qualified to instruct in water safety methods, Elmer B. Gower, chairman of the life saving committee of the Allegany County Red Cross chapter, which is sponsoring the course, said yesterday.

For several years McCubbin has been a member of the faculty at the National Aquatic School, Narrowsburg, N. Y., and has conducted courses in water safety throughout the eastern part of the United States.

While residing in Jacksonville, Fla., McCubbin was a member of the volunteer life saving corps there for six years and later served as quartermaster of the corps for two years. He is also a member of the Seminole Canoe and Yacht Club.

Every day next week from 9 a. m. until 12 noon, McCubbin will direct a training course for persons who have completed the senior life saving requirements and who wish to obtain instructors' and examiners' certificates.

Persons wishing to take the course should register immediately with William H. Bouchholtz, pool superintendent.

Taken to Allegany Hospital after Being Thrown By Albert D.

After booting home a winner in the first race, Jockey Dante C. Scocca, 25, bumped into some tough luck yesterday at Fairgo when his mount, Albert D., tossed him in the fourth.

Scocca was rushed to Allegany hospital in the Stein ambulance after his horse threw him as eight ponies came around the first turn in the six-and-a-half furlong race for three-year-olds and upward.

The jockey was admitted to the hospital where attendants said he had two bones broken in his right forearm and a badly bruised right hip. The rider will be on the shelf the rest of the meet, attendants said.

Scocca's luck reversed in the fourth race after he won the first event yesterday on P. H. Faulconer's "Rippling On," in a race for two-year-olds. The purse was $400.

Scocca was also scheduled to ride Mrs. A. Brown's "Statement" in yesterday's Monarch Handicap which followed right after the fourth race.

Spectators at the track reported that the 25-year-old jockey was thrown toward the outside of the track as the horses came around the first turn after starting on the back stretch for the six-and-a-half furlong event. After being tossed, the rider got up and stumbled to the outside of the track holding his right arm. There, he slumped down and waited for help to arrive.

Drought and Soil Erosion Discussed By Fruit Growers

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 8 (AP)—Drought, soil erosion, and soil fertility were reviewed today at the first annual conference of 125 fruit growers from a five-state area.
